How this book works

- Sorted by the syllabus. Chapters and sub-topics follow the January 2027 syllabus (PassBook's lessons). Each question sits under the sub-topic it mainly tests. That placement is PassBook's judgement, most of all for old-scheme papers, which used different chapters.
- Order inside a sub-topic: exam papers first, then RTPs, then MTPs, newest attempt first.
- Every card shows where it comes from (EXAM RTP MTP), the attempt, ICAI's question number and marks. RTPs print no marks. old scheme marks papers from before May 2024.
- Questions ICAI repeated word for word, with the same answer, are printed once. The other documents are listed under Also asked in (168 repeats). Where ICAI answered the same question differently in two documents, both are printed, and each card points to the other: Same question, different ICAI answer.
- A case scenario stays together: the case, all its questions, then ICAI's answers in ICAI's order.
- ICAI's words, unchanged. Questions, options and answers are copied from ICAI's PDFs. Each card ends with the PDF pages. Lines marked PassBook's note are ours: why a question is out of syllabus, or where the Study Material now teaches a newer law (CARO 2020 for CARO 2016, say). ICAI's own slips are kept as printed.
- Missing answers. ICAI has not yet published Suggested Answers for the September 2026 exam (marked * below), and one old MTP's answers are no longer online. Those questions appear without an answer.

- Out of syllabus questions are in an appendix at the end (133), so they never get in the way.

"Relying blindly on business strategy can go absolutely wrong when daily operation are impeded or when environmental estimates prove inaccurate." Discuss the overall objective of strategic management and evaluate the limitations attached to it that may prevent from overcoming a turbulent environment.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The overall objective of strategic management is:

1. To create competitive advantage so that the company can outperform competitors.

2. To guide the company successfully through environmental changes and react in the right manner.

Limitations of Strategic Management

1. Complex and Turbulent Environment: Business environment is highly dynamic and uncertain. Organisational estimates about future conditions may go wrong, thereby affecting strategic plans adversely. Hence, strategy cannot always overcome a turbulent environment.

2. Time Consuming Process: Strategic management involves extensive planning, analysis and communication which may impede daily operations and routine business activities. Excessive planning may reduce execution efficiency.

3. Costly Process: Strategic management requires expert planners, environmental analysis and implementation efforts, which increase organizational costs, especially for small and medium enterprises.

4. Difficulty in Predicting Competitive Responses: In a competitive environment, it is difficult to estimate competitors' strategic actions and responses accurately, as such decisions are generally confidential and uncertain.

Differentiate between Proactive and Reactive strategies. Explain in detail, why it is important for every organisation to use both these strategies in a dynamic and an uncertain business environment.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Difference between Proactive and Reactive Strategies

Basis	Proactive Strategy	Reactive Strategy
Meaning	Proactive strategy refers to planned and deliberate actions taken by management to improve market position and performance.	Reactive strategy refers to adaptive responses to unforeseen changes and unexpected developments in the business environment.
Nature	It is planned and intentional.	It is responsive and adaptive in nature.
Objective	To gain competitive advantage through advance planning.	To cope with changing circumstances and environmental uncertainties.

Importance of Using Both Strategies

Every organization needs both proactive and reactive strategies because the business environment is dynamic and uncertain.

1. Helps in Achieving Planned Objectives: Proactive strategies help organizations define long-term direction, improve market position and achieve organizational objectives through planned managerial actions.

2. Helps in Coping with Uncertainty: Business conditions may change unexpectedly due to competition, technology, regulations or customer preferences. Reactive strategies help firms respond effectively to such unforeseen developments.

3. Provides Flexibility and Adaptability: A combination of proactive and reactive strategies enables organizations to remain flexible and adapt to changing environmental conditions.

4. Ensures Survival and Competitive Advantage: Organizations using both strategies can exploit opportunities, tackle threats, handle crises and maintain competitiveness in turbulent business environments.

Thus, a company's actual strategy is always a blend of proactive planned actions and reactive adaptive responses to changing business circumstances.

4 EXAM Jan 2026 Q8(b) OR Write short note on concept of strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In the context of business, strategy refers to the ways in which an organisation responds to dynamic and often hostile external forces while pursuing its vision, mission and long-term objectives. The idea of strategy is incorporated to reduce uncertainty and complexity arising from environmental changes. Strategy seeks to relate the goals of the organisation to the means of achieving them. It is the game plan of management to take market position, conduct operations, attract and satisfy customers, compete successfully and achieve organisational objectives. Strategy may be defined as a long-range blueprint of an organisation's desired image, direction and destination—what it wants to be, what it wants to do, how it wants to do things and where it wants to go. It provides an integrated and unified framework for mobilising resources, directing human effort and handling opportunities and threats. Strategy is flexible and pragmatic in nature, enabling the organisation to adapt to environmental changes and unforeseen situations. It integrates organisational goals, policies and actions into a cohesive whole, ensuring long-term survival, growth and competitive advantage. A strategy may be formulated at the corporate level, divisional level and functional level. The corporate wide strategies are operationalized by divisional and functional strategies. A company's strategy is typically a blend of proactive actions on the part of managers to improve the company's market position and financial performance, and reactive actions to unanticipated developments and fresh market conditions in the dynamic business environment.

Also asked in MTP Sep 2026 S-II Q1(a)

Ecro Ltd. is an e-commerce company that specializes in selling eco-friendly products. Although the company has been doing well, it still continues actively to strengthen its brand identity, launch creative and impactful marketing campaigns, and introduce new and innovative eco-friendly products. However, the company has started facing increasing competition from large retailers who are entering the eco-friendly space. To face competition the company quickly started to adapt to the changing market conditions, analyse the competitors' strategies, adopt different styles of marketing in response to competitors action and counteract competitors' pricing strategies. Discuss the strategic approaches taken by Ecro Ltd. in the two different situations to stay competitive. Explain the strategy that Ecro Ltd. should adopt in future to remain competitive and gain competitive advantage.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Ecro Ltd. employs both proactive and reactive strategic approaches to stay competitive in a dynamic market.

Initially, the company was proactive in its approach by adopting the features of proactive strategies:

- Strengthening Brand Identity: Proactively building a strong eco-friendly image to appeal to environmentally conscious consumers.
- Innovative Marketing Campaigns: Crafting impactful and creative campaigns to enhance market visibility and differentiate its products.
- Product Innovation: Consistently introducing new and innovative eco-friendly products to meet evolving customer demands and maintain a competitive edge.

These proactive strategies are deliberate, reflecting planned actions to improve market position and financial performance. However, when the company started facing competition from large retailers, it forced the company to quickly adapt to the changing market conditions by following the features of reactive strategies:

- Adapting to Market Changes: Responding to the entry of large retailers in the eco-friendly segment by quickly adjusting strategies.
- Competitor Analysis: Studying competitors' strategies to counteract their actions effectively.
- Dynamic Marketing: Implementing varied marketing techniques to respond to competitors' campaigns.
- Pricing Adjustments: Adopting counter-pricing strategies to remain competitive without compromising profitability.

These reactive strategies demonstrate Ecro Ltd.'s ability to adapt to unforeseen developments and changing market conditions. Future Strategy for Competitive Advantage To remain competitive and gain a sustainable edge, Ecro Ltd. should adopt a blended approach of proactive and reactive strategies:

1. Sustainable Differentiation: Focus on continuous innovation and exclusive eco-friendly product lines to strengthen its unique position.

2. Customer-Centric Approach: Use data analytics to understand consumer preferences and tailor offerings.

3. Operational Efficiency: Optimize supply chain and reduce costs to balance affordability and quality.

4. Strategic Alliances: Partner with eco-certification organizations to build credibility and trust.

By crafting a strategy that integrates planned proactive initiatives with adaptive responses, Ecro Ltd. can navigate uncertainty, tackle competition, and ensure long-term success.

CASE SCENARIO

Case Scenario 2 Quick N Safe Logistics is one of the prominent transporters of goods for more than two decades. It has its own fleets and also has business arrangement with Railways. Competition with existing players and threat from new entrants are increasing regularly. Customer preferences and expectations are also changing. Need for considering new and improved means of transportation seems inevitable. Current philosophy of the company is 'to bring the best user experience to its customers through timely and safe delivery of goods'. While keeping this philosophy in mind, it desires to keep ahead and reap the benefits of first mover advantages in the industry. In order to achieve its growth target, company is exploring available other options so as to have a strong presence in supply chain management. The company is of a considered view that 'we learn as we grow'. It knows that the overall per mile operating cost decreases due to increase in efficiency and cumulative volume of services. Since the company will have a cost advantage over the competitors due to reduced cost of services, it can develop and adopt a penetrative pricing strategy by setting a low price to attract more customers. It is also observed that arrangement of transportation through railways is becoming a concern. Growth rate is slow and market for areas being covered by this means of transport is by and large stabilized. Profit margin is coming down due to stiff competition. Company has to work out an action plan to maintain the stability. On the other side, one of the customer segments is looking for fast delivery of its goods in major cities all across the country. The prime consideration of such customers is quick and safe delivery of their products, irrespective of cost for the same. The target market of such services is very large and also increasing very fast. In view of the same, the company wants to reform its operation, by engaging a dedicated team to perform with a niche marketing strategy for transporting such goods through airways on an assurance of 'delivery by next day'.

8 EXAM Old P7 Nov 2023 Q6 5 marks old scheme

Swagatam was a chain of hotels. The business was good until the whole nation was impacted by COVID-19 pandemic in early 2022.

The management soon understood that pandemic had seriously disrupted the hotel sector and average revenue-per-available room fell by nearly 90% and they expected this decline to continue due to travel bans and fear seen in the society.

Pandemic required 14-day compulsory quarantine for the affected individuals and hospitals were short of rooms.

Management found a small opportunity as they had sufficient rooms, staff and could follow required health and safety standards. They decided to do service transformation by letting some of their units to hospitals to be transformed into covid-care units & rest of the units were rented to individuals as a quarantine facility.

(a) Name the strategic level of management at which such decisions are made. (1 Mark)

(b) The above scenario depicts one of the limitations of strategic management. Discuss which limitation of strategic management is depicted here. (2 Marks)

(c) Here the decision taken by the management was reactive. Discuss the benefit of proactive approach over reactive approach. (2 Marks)

ICAI'S ANSWER

(i) The strategic level of management at which decisions like transforming hotel units into COVID-care units and quarantine facilities are made is at the "Corporate Level." This level of management is responsible for making decisions that affect the overall direction and scope of the entire organization.

(ii) The given scenario highlights a limitation of strategic management known as highly complex and turbulent environment. Due to this, there exist environmental uncertainty and unpredictability of the external factors that affect an organization. In this case, the COVID-19 pandemic created a highly uncertain and unpredictable business environment for Swagatam Hotels. The pandemic significantly impacted the hotel sector, causing a rapid decline in revenue and necessitating a strategic shift to adapt to the changing circumstances.

(iii) A proactive approach involves anticipating and addressing issues before they become critical, while a reactive approach responds to problems after they have occurred. In the scenario, the decision to transform hotel units into COVID-care units and quarantine facilities was reactive, driven by the unexpected impact of the pandemic.

A proactive approach offers several benefits.

First, it allows for better risk management by identifying potential challenges in advance, enabling organizations to develop contingency plans.

Second, proactive strategies often result in cost savings as preventive measures can be more efficient than addressing crises retroactively.

Third, organizations can maintain a competitive edge by staying ahead of industry trends and changes.

Overall, a proactive approach enhances organizational strength and responsiveness in navigating uncertainties.

"The strategic management cannot counter all hindrances and always achieve success for an organization." Do you agree with this statement? Give arguments in support of your answer.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yes, it is true that the presence of strategic management cannot counter all hindrances and always achieve success for an organization. This is on account of complex multiple forces acting on business organization and limiting its success.

These limitations are on account of following factors:

- Environment is highly complex and turbulent. It is difficult to understand the complex environment and exactly pinpoint how it will shape-up in future. The organisational estimate about its future shape may awfully go wrong and jeopardise all strategic plans.

- Strategic management is a time-consuming process. Organisations spend a lot of time in preparing, communicating the strategies that may impede daily operations and negatively impact the routine business.
- Strategic management is a costly process. Strategic management adds a lot of expenses to an organization – particularly to small and medium organisations. Expert strategic planners need to be engaged, efforts are made for analysis of external and internal environments devise strategies and properly implement.
- Competition is unpredictable. In a competitive scenario, where all organisations are trying to move strategically, it is difficult to clearly estimate the competitive responses to the strategies.

"Each organization must build its competitive advantage keeping in mind the business warfare. This can be done by following the process of strategic management." Considering this statement, explain major benefits of strategic management.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Each organization has to build its competitive advantage over the competitors in the business warfare in order to win. This can be done only by following the process of strategic management. Strategic Management is very important for the survival and growth of business organizations in dynamic business environment. Other major benefits of strategic management are as follows:

- Strategic management helps organizations to be more proactive rather than reactive in dealing with its future. It facilitates to work within vagaries of environment and remains adaptable with the turbulence or uncertain future. Therefore, they are able to control their own destiny in a better way.
- It provides better guidance to entire organization on the crucial point – what it is trying to do. Also provides frameworks for all major business decisions of an enterprise such as on businesses, products, markets, organizational structures, etc.
- It facilitates to prepare the organization to face the future and act as pathfinder to various business opportunities. Organizations are able to identify the available opportunities and identify ways and means as how to reach them.
- It serves as a corporate defence mechanism against mistakes and pitfalls. It helps organizations to avoid costly mistakes in product market choices or investments.

'ALBELA' Foods and 'JustBE' Foods are successfully competing chain of restaurants in India. ALBELA's are known for their innovative approach, which has resulted in good revenues. On the other hand, JustBE is slow in responding to environmental change. The initial stages of Covid-19 pandemic and the ensuring strict lockdown had an adverse impact on both the companies. Realizing its severity and future consequences. ALBELA, foods immediately chalked out its post lockdown strategies, which include initiatives like:

(a) Contactless dinning

(b) New category of foods in the menu for boosting immunity

(c) Improving safety measures and hygiene standards

(d) Introducing online food delivery app

Seeing the positive buzz around these measures taken by ALBELA Food, JustBE Foods also thinks to introduce these measures.

(i) Identify the strategic approach taken by 'ALBELA' Foods and 'JustBE' Foods.

(ii) Discuss these strategic approach.

(iii) Which strategic approach is better and why?

ICAI'S ANSWER

(i) 'ALBELA' foods is proactive in its approach. On the other hand, 'JustBE' foods is reactive in its approach.

(ii)

- Proactive strategy is planned strategy. While continuing with the previously initiated business approaches that are working well, the newly launched managerial initiatives aim to strengthen the company's overall position and performance. These are outcomes of management's analysis and strategic thinking about the company's situation and its conclusions about the positioning of the company in the marketplace. If done well, it helps the company to effectively compete for buyer patronage.
- Reactive strategy is an adaptive reaction to changing circumstances. It is not always possible for a company to fully anticipate or plan for changes in the market. There is also a need to adapt strategy as new learnings emerge about which pieces of strategy are working well and which aren't. By itself also, the management may hit upon new ideas for improving the current strategy.

(iii) In reference to the given case, proactive strategy seems to be better because ALBELA foods had been able to utilise available opportunities, reduce adverse impact, enhance the demand for product and is also able to avail the first mover advantage.

Same question, different ICAI answer: #67 Old P7 MTP Jul 2021 S-I

"Strategy is partly proactive and partly reactive." Elaborate.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yes, strategy is partly proactive and partly reactive. In proactive strategy, organisations will analyse possible environmental scenarios and create strategic framework after proper planning and set procedures and work on these strategies in a pre-determined manner. However, in reality no company can forecast both internal and external environment exactly. Everything cannot be planned in advance. It is not possible to anticipate moves of rival firms, consumer behaviour, evolving technologies and so on.

There can be significant deviations between what was visualised and what actually happens. There can be significant or major strategic changes when the environment demands. Reactive strategy is triggered by the changes in the environment and provides ways and means to cope with the negative factors or take advantage of emerging opportunities.

Define Strategic Management. Also discuss the limitations of Strategic Management.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The term 'strategic management' refers to the managerial process of developing a strategic vision, setting objectives, crafting a strategy, implementing and evaluating the strategy, and initiating corrective adjustments where deemed appropriate.

The presence of strategic management cannot counter all hindrances and always achieve success as there are limitations attached to strategic management. These can be explained in the following lines:

- Environment is highly complex and turbulent. It is difficult to understand the complex environment and exactly pinpoint how it will shape-up in future. The organisational estimate about its future shape may awfully go wrong and jeopardise all strategic plans. The environment affects as the organisation has to deal with suppliers, customers, governments and other external factors.
- Strategic Management is a time-consuming process. Organisations spend a lot of time in preparing, communicating the strategies that may impede daily operations and negatively impact the routine business.
- Strategic Management is a costly process. Strategic management adds a lot of expenses to an organization. Expert strategic planners need to be engaged, efforts are made for analysis of external and internal environments devise strategies and properly implement. These can be really costly for organisations with limited resources particularly when small and medium organisation create strategies to compete.
- Competition is unpredictable. In a competitive scenario, where all organisations are trying to move strategically, it is difficult to clearly estimate the competitive responses to the strategies.

Novatek Electronics Ltd. is a leading manufacturer of smart home appliances and planned to expand into Tier-2 cities, invest in AI-enabled products, strengthen its dealer network and increase exports. During implementation, a foreign competitor launched low-priced products, raw material prices increased and stricter energy efficiency regulations were introduced. Consequently, the company revised its plans by launching budget friendly products, changing suppliers and accelerating energy efficient product development. Explain how this case demonstrates that strategy is partly proactive and partly reactive.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The case demonstrates that strategy is partly proactive and partly reactive because it combines deliberate plans with responses to unforeseen developments.

- Proactive Strategy: Novatek's decision to expand into Tier-2 cities, invest in AI-enabled products, strengthen its dealer network and increase exports represents its proactive strategy. These are planned initiatives designed to achieve long-term objectives and build competitive advantage.
- Reactive Strategy: The company also faced unexpected environmental changes, such as the entry of a foreign competitor with low-priced products, rising raw material prices and stricter energy efficiency regulations. In response, Novatek introduced budget friendly product variants, changed its sourcing strategy and accelerated the development of energy efficient products. These actions represent its reactive strategy, undertaken to address emerging challenges.

So, the case highlights that an organisation's realised strategy is a blend of proactive (deliberate) actions and reactive (adaptive) responses. While proactive strategies help achieve planned objectives, reactive strategies enable the organisation to adapt to changes in the business environment and sustain its competitive position.

Mr. Vikram Patel owns a chain of ten bookstores across the Mumbai region. Three of these stores were launched in the past two years. He has always believed in strategic management and enjoyed robust sales of books, magazines, and educational materials until about five years ago. However, with the increasing preference for online shopping, the sales at his physical stores have declined by approximately sixty percent over the last five years. Analyze Vikram Patel's current position in light of the limitations of strategic management.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Vikram Patel is facing declining sales due to a significant shift in customers toward online platforms. Although he employs strategic management tools, they cannot always overcome every obstacle or guarantee success. The limitations of strategic management in Vikram's situation include:

- The environment in which strategies are developed is highly complex and unpredictable. The entry of online bookstores, a new type of competitor, introduced a different dynamic to the book retail industry. These online platforms, with their extensive reach and pricing power, have dominated the market, posing a formidable challenge to traditional bookstores.
- Another limitation of strategic management is the difficulty in forecasting future developments. Despite his strategic management efforts, Vikram Patel did not anticipate the extent to which online bookstores would impact his sales.
- While strategic management is a time-consuming process, it is crucial for Vikram to continue managing strategically. These challenging times demand increased effort and adaptability on his part.
- Strategic management can be costly. Vikram Patel might consider hiring experts to understand customer preferences better and adjust his strategies to offer more personalized services. These customized offerings could be difficult for online stores to replicate, giving him a competitive edge.

- The bookstores owned by Vikram Patel are much smaller in scale compared to online stores. This makes it challenging for him to predict how online platforms will manoeuvre strategically.

AquaPure Beverages is a reputed bottled water and healthy drinks company facing fierce competition from new entrants offering organic, flavoured and eco-friendly alternatives. This has made it challenging to retain customers as established soft drink brands are also launching their own health-focused beverage lines. The company has appointed Ms. Somya to lead the company forward as the Sales & Marketing Manager. Ms. Somya needs to design creative and innovative advertising campaigns to gain a competitive edge, engage the public and capture the market. Identify the strategic level that represents Somya's role at AquaPure Beverages. As a strategic advisor, highlight the various benefits of strategic management in overcoming different challenges to Ms. Somya.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Somya's role at AquaPure Beverages represents the Functional level of strategy. As the sales and marketing manager, her responsibilities are focused on specific areas within the company, particularly on crafting and executing marketing and sales strategies that drive customer engagement and competitive positioning. Benefits of Strategic Management for Ms. Somya at AquaPure Beverages Strategic management can provide several benefits to Somya in addressing the competitive and consumer challenges faced by AquaPure Beverages:

- Strategic management helps AquaPure Beverages define its goals and mission, providing clear direction for future initiatives. This ensures that all marketing efforts are aligned with the company's overall vision. It allows Somya to set realistic and achievable objectives that support the company's long-term goals ensuring that marketing strategies are both ambitious and attainable.

- Through strategic management, Somya can proactively shape the future of AquaPure Beverages rather than merely reacting to market changes. This allows the company to anticipate trends and act accordingly. A proactive approach enables AquaPure Beverages to better manage environmental uncertainties and stay ahead of competitors, ensuring a more controlled and predictable business environment.
- Strategic management provides a robust framework for making critical decisions regarding marketing strategies, target markets and resource allocation. This ensures that all major decisions are well-informed and strategically sound. It ensures coherence and consistency in decision-making across the organization, aligning marketing strategies with overall business objectives.
- Strategic management helps identify and exploit new business opportunities, allowing Somya to craft campaigns that resonate with emerging consumer preferences and market trends. By recognizing and capitalizing on these opportunities, AquaPure Beverages can differentiate itself from competitors and capture a larger market share.

- Strategic management acts as a defence mechanism against potential mistakes and pitfalls, helping Somya avoid costly errors in marketing decisions and campaign execution. It provides a structured approach to identifying and mitigating risks, ensuring more informed and safer decision-making.
- Strategic management enhances the longevity and sustainability of AquaPure Beverages by ensuring that marketing strategies are adaptable and resilient in a dynamic market. It helps the company establish a clear and deliberate position within the industry, ensuring sustained relevance and competitiveness.
- Strategic management enables the development of core competencies and competitive advantages that are crucial for the company's success. This includes building strong brand identity, innovative product offerings, and superior customer service. By focusing on these strengths, Somya can ensure that AquaPure Beverages achieves sustainable growth and maintains its competitive edge in the beverage industry. Through strategic management, Somya can effectively navigate the competitive challenges faced by AquaPure Beverages. By providing clear direction, encouraging a proactive approach, guiding critical decisions, identifying new opportunities, defending against pitfalls, ensuring longevity and developing core competencies, strategic management enables the company to achieve and sustain a competitive edge. This comprehensive approach will allow Somya to design innovative advertising campaigns that engage the public, capture the market, and drive the company forward.

Vireon Foods started as a small dairy business but is still thriving after 25 years even as many competitors shut down or merged. Its leadership holds regular planning retreats, studies changing consumer habits and adapts its operations every few years. They recently invested in plant-based products before market demand spiked. What advantage is their strategic intelligence offering them? What are the other benefits of strategic management?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Vireon Foods' continued success over 25 years despite the exit or merger of several competitors reflects the importance and advantages of strategic management particularly its contribution to the longevity of a business. The strategic intelligence demonstrated by Vireon—through regular planning retreats, environmental scanning, understanding consumer behavior and timely investment in plant-based products—has provided it with a competitive advantage and the ability to successfully navigate environmental changes. This aligns with the dual objectives of strategic management:

- Creating competitive advantage by delivering something unique and valued by customers.
- Guiding the company through all changes in the environment by reacting appropriately. Other benefits of strategic management evident from Vireon's case include:
- It enables the organization to be proactive rather than reactive helping it controls its future instead of merely responding to change.
- It provides a clear strategic direction allowing the organization to align its goals and actions with its vision.
- It serves as a framework for sound decision-making related to markets, products, investments and structure.
- It helps organizations identify and leverage opportunities while avoiding costly pitfalls.
- It contributes to building core competencies and sustaining long-term growth and survival as seen in Vireon's ability to adapt and remain relevant. Thus, strategic management not only ensures superior performance but also enhances the sustainability and adaptability of a business in a dynamic environment.

Yes, a business organization cannot always plan all their strategies in advance and often need to blend planned strategies with reactive strategies.

In planned strategy, organisations will analyse possible environmental scenarios and create strategic framework after proper planning and set procedures and work on these strategies in a pre-determined manner. However, in reality no company can forecast both internal and external environment exactly. Everything cannot be planned in advance. It is not possible to anticipate moves of rival firms, consumer behaviour, evolving technologies and so on.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yummy foods is proactive in its approach. On the other hand Tasty Food is reactive. Proactive strategy is planned strategy whereas reactive strategy is adaptive reaction to changing circumstances. A company's strategy is typically a blend of proactive actions on the part of managers to improve the company's market position and financial performance and reactions to unanticipated developments and fresh market conditions.

If organisational resources permit, it is better to be proactive rather than reactive. Being proactive in aspects such as introducing new products will give you advantage in the mind of customers.

At the same time, crafting a strategy involves stitching together a proactive/intended strategy and then adapting first one piece and then another as circumstances surrounding the company's situation change or better options emerge-a reactive/adaptive strategy. This aspect can be accomplished by Yummy Foods.

What benefits accrue by following a strategic approach to managing?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The following are the benefits of strategic approach to managing:

- Strategic management helps organisations to be more proactive i nstead of reactive in shaping its future. Organisations are able to analyse and take actions instead of being mere spectators. Thereby they are able to control their own destiny in a better manner. It helps them in working within vagaries of environment and shaping it, instead of getting carried away by its turbulence or uncertainties.
- Strategic management provides framework for all the major decisions of an enterprise such as decisions on businesses, products, markets, manufacturing facilities, investments and organisational structure. It provides better guidance to entire organisation on the crucial point - what it is trying to do.
- Strategic management is concerned with ensuring a good future for the firm. It seeks to prepare the corporation to face the future and act as pathfinder to various business opportunities. Organisations are able to identify the available opportunities and identify ways and means as how to reach them.
- Strategic management serves as a corporate defence mechanism against mistakes and pitfalls. It help organisations to avoid costly mistakes in product market choices or investments. Over a period of time strategic management helps organisation to evolve certain core competencies and competitive advantages that assist in its fight for survival and growth.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Correct: Strategic management is a costly process. Strategic management adds a lot of expenses to an organization. Expert strategic planners need to be engaged. Efforts are made for analysis of external and internal environments, devise strategies and properly implement them. These can be really costly for organisations with limited resources particularly when small and medium organisation create strategies to compete.

Write short notes on the following: Strategy is partly proactive and partly reactive

ICAI'S ANSWER

It is true that strategies are partly proactive and partly reactive. In proactive strategy, organizations will analyze possible environmental scenarios and create strategic framework after proper planning and set procedures and work on these strategies in a predetermined manner. However, in reality no company can forecast both internal and external environment exactly. Everything cannot be planned in advance. It is not possible to anticipate moves of rival firms, consumer behaviour, evolving technologies and so on.

There can be significant deviations between what was visualized and what actually happens. Strategies need to be attuned or modified in the light of possible environmental changes. There can be significant or major strategic changes when the environment demands. Reactive strategy is triggered by the changes in the environment and provides ways and means to cope with the negative factors or take advantage of emerging opportunities.

Modern Sangeet Academy, a classical music training institute based in Bengaluru, has gained nationwide recognition through its engaging social media presence and viral reels. Encouraged by its growing popularity, students from across the country have requested the academy to introduce online classes. However, JJ Sir, the founder and head of the academy, opposes the idea. He believes that online classes would attract non-serious learners and dilute the academy's mission of preserving and promoting classical music while striving for global recognition. In the light of the above case, explain why JJ Sir should develop the qualities of a strategic thinker rather than relying solely on his expertise in classical music. How can strategic thinking contribute to the long-term growth and sustainability of the academy?

ICAI'S ANSWER

JJ Sir should develop the qualities of a strategic thinker because long-term success depends not only on expertise in classical music but also on the effective application of strategic management. Strategic management enables an organisation to perform better than its competitors by creating a competitive advantage and responding successfully to changes in the environment.

In the given case, the increasing demand for online classes represents a change in the business environment. Instead of rejecting the idea, JJ Sir should evaluate it strategically. Strategic thinking will help the academy:

- Provide direction by aligning decisions with the academy's vision of making classical music globally recognised.
- Be proactive rather than reactive by analysing environmental changes and responding appropriately.
- Identify and exploit new opportunities, such as reaching students across the country through online learning.
- Enhance the longevity of the academy by adapting to changing customer needs and ensuring sustainable growth.

- Develop competitive advantage and core competencies, enabling the academy to strengthen its position while preserving the quality and authenticity of classical music.

Thus, strategic thinking will help JJ Sir achieve the academy's mission while ensuring its long-term survival, growth, and sustainability.

CASE SCENARIO

EcoNurture Foods, founded in 2008 in India, specializes in producing plant-based, sustainable snacks and beverages. With a mission statement focused on "nourishing people and the planet through sustainable innovation," the company aims to lead the market in environmentally friendly food alternatives. However, following a decade of double-digit growth, EcoNurture faced stagnation due to increased competition, operational inefficiencies, and changing consumer trends.

To regain its competitive edge, EcoNurture has initiated a turnaround strategy. The first step involved a complete overhaul of its outbound logistics, a key activity in its value chain. By investing in renewable-energy-powered delivery vehicles and partnering with a global logistics provider, the company reduced shipping costs by 20% and cut carbon emissions by 35%. This not only enhanced operational efficiency but also reinforced the brand's commitment to sustainability; a core value that resonates with its target market.

Simultaneously, EcoNurture addressed the barriers to new entry in the plant-based food industry. While small competitors have entered the market with niche products, the company's established brand reputation, economies of scale, and extensive distribution network continue to deter potential entrants. By leveraging these barriers, EcoNurture protects its market share in key regions of western ghats & southern states of India.

In pursuit of growth, EcoNurture has adopted a diversification strategy. In 2024, the company launched a new line of functional beverages infused with probiotics and vitamins, targeting the growing health-conscious consumer base. This diversification has contributed to a 15% increase in revenue in its first year, with projected sales of INR150 Crores in 2025.

To further expand its market reach, EcoNurture formed a strategic alliance with Homely Basket, a premium organic retail chain in Asia. This partnership allows EcoNurture to enter high-growth Asian markets while Homely Basket benefits from exclusive rights to distribute EcoNurture's products. The alliance is expected to generate an additional INR 50 Crores in annual revenue for both companies.

Despite these initiatives, challenges remain. Consumer demand for innovation is relentless, and competition from both established players and startups continues to intensify. To stay ahead, EcoNurture's leadership must ensure alignment with its mission statement while balancing profitability and sustainability. With strong execution of its turnaround strategy and continued focus on partnerships and diversification, EcoNurture is poised to reclaim its position as a leader in sustainable nutrition.

Q1(A)(i) 2 marks

Imagine you are a strategic consultant advising a retail company that is facing increasing competition from online retailers. The company is considering several strategic options to improve its market position. Using the concept that strategy is partly proactive and partly reactive, explain how the company can develop a strategic approach to address this challenge.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The retail company can develop a strategic approach that is both proactive and reactive to address the challenge of increasing competition from online retailers. To achieve this, the company can:

- Proactive Strategy: The company can proactively analyze market trends and customer preferences to identify opportunities for growth. For example, it can invest in market research to understand what customers value in a retail experience and tailor its offerings to meet those needs. This proactive approach can help the company stay ahead of competitors and attract new customers.
- Reactive Strategy: In addition to proactive measures, the company should also be prepared to react to changes in the market environment. For example, if a competitor launches a new online shopping platform, the company should quickly assess the impact on its business and develop a response. This reactive strategy can help the company adapt to changing market conditions and maintain its competitiveness.

By combining proactive and reactive strategies, the retail company can develop a comprehensive approach to addressing the challenge of increasing competition from online retailers. This approach will allow the company to capitalize on opportunities for growth while also mitigating risks and responding to threats in the market.

Vikram Patel owns a chain of ten bookstores across the Mumbai region. Three of these stores were launched in the past two years. He has always believed in strategic management and enjoyed robust sales of books, magazines, and educational materials until about five years ago. However, with the increasing preference for online shopping, the sales at his physical stores have declined by approximately sixty percent over the last five years. Analyze Vikram Patel's current position in light of the limitations of strategic management.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Vikram Patel is facing declining sales due to a significant shift of customers toward online platforms. Although he employs strategic management tools, they cannot always overcome every obstacle or guarantee success. The limitations of strategic management in Vikram's situation include:

- The environment in which strategies are developed is highly complex and unpredictable. The entry of online bookstores, a new type of competitor, introduced a different dynamic to the book retail industry. These online platforms, with their extensive reach and pricing power, have dominated the market, posing a formidable challenge to traditional bookstores.
- Another limitation of strategic management is the difficulty in forecasting future developments. Despite his strategic management efforts, Vikram Patel did not anticipate the extent to which online bookstores would impact his sales.
- While strategic management is a time-consuming process, it is crucial for Vikram to continue managing strategically. These challenging times demand increased effort and adaptability on his part.
- Strategic management can be costly. Vikram Patel might consider hiring experts to understand customer preferences better and adjust his strategies to offer more personalized services. These customized offerings could be difficult for online stores to replicate, giving him a competitive edge.
- The bookstores owned by Vikram Patel are much smaller in scale compared to online stores. This makes it challenging for him to predict how online platforms will manoeuvre strategically.

Kriti Pvt. Ltd. has been importing French gourmet cheeses under the brand name of 'Fromage' since 2017. The company was amongst the first in India to introduce innovative unbreakable cheese packaging. Their affiliate, a French company owning Fromage, had entered into a progressive deal, wherein products would be sourced to India via their logistics, and all marketing expenditures would be covered by them. However, customer management and nationwide distribution would be taken care of by Kriti Pvt. Ltd. This required an English-speaking skilled workforce, which has been a constant challenge for the company in India.

The owners of Kriti Pvt. Ltd. have been regular attendees at industry-relevant conclaves, both national and international. Leaders of the company are passionate readers of business magazines. Following that, it was observed that the recent sentiment of the country towards 'Vocal for Local' could disrupt their French brand's marketability. An extraordinary meeting was set up, and the steps ahead were planned. The outcome of the meeting was to partner with local producers of traditional Indian cheeses in phase one of the change strategy. For this, seven state governments were approached. The team was successful in taking contracts from all the government departments of these seven states and could position themselves fairly in the market. To fund this new investment, they have planned to slowly sell off their French business assets as well as the brand, to probable buyers.

This timely shift is proving to be a game-changer for the company, and the leadership is quite happy with better than before earnings and a much greater response from the customers. ABC retail chain regularly monitors consumer trends and supply chain flexibility. The retail chain tracks consumer trends to adjust its offerings, ensuring they meet customer needs. Simultaneously, it maintains a flexible supply chain to respond swiftly to demand fluctuations. This strategy enables ABC retail chain to anticipate market shifts and adapt to them effectively, ensuring its competitiveness and customer satisfaction. Which type of strategy is the retail chain employing?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The retail chain is employing a strategy that combines both proactive and reactive elements. Monitoring consumer trends and adjusting product offerings accordingly demonstrates a proactive approach to anticipate and meet customer needs. On the other hand, maintaining a flexible supply chain to respond quickly to changes in demand reflects a reactive strategy to address unforeseen shifts in the market.

This combination allows the retail chain to both anticipate future trends and react effectively to immediate market changes, making its strategy partly proactive and partly reactive. This dual strategy of proactive trend monitoring and reactive supply chain flexibility enables the retail chain to anticipate market shifts and adapt to them effectively, ensuring its competitiveness and customer satisfaction.

CASE SCENARIO

Zuberia, a London based choreographer with a master's degree in social entrepreneurship, wanted to do something innovative and impactful with her international degree. Following which she took on her dream to inculcate dance as a part of basic curriculum in primary education back in India. For this, she set up a digital dance education company called DanceXT.

The business model was simple; approach active NGOs working on the field, conduct local competitions to spread awareness, offer scholarships to talented kids to lure in support, and finally build a community of interested individuals. This would act as a base for marketers to market their products amongst youth and also divert some of their CSR funds to a good cause. Interestingly, there are numerous NGOs working for the same cause, but the business monetisation of DanceXT's consumer data and easy approachability for businesses has created an advantage over others.

A startup incubator was consulted to ensure free flow of funds in the initial few months until sponsors were arranged. The best alternative to bank loans was crowdfunding and that is what DanceXT opted for. Individuals and corporates were encouraged to provide for basic expenses while volunteerism was encouraged for on field support. The operations were smooth and foolproof.

The company expanded exponentially in major cities of Delhi, Mumbai and Kolkata, while making a surprising foothold in Jaipur, Indore, Surat and Nashik. With over 500 volunteers and 100 team leaders, many more college students expressed interest in joining the field force. Sports brands, FMCG giants, political candidates, and even government schools showed immense support to the company. It built a massive workforce making numerous local teams with one single target o f inculcating extra curricular in primary students especially through dance.

The highlight of their success was when four of their students got selected in a dance reality show on television. Following it, the business is booming with marketers eyeing yout h while being true to the underlying cause of the company.

Yummy Foods and Tasty Foods are successfully competing in the business of ready to eat snacks in Patna. Yummy has been pioneer in introducing innovative products. These products will give them good sale. However, Tasty Foods will introduce similar products in reaction to the products introduced by the Yummy Foods taking away the advantage gained by the former

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yummy foods are proactive in its approach. On the other hand, Tasty Food is reactive. Proactive strategy is planned strategy whereas reactive strategy is adaptive reaction to changing circumstances. A company's strategy is typically a blend of proactive actions on the part of managers to improve the company's market position and financial performance and reactions to unanticipated developments and fresh market conditions.

If organisational resources permit, it is better to be proactive rather than reactive. Being proactive in aspects such as introducing new products will give you advantage in the mind of customers. At the same time, crafting a strategy involves stitching together a proactive/intended strategy and then adapting first one piece and then another as circumstances surrounding the company's situation change or better options emerge-a reactive/adaptive strategy. This aspect can be accomplished by Yummy Foods.

Strategic management helps an organization to work through changes in environment to gain competitive advantage. In light of statement discuss its benefits.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic management involves developing the company's vision, environmental scanning, strategy formulation, implementation, evaluation and control. It emphasises the monitoring and evaluation of external opportunities and threats in the light of a company's strengths and weaknesses and designing strategies for the survival and growth. It helps in creation of competitive advantage to outperform the competitors and also guide the company successfully through all changes in the environment.

The major benefits of strategic management are:

- Strategic management gives a direction to the company to move ahead. It defines the goals and mission.
- It helps organisations to be proactive instead of reactive in shaping its future.
- It provides frameworks for all major decisions of an enterprise such as decisions on businesses, products, markets, manufacturing facilities, investments and organisational structure. It provides better guidance to entire organisation on the crucial point - what it is trying to do.
- It helps organisations to identify the available opportunities and identify ways and means to achieve them.
- It serves as a corporate defence mechanism against mistakes and pitfalls.
- It helps to enhance the longevity of the business.
- It helps the organisation to develop certain core competencies and competitive advantages that would facilitate survival and growth.

"Strategy is partly proactive and partly reactive." Elaborate.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yes, strategy is partly proactive and partly reactive. In proactive strategy, organisations will analyse possible environmental scenarios and create strategic framework after proper pla nning and set procedures and work on these strategies in a pre-determined manner. However, in reality no company can forecast both internal and external environment exactly. Everything cannot be planned in advance. It is not possible to anticipate moves of rival firms, consumer behaviour, evolving technologies and so on.

There can be significant deviations between what was visualised and what actually happens. There can be significant or major strategic changes when the environment demands. Reactive strateg y is triggered by the changes in the environment and provides ways and means to cope with the negative factors or take advantage of emerging opportunities.

CASE SCENARIO

Amrutha, a third year computer science student living in Tamilnadu, realised that during covid-19 pandemic her mother was not able to buy the basic products that she used in her worship routine. As a result, many small vendors also went out of business during the lockdown. She started studying more about the market and observed that the way the business was conducted had many gaps and loopholes. She dedicated herself to develop a small market place where consumers like her mother and small vendors could meet and trade, and called it Saamagree.

Her interaction with small vendors was a success factor, where she was able to convince them to bring their business online and give them volume in sales. Vendors were hesitant early on, but followed suit when they saw the benefits coming in. Amrutha, being a student was happy with the growth and wanted to focus on studies more and let the business operate as usual.

To her surprise, her father's company which was a big FMCG brand took over her business within a year itself, and designated Ms. Srividya Rajanan, to lead the division with Amrutha. Amrutha, knew her customers and vendors very closely and Ms. Rajanan was an expansion expert. So their division was developed as a simple structure within the organisation as an experiment.

Ms. Rajanan’s marketing team expanded swiftly to rope in vendors from areas far and beyond backed by their in-house distribution channels. However, the initial vendors and customers felt betrayed as their trust rested in Amrutha and her personalised touch to the business. It took the team months to build an identity that matched the sincerity of a one woman led brand.

The market segment has been a very niche one for the FMCG brand however the results have been satisfying. The plan is to go Pan-India in the coming years with Amrutha leading from the front and Ms. Rajanan exiting the division. New markets, new ways of business are inevitable and bring a freshness to business is what Saamagree has proven.

Kamal Sweets Corner, a very popular sweets shop in Ranchi, was facing tough competition from branded stores of packaged sweets and imported goods. The owners realised that their busi ness reduced by 50% in the last six months, and this created a stressful business environment for them. To find a solution, they consulted a business consultant to help them develop a strategy to fight competition and sustain their century old family business. The business consultant advised them to innovate a new snack for the public and market it as a traditional snack of the region. The owners liked the idea and developed a new snack called Dahi Samosa, which very quickly became popular amongst the public and it helped regain the lost business of Kamal Sweets Corner.

One of the very crucial importance of strategic management was used by the business consultant to help the owners of Kamal Sweets Corner. Which one could it be? Also, was this strategy Reactive or Proactive? According to you who are more beneficial in general parlance?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The strategy used here was of developing a competitive advantage via product which helped Kamal Sweets Corner regain their lost business. This is also one of the major importance cum advantage of strategic management, that is helps to develop core competencies and competitive advantages to overcome competition.

This strategy was a Reactive strategy. Wherein, the owners saw their business fall to 50% of revenue and then seeking a strategic advisory. They did not plan proactively as to when the new shops were already opening. They reacted only when the business started to lose up.

Generally, it is always beneficial to develop strategies proactively, so that the dip in businesses is small and manageable, and even if they are huge, the management has ample time to fix it.

The presence of strategic management cannot counter all hindrances and always achieve success for an organisation. What are the limitations attached to strategic management?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The presence of strategic management cannot counter all hindrances and always achieve success as there are limitations attached to strategic management. These can be explained in the following lines:

- Environment is highly complex and turbulent. It is difficult to understand the complex environment and exactly pinpoint how it will shape-up in future. The organisational estimate about its future shape may awfully go wrong and jeopardise all strategic plans. The environment affects as the organisation has to deal with suppliers, customers, governments and other external factors.
- Strategic Management is a time-consuming process. Organisations spend a lot of time in preparing, communicating the strategies that may impede daily operations and negatively impact the routine business.
- Strategic Management is a costly process. Strategic management adds a lot of expenses to an organization. Expert strategic planners need to be engaged, efforts are made for analysis of external and internal environments devise strategies and properly implement. These can be really costly for organisations with limited resources particularly when small and medium organisations create strategies to compete.

In a competitive scenario, where all organisations are trying to move strategically, it is difficult to clearly estimate the competitive responses to the strategies.

What benefits accrue by following a strategic approach to managing?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The following are the benefits of strategic approach to managing:

- Strategic management helps organisations to be more proactive instead of reactive in shaping its future. Organisations are able to analyse and take actions instead of being mere spectators. Thereby they are able to control their own destiny in a better manner. It helps them in working within vagaries of environment and shaping it, instead of getting carried away by its turbulence or uncertainties.
- Strategic management provides framework for all the major decisions of an enterprise such as decisions on businesses, products, markets, manufacturing facilities, investments and organisational structure. It provides better guidance to entire organisation on the crucial point - what it is trying to do.
- Strategic management is concerned with ensuring a good future for the firm. It seeks to prepare the corporation to face the future and act as pathfinder to various business opportunities.

Organisations are able to identify the available opportunities and identify ways and means as how to reach them.

- Strategic management serves as a corporate defence mechanism against mistakes and pitfalls. It helps organisations to avoid costly mistakes in product market choices or investments. Over a period of time strategic management helps organisation to evolve certain core competencies and competitive advantages that assist in its fight for survival and growth.

CASE SCENARIO

Case Scenario - II Kalpanjali Dairy, a mid-sized cooperative based in Uttar Pradesh, has established a reputation over the past 20 years for producing traditional but high-quality dairy products sourced from small-scale farmers. Its operations are rooted in cooperative ethics, aiming for both profitability and farmer welfare. Now, Kalpanjali is facing multiple cross-challenges rising competition, shifting health narratives, concern for climate change, and ethical debates around animal welfare. With a vision to become a national brand by 2035, Kalpanjali must rethink its plan of action. The founders of Kalpanjali Dairy intended to create a values-driven brand that not only delivered quality but also empowered dairy farmers. It intends to become one of the top 10 dairy brands in India by 2035, with a strong presence in organic and health-based dairy offerings and proving good services, which is in a heavy demand and has to draw a vision plan accordingly. A Value Chain Analysis revealed strength in material handling, stock control and better transportation system, but a gap in R&D and digital marketing. After extensive stakeholder discussion, Kalpanjali considered three strategic options:

1. Defensive Strategy Double down on traditional dairy and educate consumers on the nutritional value of milk and the ethical treatment of animals.

2. Diversification Strategy - Launch a vegan product line (e.g., almond/oat-based milk, vegan yogurt) under a sub-brand to appeal to changing preferences.

3. Collaborative Strategy - Partner with NGOs and health influencers to improve public image and trust.

On detailed internal analysis of various strategic drivers, leadership opted for a hybrid strategy:

- Continue improving and promoting high-quality dairy products with transparent animal welfare practices.
- Simultaneously launch a vegan line to cater to health-conscious and ethically driven consumers under a new sub-brand Kalpanjali Plant Wise.
- Investing in an R&D facility to develop almond milk, oat milk, and vegan ghee.
- Partnering with food tech startups and nutritionists.
- Training farmers to improve animal healthcare and promote "cruelty-free dairy" certification.
- A strong communication campaign: "Empowered by your choice, grounded in respect" - highlighting that Kalpanjali supports both dairy and plant-based lifestyles.
- Rebranding efforts to clearly differentiate the dairy and vegan lines while maintaining core brand identity.

CASE SCENARIO

Case Scenario - II Solar Tech Innovation, a start-up specialization in next-generation solar panels entered the highly competitive renewable energy sector with a mission to make solar power more accessible and efficient. However, the company faced significant challenges, including high R&D costs, limited consumer awareness, regulatory compliance hurdles and stiff competition from established energy providers. To navigate these challenges, Solar Tech conducted an in-depth market analysis, identifying a strong demand for residential and commercial solar solution due to rising electricity cost and government incentives on green energy. However, it also noted threats from lower-cost alternatives and slow adoption in some regions. To differentiate itself, Solar Tech developed ultra-thin, high efficiency solar panels that could generate more power in less space. This innovation appealed to homeowners and businesses looking for cost-effective grand space-saving solutions. The company also adopted a strategic expansion model, first targeting urban centers with high energy consumption and gradually moving to rural areas. Internally, the leadership headed by CEO Mr. Rajiv, implemented structural changes to improve decision making. The company embraced a decentralized approach enabling regional teams adapt their sales and marketing strategies to local market conditions. Additionally, Solar Tech partnered with financial institutions to offer easy financing options, making solar energy more affordable. To enhance operational efficiency, Solar Tech streamlined its supply chain and secured bulk raw material procurement deals, reducing cost without compromising quality. Simultaneously, the company focused on customer education through digital marketing and community outreach programs, increasing awareness and adoption. Over four years, these strategic initiatives led to Solar Tech's expansion across multiple states, partnerships with real estate developers, and a 60% increase in annual revenue. "A well-defined vision and mission statement provide direction and purpose to an organization." Explain the significance of vision and mission statements in strategic planning.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic Management is a dynamic process of formulation, implementation, evaluation and control of strategies to realise the organisation's strategic intent. Strategic intent clarifies what the organisation wants to do and why it wants to do it, which forms the basis of vision and mission statements. A vision statement describes the organisation's future aspirations and desired position while a mission statement explains its present business scope, purpose, goals and the means to achieve them. Together, they provide direction and purpose in strategic planning.

Significance of Vision in Strategic Planning:

- Provides a blueprint of where the organisation wants to be.
- Aligns organisational efforts on a chosen path.
- Creates enthusiasm and mould's identity.
- Clarifies aspirations in products, markets, customers and technology.

Significance of Mission in Strategic Planning:

- Explains the reason for the firm's existence.
- Ensures unanimity of purpose and efficient resource use.
- Standard for allocation and goal translation.
- Gives distinct identity and direction.
- Reflects present activities and ensures legitimacy.

Thus, a well-defined vision and mission provide clarity of purpose, direction for growth and a framework for decision-making. Vision answers, "where we want to go," and mission answers "what business we are in and why we exist." Together, they form the philosophical base of strategy and guide the organisation toward long-term success.

'A company's mission statement is typically focused on its present business scope.' Explain the significance of a mission statement.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A company's mission statement is typically focused on its present business scope who we are and what we do. Mission statements broadly describe an organization's present capability, customer focus, activities, and business make up. Mission for an organization is significant for the following reasons:

- It ensures unanimity of purpose within the organization.
- It develops a basis, or standard, for allocating organizational resources.
- It provides a basis for innovating the use of the organisation's resources
- It establishes a general tone or organizational climate, to suggest a business like operation.

- It serves as a focal point for those who can identify with the organisation's purpose and direction.
- It facilitates the translation of objectives and goals into a work structure involving the assignment of tasks to responsible elements within the organization.
- It specifies organizational purposes and the translation of these purposes into goals in such a way that cost, time, and performance parameters can be assessed and controlled.

"Strategic intent provides the framework within which the firm would adopt a predetermined direction and would operate to achieve strategic objectives." In the light of this statement, discuss the elements of strategic intent.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic intent can be understood as the philosophical base of strategic management. It implies the purposes, which an organization endeavours to achieve. It is a statement that provides a perspective. Strategic intent gives an idea of what the organization desires to attain in future. Strategic intent provides the framework within which the firm would adopt a predetermined direction and would operate to achieve strategic objectives.

Elements of strategic management are as follows:

(i) Vision: Vision implies the blueprint of the company's future position. It describes where the organisation wants to land. It depicts the organisation's aspirations and provides a glimpse of what the organization would like to become in future. Every sub system of the organization is required to follow its vision.

(ii) Mission: Mission delineates the firm's business, its goals and ways to reach the goals. It explains the reason for the existence of the firm in the society. A mission statement helps to identify, 'what business the company undertakes.' It defines the present capabilities, activities, customer focus and role in society.

(iii) Business Definition: It seeks to explain the business undertaken by the firm, with respect to the customer needs, target markets, and alternative technologies. With the help of business definition, one can ascertain the strategic business choices.

(iv) Business Model: Business model, as the name implies is a strategy for the effective operation of the business, ascertaining sources of income, desired customer base, and financial details. Rival firms, operating in the same industry rely on the different business model due to their strategic choice.

(v) Goals and Objectives: These are the base of measurement. Goals are the end results, that the organization attempts to achieve. On the other hand, objectives are time-based measurable targets, which help in the accomplishment of goals. These are the end results which are to be attained with the help of an overall plan. However, in practice, no distinction is made between goals and objectives and both the terms are used interchangeably.

What is strategic vision? Describe the essentials of strategic vision.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic Vision

A strategic vision is a roadmap of a company's future – providing specifics about technology and customer focus, the geographic and product markets to be pursued, the capabilities it plans to develop, and the kind of company that management is trying to create. It helps the company to answer the question "where we are to go" and provides a convincing rationale for why this makes good business sense for the company.

A strategic vision delineates organization's aspirations for the business, providing a panoramic view of the position where the organization is going. A strategic vision points an organization in a particular direction, charts a strategic path for it to follow in preparing for the future, and molds organizational identity.

Essentials of a strategic vision

- The entrepreneurial challenge in developing a strategic vision is to think creatively about how to prepare a company for the future.
- Forming a strategic vision is an exercise in intelligent entrepreneurship.
- A well-articulated strategic vision creates enthusiasm among the members of the organization.
- The best-worded vision statement clearly illuminates the direction in which organization is headed.

Why an organisation should have a mission? What considerations are to be kept in mind while writing a good mission statement of a company?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Organization should have a mission on account of the following reasons:

- To ensure unanimity of purpose within the organization.
- To develop a basis, or standard, for allocating organizational resources.

- To provide a basis for motivating the use of the organization's resources.
- To establish a general tone or organizational climate.
- To serve as a focal point for those who can identify with the organization's purpose and direction.
- To facilitate the translation of objective and goals into a work structure involving the assignment of tasks to responsible elements within the organization.
- To specify organizational purposes and the translation of these purposes into goals in such a way that cost, time, and performance parameters can be assessed and controlled.

The following points must be considered while writing a good mission statement of a company:

(i) To establish the special identity of the business - one that typically distinct it from other similarly positioned companies.

(ii) Good mission statements should be unique to the organisation for which they are developed.

(iii) Needs which business tries to satisfy, customer groups it wishes to target and the technologies and competencies it uses and the activities it performs.

PharmaLife Global Ltd., a multinational pharmaceutical company, is formulating its long-term strategic direction. The top management prepares a document that defines the company's desired future position, outlines its long-term aspirations, and provides a clear direction for the organisation over the next decade. The document answers the question, "Where do we want to go?", inspires employees and stakeholders and shapes future strategic decisions without specifying detailed operational plans. Identify the conceptual element of strategic intent and explain its meaning and key characteristics.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The conceptual element of strategic intent referred to in the case is Strategic Vision. A strategic vision reflects the top management's views about the company's future direction and its product-customer-market-technology focus. It delineates management's aspirations for the business by providing a panoramic view of "where we are to go" and a convincing rationale for why the chosen direction makes good business sense. It points out a particular direction, charts the strategic path to be followed in the future, and helps mould the organisation's identity. A clearly articulated strategic vision communicates management's aspirations to stakeholders and steers the energies of employees towards a common direction.

Essentials of a Strategic Vision:

1. Developing a strategic vision requires management to think creatively about preparing the company for the future.

2. Forming a strategic vision is an exercise in intelligent entrepreneurship.

3. A well-articulated strategic vision creates enthusiasm among the members of the organisation.

4. The best-worded vision statement clearly illuminates the direction in which the organisation is headed. In the given case, the document outlining the company's long-term aspirations, answering "Where do we want to go?" and providing direction for the next decade represents the company's Strategic Vision.

CASE SCENARIO

DezineFabs is a fast-growing clothing brand in India. It started with a clear goal: to make stylish clothes affordable for everyone while also being mindful of the environment. The company strongly believes in three values – inclusivity, sustainability, and innovation in fashion. DezineFabs, a dynamic player in India's bustling clothing industry, offers a compelling example of how astute integration of core business principles can pave the path to triumph. DezineFabs was born with a clear vision: making stylish clothing accessible to every Indian, while minimizing their environmental impact through sustainability initiatives. Their guiding values include inclusivity, sustainability, and a forward-looking approach to fashion. In the beginning, DezineFabs emerged as a humble boutique offering affordable clothing. At that time, the clothing market was rapidly evolving, with consumers seeking affordable yet chic options. Recognizing these shifts in customer behavior, DezineFabs evolved its product range, embracing formal wear, active wear, and ethnic wear as the market matured. Their ability to comprehend customer styles was pivotal. DezineFabs conducted comprehensive market research to decode fashion trends and changing consumer preferences. This approach led to the creation of collections that resonated with their target audience. They also monitored social media and customer feedback channels, staying attuned to the evolving tastes and demands of their customers. Notably, they quickly responded to the growing demand for sustainable fashion by launching an eco-friendly clothing line.

To manage their diverse stakeholders effectively, DezineFabs tactfully classified their stakeholders. Fashion influencers and suppliers were nurtured through strategic partnerships, which not only elevated DezineFabs' brand image but also endowed them with access to cutting-edge fashion trends and premium materials. Simultaneously, they maintained transparent and responsive communication with local communities and loyal customers. By actively addressing their concerns and soliciting feedback, DezineFabs upheld a positive reputation and nurtured customer loyalty. DezineFabs' prowess laid in the ability of trend forecasting, efficient supply chain management, and robust vendor relationships. Their design team incessantly innovated to remain ahead of evolving fashion trends, allowing them to design collections that resonated deeply with their customer base. Their streamlined supply chain reduced lead times and operational costs, which translated into competitive pricing and the timely delivery of high-quality products. Strong vendor relationships provided them with a consistent supply of premium materials, further fortifying their core competences. To fuel sustainable growth, DezineFabs executed a two-pronged approach encompassing market penetration and diversification. They embarked on a journey into tier 2 and 3 cities within India, capturing the attention of urban and semi-urban demographics. Simultaneously, they ventured into international markets, setting their sights on regions where Indian fashion was gaining traction. Recognizing that growth necessitates change, DezineFabs cultivated a corporate culture that celebrated adaptability and innovation. Employees were not merely encouraged but were adequately empowered through specialized training programs, equipping them with the skills needed for seamless adaptation to new product launches and market expansions. Vigilant strategic control mechanisms underpinned DezineFabs' growth trajectory, ensuring that their expansion remained harmonized with their values and overarching objectives. Routine performance assessments and evaluative protocols equipped the organization with real-time insights. These insights empowered informed decision-making, enabling DezineFabs to adjust their strategies deftly in response to ever-evolving market dynamics, shifting customer behavior, and emerging fashion trends. DezineFabs' exceptional journey in India's clothing industry underscores the remarkable outcomes that can be realized through the seamless amalgamation of core business principles. In a world where the fashion landscape evolves ceaselessly, DezineFabs remains a beacon of affordability, sustainability, and accessibility, ensuring that fashion remains an inclusive pursuit for all. Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple-Choice Questions.

What are the elements in strategic intent of organisation?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic intent can be understood as the philosophical base of strategic management. It implies the purposes, which an organization endeavours to achieve. It is a statement that provides a perspective. Strategic intent gives an idea of what the organization desires to attain in future. Strategic intent provides the framework within which the firm would adopt a predetermined direction and would operate to achieve strategic objectives. Elements of strategic management are as follows:

(i) Vision: Vision implies the blueprint of the company's future position. It describes where the organisation wants to land. It depicts the organisation's aspirations and provides a glimps of what the organization would like to become in future. Every sub system of the organization is required to follow its vision.

(ii) Mission: Mission delineates the firm's business, its goals and ways to reach the goals. It explains the reason for the existence of the firm in the society. A mission statement helps to identify, 'what business the company undertakes.' It defines the present capabilities, activities, customer focus and role in society.

(iii) Business Definition: It seeks to explain the business undertaken by the firm, with respect to the customer needs, target markets, and alternative technologies. With the help of business definition, one can ascertain the strategic business choices.

(iv) Business Model: Business model, as the name implies is a strategy for the effective operation of the business, ascertaining sources of income, desired customer base, and financial details. Rival firms, operating in the same industry rely on the different business model due to their strategic choice.

(v) Goals and Objectives: These are the base of measurement. Goals are the end results, that the organization attempts to achieve. On the other hand, objectives are time-based measurable targets, which help in the accomplishment of goals. These are the end results which are to be attained with the help of an overall plan. However, in practice, no distinction is made between goals and objectives and both the terms are used interchangeably.

'Objectives' and 'Goals' provide meaning and sense of direction to organizational endeavour. Explain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Business organization translates their vision and mission into objectives. Objectives are open-ended attributes that denote the future states or outcomes. Goals are close-ended attributes which are precise and expressed in specific terms. Thus, the goals are more specific and translate to objectives to short term perspective.

All organizations have objectives. The pursuit of objectives is an unending process such that organizations sustain themselves. They provide meaning and sense of direction to organizational endeavour. Organizational structure and activities are designed and resources are allocated around the objectives to facilitate their achievement. They also act as benchmarks for guiding organizational activity and for evaluating how the organization is performing.

121 RTP Old P7 May 2018 Q10 old scheme

Define strategic intent. Briefly explain the elements of strategic intent.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic Management is defined as a dynamic process of formulation, implementation, evaluation, and control of strategies to realise the organization's strategic intent. Strategic intent refers to purposes for what organization strives for. Top management must d efine "what they want to do" and "why they want to do". "Why they want to do" represents strategic intent of the firm. Clarity in strategic intent is extremely important for the future success and growth of the enterprise, irrespective of its nature and size.

Strategic intent can be understood as the philosophical base of strategic management. It implies the purposes, which an organization endeavours to achieve. It is a statement that provides a perspective of the means, which will lead the organization, reach its vision in the long run. Strategic intent gives an idea of what the organization desires to attain in future.

Strategic intent provides the framework within which the firm would adopt a predetermined direction and would operate to achieve strategic objectives. Strategic intent could be in the form of vision and mission statements for the organisation at the corporate level. It could be expressed as the business definition and business model at the business level of the organisation.

Strategic intent is generally stated in broad terms but when stated in precise terms it is an expression of aims to be achieved operationally i.e., goals and objectives.

Elements of Strategic Intent

(i) Vision: Vision implies the blueprint of the company's future position. It describes where the organisation wants to land. It depicts the organisation's aspirations and provides a glimpse of what the organization would like to become in future. Every sub system of the organization is required to follow its vision.

(ii) Mission: Mission delineates the firm's business, its goals and ways to reach the goals. It explains the reason for the existence of the firm in the society. It is designed to help potential shareholders and investors understand the purpose of the company. A mission statement helps to identify, 'what business the company undertakes.' It defines the present capabilities, activities, customer focus and business makeup.

(iii) Business definition: It seeks to explain the business undertaken by the firm, with respect to the customer needs, target markets, and alternative technologies. With the help of business definition, one can ascertain the strategic business choices.

Organisational restructuring also depends upon the business definition.

(iv) Business model: Business model, as the name implies is a strategy for the effective operation of the business, ascertaining sources of income, desired customer base, and financial details. Rival firms, operating in the same industry rely on the different business model due to their strategic choice.

(v) Goals and objectives: These are the base of measurement. Goals are the end results, that the organization attempts to achieve. On the other hand, objectives are time-based measurable targets, which help in the accomplishment of goals. These are the end results which are to be attained with the help of an overall plan, over the particular period. However, in practice no distinction is made between goals and objectives and both terms are used interchangeably.

The vision, mission, business definition, and business model explain the philosophy of the organisation but the goals and objectives represent the results to be achieved in multiple areas of business.

Explain the importance of values, as one of the components of strategic intent for a company. What are the common examples of values? How values are different from intent?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Values are fundamental principles or standards that guide the behaviour and decision-making of individuals and organizations. They are at the core of strategic intent and help define a company's culture and ethical posture.

A company's values set the tone for how people think and behave, especially in situations involving dilemmas. They create a sense of shared purpose, enabling all stakeholders to align and focus on the long-term success of the company.

Values have both internal and external implications:

- Internally, they influence employee behaviour, build trust, boost morale and help in creating a consistent workplace culture.
- Externally, they impact how customers, investors and society at large perceive the company. A majority of consumers prefer companies whose values reflect their own belief systems.

Some common organizational values include Integrity, Trust, Accountability, Humility, Innovation and Diversity.

Values and Intent are two distinct concepts:

- Intent refers to the purpose of doing business – the long-term direction the company aims to pursue.
- Values are the principles and ethical standards that guide how decisions are made and how the business is conducted.

While they go hand-in-hand, values often drive intent. Therefore, values are broader and more foundational than intent.

ABC Corporation, a global technology company, is known for its innovative products and solutions. The company's strategic vision emphasizes being at the forefront of technological advancements and providing cutting-edge solutions to improve people's lives with a strong commitment to integrity and accountability in all its operations. Their mission is to create products that are user-friendly, sustainable and contribute positively to society. Values can be derived by analysing the vision and mission statements. Based on the scenario, what are the values of ABC Corporation?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Values can be derived by analysing the vision and mission statements of an organisation, as they reflect the core beliefs that guide behaviour and decision-making. Based on the given scenario, the values of ABC Corporation can be inferred by aligning its strategic vision and mission with the concept of organizational values. ABC Corporation's emphasis on being at the forefront of technological advancements highlights innovation as a core value. Its commitment to developing user-friendly products reflects a strong customer-centric approach and user focus. The focus on sustainability demonstrates the company's concern for environmental responsibility and long-term societal impact. Additionally, its aim to contribute positively to society shows a commitment to social responsibility and ethical conduct. The fact that ABC is a global technology company also implies that values like integrity and accountability are essential to maintain stakeholder trust and global compliance. These values are central to how the company functions internally and how it presents itself externally to consumers and stakeholders. These values help shape employee behaviour, build consumer trust and provide a strong foundation for long-term success. Thus, the key values of ABC Corporation are innovation, customer-centricity, sustainability, social responsibility, integrity and accountability which collectively reflect the shared purpose and guiding principles of the organisation.

CASE SCENARIO

Sneha Rao, founder and CEO of DEF Technologies, is renowned for her technological insight and visionary leadership style. She cultivates a culture of collaboration, continuous learning, and innovative problem-solving, encouraging her employees to think outside the box and embrace new challenges. Her exceptional ability to foresee technological trends and navigate complex market dynamics has propelled DEF Technologies to impressive growth over the past decade.

Sneha started DEF Technologies in 2010 as a small software development firm. With a vision to transform DEF Technologies into a leading tech company, she initially focused on developing custom software solutions for local businesses. However, intense competition and limited market demand led to financial difficulties. Undeterred, Sneha pivoted the business towards developing cloud-based solutions, leveraging the growing trend of digital transformation. This strategic shift, along with aggressive marketing, helped DEF Technologies capture a significant market share and become a leader in cloud services, setting new industry standards.

In 2015, Sneha's brother, Raj, joined the company, and together they crafted an ambitious expansion strategy. DEF Technologies entered the global market, partnering with international tech firms to launch a new line of AI-driven cybersecurity solutions. This venture was highly successful, establishing DEF Technologies as a global brand and a key player in the cybersecurity industry.

Raj then led the company's diversification into the healthcare sector with a new brand, MedTech Solutions. Recognizing the potential for technology to revolutionize healthcare, Sneha and Raj focused on developing affordable telemedicine platforms and AI-driven diagnostic tools. Their approach disrupted the market, providing high-quality healthcare solutions at lower costs and gaining widespread trust from healthcare providers and patients alike. MedTech Solutions experienced rapid growth, especially during the COVID-19 pandemic, as demand for remote healthcare services surged.

At the beginning of 2023, DEF Technologies launched another new business, GreenTech Innovations, to address environmental challenges through technology. DEF Technologies continues to explore new opportunities and ventures to stay at the forefront of the tech industry.

CASE SCENARIO

Chantele, a management consultant from Rome (Italy) was on an official tour of Rajasthan, when she realised the tourism boom that the state experiences from around the globe. More surprising for her was the price offering of major cafes and lounges which were about 1/6th of what was charged in her city Rome. Being a business enthusiast, she decided to explore the business potential in Udaipur for a year.

She had five major areas to learn about and plan;

- Existing Competition
- Location and Rental of her Lounge
- Trainable Team of Individuals (english speaking)
- Raw Material Sourcing and Pricing
- Promotion

Existing competition was high as people were already serving foreign tourists and even tourists liked the desi touch and feel. However, Chantele saw the segment of customers who were willing to find travel partners for their further trips. They would enjoy a cup of coffee, or a jug of cooler to chit chat and build a network on their vacation. For location, she got lucky with an old property just on the lake side but had to spend a little over budget to renovate even though she took multiple quotations from designers. The rentals in Udaipur have always been high, but she was confident of the cash flow from the business so decided to take the risk.

Rajasthani youth is well trained in english, french and german, and that came as a blessing for her. She was able to employ three girls (customer facing) and two boys (for logistics). Raw Material was a bit tricky to handle though. Good quality coffee beans and fruits were available only from Delhi and Jaipur, which had its own cost of transportation. Milk being a main component for most of the things on the menu needed to be of prime quality. For fruits, she found an alternative in sourcing from nearby villages through local agents, while the milk and coffee had to come from Delhi.

Promotion had been her area of expertise, and this came in handy as she executed a fool proof digital promotion strategy for her lounge. She named it Aroma Lounge, as “A” would give top results in alphabetic order of search by customers online. Within three months itself she managed to get great reviews on major travel websites and thus, loads of customers.

The business was good, cashflows were strong, brand equity gained momentum and Chantele now already plans to open two more branches in the state.

Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple-Choice Questions which are as follows:

Q1(A)1 1 mark out of syllabus

Even though Chantele knew she was giving higher rent for the location of her lounge, which of the following strategies helped her take that risk?

- A Marketing Strategy
- B Financial Strategy
- C Negotiation Strategy
- D Supply Chain Strategy

Q1(A)2 2 marks

Suppose Chantele decides to expand her business through franchises across different states that attract major foreign tourists. For this she combines different retailers to source from and makes her main employees as trainers to train more local youth. Which element of strategic intent would this strategy need to focus on and what strategy would best suit her, given the fact that she strongly believes in incremental growth over exponential growth?

- A It would need focus on Goals & Objectives and the strategy that would best suit her would be Growth Strategy.
- B It would need focus on Mission and the strategy that would best suit her would be Combination Strategy.
- C It would need focus on Business Model and the strategy that would best suit her would be Stability Strategy.

D It would need focus on Vision and the strategy that would best suit her would be Growth Strategy.

Q1(A)3 2 marks out of syllabus

For Chantele, pricing was an issue as she wanted to deliver international standards of quality at traveler friendly prices. Cost plus pricing was one of the options she considered but quickly realised its shortcomings. Which of the following could be a major reason for not selecting cost plus pricing?

A Outsourcing of Products from Delhi was already costly

B Labour cost was low, but training cost was high so allocation of co st was difficult

C The cost of fruits fluctuates a lot, and hence cost plus also fluctuated variably

D The segment is highly competitive and her margin on cost was irrelevant as customers already knew comparable prices

Q1(A)4 2 marks

Suppose a big hotel chain which has no cafe business as yet, acquires Aroma Lounge and its franchises. Can it group these cafes as an SBU? Which factors would be considered for the same? (i) No, they cannot be called as an SBU, as the cafe is not a separate business but same line of business as hotels (ii) Yes, as it has its own set of distinct competitors and strategy (iii) Yes, as it can be subdivided from the core business in terms of functionalities and objectives (iv) No, as an SBU shall have a CEO and its set of business functions and Aroma Cafes aren't that big to be categorised as an SBU

- A Only (i) is correct
- B Both (i) and (iv) are correct
- C Only (ii) is correct
- D Both (ii) and (iii) are correct

Q1(A)5 1 mark

For her vendors, Chantele had a clear thought and she iterated to them as well. The ideology was to foster a long term relationship so as to introduce high quality innovative products that would benefit the customers and other stakeholders?

Distinguish between the following:

Vision & Mission

ICAI'S ANSWER

A Mission statement tells you the fundamental purpose of the organisation. It concentrates on the present. It defines the customer and the critical processes. It informs you of the desired level of performance. On the other hand, a vision statement outlines what the organisation wants to be. It concentrates on the future. It is a source of inspiration. It provides clear decision-making criteria. A mission statement can resemble a vision statement in a few companies, but that can be a grave mistake. It can confuse people. Following are the major differences between vision and mission:

1. The vision states the future direction while the mission states the ongoing activities of the organisation.

2. The vision statement can galvanize the people to achieve defined objectives, even if they are stretch objectives, provided the vision is specific, measurable, achievable, relevant and time bound. A mission statement provides a path to realize the vision in line with its values. These statements have a direct bearing on the bottom line and success of the organisation.

3. A vision statement defines the purpose or broader goal for being in existence or in the business and can remain the same for decades if crafted well while a mission statement is more specific in terms of both the future state and the time frame. Mission describes what will be achieved if the organisation is successful.

Mission statement of a company focuses on the question: 'who we are' and 'what we do'. Explain briefly.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A company's mission statement is typically focused on its present business scope — "who we are and what we do"; mission statements broadly describe an organizations present capabilities, customer focus activities and business makeup. An organisation's mission states what customers it serves, what need it satisfies, and what type of product it offers. It is an expression of the growth ambition of the organisation. It helps organisation to set its own special identity, business emphasis and path for development. Mission amplifies what brings the organisation to this business or why it is there, what existence it seeks and what purpose it seeks to achieve as a business organisation.

What is strategic vision?

ICAI'S ANSWER

A strategic vision delineates organisation's aspirations for the business, providing a panoramic view of the position where the organisation is going. A strategic vision points an organization in a particular direction, charts a strategic path for it to follow in preparing for the future, and moulds organizational identity. A Strategic vision is a road map of a company's future – providing specifics about technology and customer focus, the geographic and product markets to be pursued, the capabilities it plans to develop, and the kind of company that management is trying to create.

Outline the main levels of management generally found in an organization. Also explain the types of networks of relationship between these levels and amongst the same levels of a business.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Main Levels of Management in an Organization In a typical large organization, there are three main levels of management:

1. Corporate Level: This includes the Chief Executive Officer (CEO), senior executives, and the board of directors. Their primary responsibility is to oversee the organization as a whole, make strategic decisions, define the mission and goals, allocate resources, and manage the corporate portfolio of businesses.

2. Business Level: This level consists of general managers responsible for specific Strategic Business Units (SBUs). They translate corporate-level strategies into concrete plans for their respective divisions, focusing on creating competitive advantages and achieving profitability.

3. Functional Level: This level encompasses managers responsible for specific functions such as finance, marketing, and human resources. They develop functional strategies aligned with the objectives set by the corporate and business-level managers and are crucial for implementing strategies effectively.

Types of Networks of Relationship Between Management Levels

1. Functional and Divisional Relationship: This independent relationship operates where each function or division is managed independently, with business-level managers reporting to corporate-level managers. For example, finance and marketing functions operate under their respective heads, who report to the division head.

2. Horizontal Relationship: This flat structure promotes equality among all employees, facilitating openness and transparency. All positions, from top management to staff-level employees, share the same hierarchical status, enhancing idea-sharing and innovation, particularly in startups.

3. Matrix Relationship: This complex structure combines various departments into project-based teams. It features multiple business-level managers for each functional team, making it suitable for large organizations with diverse operations, enabling efficient management of projects across different functions. These levels and their relationships help streamline decision-making and strategy implementation within an organization, fostering a cohesive approach to achieving business goals.

"Management at all levels develop strategies". Explain the different strategies formulated at different levels of management.

ICAI'S ANSWER

At different levels of management, various strategies are formulated to align with organizational goals and objectives which are as follows:

Corporate-Level Strategies: At the highest level of management, corporate-level strategies are developed. These strategies focus on the overall direction and scope of the entire organization.

Major corporate-level strategies include Stability strategies, Growth strategies, Retrenchment strategies and Combination strategies.

Business-Level Strategies: Business-level strategies are developed by middle-level management and focus on individual business units or divisions within the organization. These strategies aim to achieve competitive advantage within specific markets. Common business-level strategies include Cost Leadership, Differentiation and Focus strategies.

Functional-Level Strategies: Functional-level strategies are formulated by lower-level management or department heads responsible for specific functional areas, such as marketing, finance, operations, or human resources. These strategies align with business-level strategies and focus on achieving functional objectives. These strategies include Marketing strategies, Financial strategies, Operations strategies, Research & Development strategy and Human Resource strategies.

In conclusion, management at all levels develops strategies that align with the organization's goals. Corporate-level strategies determine the overall direction, business-level strategies focus on competitive advantage within specific markets, and functional-level strategies aim to achieve functional objectives in support of the broader strategies.

"Is it imperative to segregate top level strategies into viable functional plans and policies?" Do you agree with this statement? Support your answer with reason.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yes, it is imperative to segregate the top-level strategies into viable functional plans and policies that are compatible with each other. Major strategies must be translated to lower levels to give holistic strategic direction to an organisation. Functional strategies provide details to business strategy & govern as to how key activities of the business will be managed. The reasons why functional strategies are needed can be enumerated as follows:

- Functional strategies lay down clearly what is to be done at the functional level. They provide a sense of direction to the functional staff.
- They are aimed at facilitating the implementation of corporate strategies and the business strategies formulation at the business level.
- They act as basis for controlling activities in the different functional areas of business.
- They help in bringing harmony and coordination as they are formulated to achieve major strategies.
- These strategies help the functional managers in handling similar situations occurring in different functional areas in a consistent manner.

CASE SCENARIO

"The world needs to move fast, at a speed of innovation that makes 6 months look like 60 years" - Jayanta R., the founder of Hepha.io, while speaking at a technology vision conference at Hyderabad. In 2009, Jayanta was working as a machine learning research scholar at a US college, when he struck upon an idea of technological research being automated. He thought - what could happen if computers could innovate themselves. The world will change forever. His idea took shape of a boutique AI consultancy in 2020, Hepha.io. Hepha.io had one vision, to speed up innovation. And for this they hired the most affluent research scholars from across the globe - all virtually, all paid in equity, with no real organizational structure. The offering to customers was simple - it was futuristic, high value added to existing operations and could be applied to a lot of other processes. The company was doing great in terms of customer acquisition and profitability, about 150 of Fortune 500 companies had relations with Hepha.io, bringing in about $12 million in earnings. But the company was disappointed by their own speed of growth, which was contrary to their vision and thereby a joke at many conferences that hurt Jayanta immensely. Hepha.io had by now been seen in the west, as an aggressive, crazy company that wanted to change the world with computers, without caring much about the harms of massive heat generating servers being built on agricultural land, damaging crops, weather and even harming social setups by shattering employment. To move away from west and speed things up internally, they moved their focus to India, the land of technically skilled labor force with ease of doing business.

Entering India helped them dodge environmental concerns, but future scare of unemployment was a great threat. Jayanta met many political influencers and industrialists but could not attract much attention. Until Harsh G., the young scientist of LifeMind Technologies, met him in Mumbai, and offered to help. LifeMind Tech, had a long running reputation of being a socially awake enterprise, which reinvested its earnings in developing India. Jayanta could not have asked for a better partner in India. This partnership helped Hepha.io to overcome a lot of political backlash and even the sharpest minds in the Indian tech space seemed to join the company without any employment apprehensions. What also helped Jayanta realize under Harsh's guidance was that innovation is necessary to enter the future but not at the cost of destroying the present. Hepha.io has since then opted for India as its Asia headquarters, driven by the purpose of holistic innovation. Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple Choice Questions.

Q1(i)

After the move to India, Hepha.io decided to align innovation with sustainability under the theme of "Holistic Innovation." Which level of strategy does this shift primarily represent?

- A Corporate level strategy
- B Business level strategy
- C Functional level strategy
- D Operational level strategy

Q1(ii)

The strategic move by Hepha.io to shift its existing AI services into the new Indian geographical market is a clear application of which Grand Strategy?

- A Market Penetration
- B Market Development
- C Product Development
- D Retrenchment

Q1(iii)

Hepha.io's initial structure, characterized by a highly dispersed team of scholars, relies heavily on coordination through technology and contracts. This structural design is most accurately identified as:

- A Divisional Structure

B Matrix Structure

C Network Structure

D Strategic Business Unit (SBU) Structure

Q1(iv)

The public perception and ethical backlash concerning environmental damage and technological unemployment, which severely impacted Hepha.io's operations in the West, are analysed under which factor of the PESTLE analysis?

A Political

B Technological

C Economic

D Socio-Cultural

Hepha.io’s founding premise of offering "futuristic, high value add" AI solutions as its primary client appeal is an example of establishing a Competitive Advantage through:

A Cost Leadership, by optimising production costs.

B Differentiation, by providing a uniquely valuable product.

C Focused Cost Leadership, by targeting a narrow segment with the lowest price.

Tech Innovators Inc., a rapidly expanding technology company, aims to lead in artificial intelligence (AI) and machine learning (ML). With recent growth, the company is evaluating which organizational structure will best support its vision for innovation and leadership in AI technologies. They are considering three options: the Functional and Divisional Relationship for specialization, the Horizontal Relationship for flat, collaborative management, and the Matrix Relationship for cross-functional teams. Which of these relationships—Functional and Divisional, Horizontal, or Matrix—will most effectively achieve Tech Innovators Inc.'s strategic goals, and why?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The Matrix Relationship is the most effective structure for Tech Innovators Inc. to achieve its vision of leadership in AI technologies. This structure promotes cross-functional collaboration, essential for managing complex AI projects and fostering innovation. By integrating expertise from various departments into temporary, task-based teams, the Matrix Relationship supports dynamic project management and aligns well with the company's strategic goals for advancing AI technologies. Despite its complexity, this approach provides the flexibility and collaboration necessary for a leading-edge AI and ML focus.

Relationship
Functional and Divisional

Benefits
Specialization, clear management of functions and products.

Drawbacks
Potential for departmental isolation, limited collaboration.

Suitability for AI Leadership
Less effective for cross-functional AI projects.

Relationship Horizontal

Benefits
Open communication, encourages innovation and fast idea sharing.

Drawbacks
Hard to scale, unclear roles and responsibilities.

Suitability for AI Leadership
Suitable for startups, less for large AI initiatives.

Relationship
Matrix

Benefits
Facilitates cross-functional collaboration, flexible resource management for complex projects.

Drawbacks
Complex reporting structures, potential conflicts.

Suitability for AI Leadership
Ideal for managing diverse, innovative AI projects.

What is strategic decision making? What tasks are performed by a Strategic Manager?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Decision making is a managerial process of selecting the best course of action out of several alternative courses for the purpose of accomplishment of the organisational goals. Decisions may be operational i.e., which relate to general day-to-day operations. They may also be strategic in nature. According to Jauch and Glueck "Strategic decisions encompass the definition of the business, products to be handled, markets to be served, functions to be performed and major policies needed for the organisation to execute these decisions to achieve the strategic objectives."

The primary task of the strategic manager is conceptualizing, designing and executing company strategies. For this purpose, his tasks include:

- Defining the mission and goals of the organisation.
- Determining what businesses, it should be in.
- Allocating resources among the different businesses.
- Formulating and implementing strategies that span individual businesses.

- Providing leadership for the organisation.

Mr. Batra is working in Apex Corporation, a leading manufacturer of electronic products, is considering whether to enter the fitness trackers and smartwatches technology market. The market is growing rapidly, but the competition is fierce. Mr. Batra and his team has to decide whether to invest in research and development for fitness trackers and smartwatches technology or to focus on their core products. The decision could have significant implications for the company's future growth and profitability.

Where will you place Mr. Batra in organisational hierarchy? What are the dimensions of the decisions being taken by him?

ICAI'S ANSWER

As the decisions taken by Mr. Batra have organisation wide impact, involves large commitments and have implication on the future, he is at the top level in organisational hierarchy. These characteristics also indicate that he is taking strategic decisions in the organisation. The major dimensions of strategic decisions are as follows:

- Strategic decisions require top-management involvement: Strategic decisions involve thinking in totality of the organisation. Hence, problems calling for strategic decisions require to be considered by the top management.
- Strategic decisions involve commitment of organisational resources: Strategic decisions to launch a new project by a firm requires allocation of huge funds and assignment of a large number of employees.
- Strategic decisions necessitate consideration of factors in the firm's external environment: Strategic focus in organisation involves orienting its internal environment to the changes of external environment.
- Strategic decisions are likely to have a significant impact on the long-term prosperity of the firm: Generally, the results of strategic implementation are seen on a long-term basis and not immediately.
- Strategic decisions are future oriented: Strategic thinking involves predicting the future environmental conditions and how to orient for the changed conditions.
- Strategic decisions usually have major multifunctional or multi-business consequences: As they involve organisation in totality, they Dharam Singh, the procurement department head of Cyclix, a mountain biking equipment company, was recently promoted to look after sales department along with procurement department. His seniors at the corporate level have always liked his way of leadership and are assures that he would ensure the implementation of policies and strategies to the best of his capacity but have never involved him in decision making for the company. Do you think this is the right approach? Validate your answer with logical reasoning around management levels and decision making.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Functional managers provide most of the information that makes it possible for business and corporate level managers to formulate realistic and attainable strategies. This is so because functional managers like Dharam Singh are closer to the customer than the typical general manager is. A functional manager may generate important ideas that subsequently may become major strategies for the company. Thus, it is important for general managers to listen closely to the ideas of their functional managers and in voice them in decision making.

An equally great responsibility for managers at the operational level is strategy implementation: the execution of corporate and business level plans, and if they are involved in formulation, the clarity of thoughts while implementation can benefit too. Thus, the approach of Cylcix Corporate management is not right. They should involve Dharam Singh, as well as other functional managers too in strategic management.

Explain the difference between three levels of strategy formulation.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A typical large organization is a multidivisional organisation that competes in several different businesses. It has separate self-contained divisions to manage each of these. There are three levels of strategy in management of business - corporate, business, and functional.

The corporate level of management consists of the chief executive officer and other top level executives. These individuals occupy the apex of decision making within the organization. The role of corporate-level managers is to oversee the development of strategies for the whole organization. This role includes defining the mission and goals of the organization, determining what businesses it should be in, allocating resources among the different businesses and so on rests at the Corporate Level.

The development of strategies for individual business areas is the responsibility of the general managers in these different businesses or business level managers. A business unit is a self-contained division with its own functions - for example, finance, production, and marketing. The strategic role of business-level manager, head of the division, is to translate the general statements of direction and intent that come from the corporate level into concrete strategies for individual businesses.

Functional-level managers are responsible for the specific business functions or operations such as human resources, purchasing, product development, customer service, and so on. Thus, a functional manager's sphere of responsibility is generally confined to one organizational activity, whereas general managers oversee the operation of a whole company or division.

XYZ Pharmaceuticals plans to launch a new line of affordable medicines. The top management defines long-term expansion plans, while different product divisions such as generics and specialty drugs operate independently under separate division heads. Each division has its own functional teams like marketing, HR and production reporting to respective heads. Recently, the company has also started forming cross functional teams for new product launches where employees report to more than one manager. In this context, identify and explain the different types of network relationships existing in the organisation and briefly comment on their suitability.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The corporate level decides what the business wants to achieve, the business level formulates plans, and the functional level executes them, with different types of relationships linking these levels.

Functional and Divisional Relationship: In XYZ Pharmaceuticals, this relationship is evident as different product divisions such as generics and specialty drugs operate independently, each headed by a division head, with separate functional teams like marketing, HR and production under them. This independent structure ensures specialisation, clarity in roles and efficient management of diverse product lines, making it highly suitable for the organisation.

Horizontal Relationship: Elements of horizontal relationship can be observed through coordination and idea sharing across teams at similar hierarchical levels. This promotes openness, transparency and innovation in the organisation. However, since the pharmaceutical industry is complex and highly regulated, this relationship is not dominant but still useful in encouraging collaboration and faster decision-making.

Matrix Relationship: The company also follows a matrix relationship as it forms cross-functional teams for new product launches, where employees report to more than one manager (functional and project heads). This grid-like structure enhances flexibility, coordination and effective utilisation of resources, making it highly suitable for project-based work, although it may lead to complexity in reporting and authority.

The Board of Directors of Gromax Industries Ltd., a diversified conglomerate with six business units—Agritech, Pharmaceuticals, Construction Materials, Consumer Electronics, Renewable Energy and Logistics—recently held a strategic review meeting. The board discussed allocating the highest capital budget for the next five years to the most promising business unit to enhance long-term shareholder value. They also considered divesting the loss-making Logistics division and reviewed a unified dividend policy for the entire group. These decisions will significantly shape the firm's long-term direction and resource distribution. Which level of strategy is being addressed? Explain with reasons.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The strategic decisions described in the case represent the Corporate-Level Strategy.

Corporate-level strategy is formulated by the top management, Board of Directors or corporate headquarters and it defines the overall scope, long-term direction and resource allocation for the entire organization. It involves decisions regarding the portfolio of businesses, entry into or exit from sectors, allocation of financial resources among business units and policies affecting the whole enterprise such as investment, growth, stability, retrenchment and dividend decisions.

In the case of Gromax Industries Ltd., the Board is deciding which business unit will receive the highest capital allocation, evaluating divestment of the poorly performing Logistics unit and framing a common dividend policy for the group. These decisions influence the future growth path, competitive positioning and overall value maximization of the conglomerate. Therefore, the decisions clearly fall under Corporate-Level Strategy, as they determine the strategic direction and structure of the company as a whole rather than focusing on individual business operations or functional activities.

Although functional-level managers operate at the lower end of the management hierarchy, their responsibilities are vital to ensure the smooth and successful functioning of a business. Discuss the importance of functional-level managers in achieving organisational objectives.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Functional-level managers handle specific business functions such as HR, purchasing, product development, accounts, sales and customer service.

- They operate at the bottom of the management hierarchy and follow the instructions and guidelines issued by business and corporate-level managers.

- Though not responsible for the organisation's overall performance, they play a major strategic role by developing functional strategies that support the strategic objectives set at higher levels.
- They provide crucial operational and customer-related information that enables business- and corporate-level general managers to formulate realistic, practical and effective strategies.
- Because they work closely with frontline staff and customers, functional managers gain first-hand insights that may lead to new ideas and improvements, sometimes becoming major strategic initiatives for the company.
- They play an equally important role in strategy implementation, ensuring that corporate and business-level plans are executed effectively at the operational level.

XYZ Enterprises operates in multiple industries. Its automobile division functions independently, with separate teams for electric and fuel-based vehicles. The IT division follows a structure where employees report to both project heads and department managers for various software projects. Meanwhile, its startup incubator encourages open collaboration among employees at all levels. Identify the network relationships used in XYZ Enterprises' divisions and explain why they are appropriate.

ICAI'S ANSWER

XYZ Enterprises employs different network relationships across its divisions to optimize efficiency and innovation.

- Automobile Division – Functional and Divisional Relationship: The automobile division operates independently, with distinct teams handling electric and fuel-based vehicles. Each division is managed by a business-level head who directly reports to the corporate-level management. This structure ensures clear accountability, specialization, and focused decision-making. By maintaining independent divisions, XYZ Enterprises can cater to different market segments effectively.

- IT Division – Matrix Relationship: The IT division follows a matrix structure where employees report to both project heads and functional managers. This setup allows for efficient resource utilization, as employees contribute to multiple projects while maintaining alignment with their respective departments. The matrix relationship helps manage complex software development projects that require cross-functional expertise, ensuring seamless collaboration among teams like development, marketing, and finance.
- Startup Incubator – Horizontal Relationship: The startup incubator promotes a horizontal structure where all employees, regardless of hierarchy, collaborate and share ideas openly. This nurtures transparency, quick decision-making, and innovation, which are essential for startups. Since speed and adaptability are crucial in early-stage ventures, this relationship structure ensures that creative solutions are implemented without bureaucratic delays.

By adopting these network relationships, XYZ Enterprises maximizes efficiency, agility, and innovation across its diverse operations.

CASE SCENARIO

EcoForge, a startup specializing in eco-friendly building materials crafted from agricultural waste, entered the highly competitive manufacturing industry with a vision of promoting sustainability. Despite its innovative approach, the company faced significant challenges as a new entrant, including high production costs, limited market visibility, regulatory hurdles, and fierce competition from established players. However, through strategic planning and effective execution, EcoForge successfully navigated these obstacles and positioned itself for sustainable growth.

The company's leadership recognized the importance of understanding its internal strengths and weaknesses, along with external opportunities and threats. This analysis revealed EcoForge's core advantage in sustainability and innovation, contrasted with scalability issues and market pressure from cheaper alternatives. Additionally, market analysis uncovered the potential of urban housing projects as an opportunity, while intense competition posed a significant threat.

EcoForge's leadership focused on creating unique value propositions by emphasizing its eco-friendly materials. This differentiation helped the company appeal to environmentally conscious builders and developers. To expand its market reach, EcoForge adopted strategies to deepen its presence in existing markets and explore new ones. Concurrently, it analyzed the industry landscape and identified the critical influence of regulatory policies and socio-cultural factors shaping consumer preferences.

Internally, EcoForge implemented structural and cultural changes to enhance its operational efficiency and responsiveness. By adopting a Strategic Business Unit (SBU) model, the company streamlined its decision-making process, allowing each product line to adapt quickly to market demands.

Recognizing the need for collaborative leadership, EcoForge's CEO, Ms. Aarti Mehra, invested in leadership training programs for senior managers. This shifted the company's culture from hierarchical to team-driven, encouraging innovation and cross-functional collaboration.

To enhance its competitiveness, EcoForge optimized its production and supply chain processes by addressing inefficiencies and partnering with technology providers. These efforts significantly reduced costs and improved product quality. Simultaneously, the company pursued green certifications and localized marketing efforts to build brand recognition, attracting environmentally conscious clients. Over three years, these initiatives enabled EcoForge to expand into new markets, secure partnerships with leading developers, and increase its revenue by 40%.

By integrating market analysis, operational improvements, and a focus on cost efficiency, EcoForge transitioned from a struggling startup to a leader in sustainable building materials, setting a benchmark for innovation and environmental stewardship in the industry.

CASE SCENARIO

Galaxy Enterprises Limited (GEL) operates as a diversified conglomerate with a significant presence in various industries, including electronics, packaged foods, textiles, heavy machinery, and renewable energy. Leveraging its substantial free reserves of ₹85,000 crores, GEL has built a strong brand reputation, largely driven by its market leadership across multiple sectors.

In the renewable energy sector, GEL has been the industry leader for over 15 years. The division's recent performance has been exceptional. A significant market development occurred when two competitors, Nova Green Energy Limited and Zenith

Solar Limited – previously ranked second and third in market share, respectively – merged to create a new entity, Synergy Renewables Ltd (SRL). Following the merger, SRL has claimed the top spot in market share, intensifying competition.

Against this backdrop, the Chairman of GEL convened a strategic meeting with the Board of Directors, divisional heads, marketing executives, and the Group CFO. The meeting focused on formulating growth strategies for the renewable energy division, identifying opportunities for diversification, and announcing an interim dividend in honour of GEL's platinum jubilee celebrations.

Mr. Arvind Malhotra, CEO of the renewable energy division, emphasized the industry's slow pace of modernization compared to global standards. He highlighted the potential in emerging product categories, such as next-generation solar panels, energy storage systems, and advanced wind turbines. He proposed a modernization initiative requiring an investment of ₹7,000 crores. This transformation is projected to reduce operational costs by 20% and minimize wastage by 12%.

The CFO presented an analysis revealing that competitors are unlikely to invest in significant upgrades or expansions for the next 6–8 years due to financial constraints. In response, the Board approved the modernization initiative and allocated an additional ₹1,500 crores to strengthen the division's supply chain.

Another proposal discussed was GEL's entry into the electric vehicle (EV) segment. The Board approved this diversification strategy, allocating ₹8,000 crores to establish a foothold in this rapidly growing market. Additionally, the Board authorized the distribution of an interim dividend of ₹75 per share to commemorate GEL's platinum jubilee.

In preparing for these strategic initiatives, the Board also evaluated key stakeholders to determine their influence and interest. Shareholders and the Board of Directors emerged as primary stakeholders with both high influence and interest, necessitating active engagement to secure their support. Regulatory authorities were recognized as influential but less interested in the immediate plans, requiring regular updates to ensure compliance. Customers and employees, while not as powerful, were identified as highly interested stakeholders, particularly concerning the renewable energy division's modernization and the entry into the EV market.

Q1(A)(i) 2 marks

GEL has approved significant investments in modernizing its renewable energy division and entering the electric vehicle segment. Analyze the level of strategy these decisions represent and identify the correct justification for your answer.

A Functional level, as these are related to operational improvements within the renewable energy division.

B Business level, as these initiatives align with the goals of a single division to gain a competitive edge.

C Corporate level, as they involve decisions impacting the overall portfolio and diversification of GEL.

D Operational level, as these focus on day-to-day activities within the divisions.

Q1(A)(ii) 2 marks

With the merger of Nova Green Energy Limited and Zenith Solar Limited into Synergy Renewables Ltd (SRL), how does this development influence GEL's strategic priorities in the renewable energy sector under Porter's Five Forces framework?

A The merger reduces the threat of substitutes by consolidating competing technologies.

B It increases the bargaining power of buyers by providing them with a stronger alternative supplier.

C It heightens the intensity of industry rivalry by creating a stronger competitor with greater market share.

D The merger strengthens the bargaining power of suppliers due to greater reliance on key inputs.

Q1(A)(iii) 2 marks

GEL's decision to enter the EV market represents a diversification strategy. Evaluate which type of diversification strategy is being pursued and the reasoning behind this classification.

A. Concentric diversification, as the EV market shares synergies with renewable energy technologies.

B. Vertical integration, as GEL seeks to integrate upstream or downstream activities in the automotive value chain.

C. Horizontal diversification, as GEL expands into a market unrelated to its existing renewable energy operations.

D. Conglomerate diversification, as GEL enters an entirely unrelated and independent business segment.

Q1(A)(iv) 2 marks

GEL identified shareholders and the Board of Directors as key stakeholders. Analyze the rationale for classifying them as both high influence and high interest and how this influences strategic communication.

A. They directly impact compliance with regulatory standards, necessitating regular updates.

B. Their vested interest in dividends and long-term value creation makes their engagement essential for approval of key initiatives.

C They represent the end consumers whose perceptions directly influence GEL's market reputation.

D Their role in operational execution requires constant communication and support for strategy implementation.

Q1(A)(v) 2 marks

By approving modernization in renewable energy and diversification into EVs, what corporate strategy is GEL pursuing, and how does it position the company as per Ansoff's product market growth matrix?

A Cost leadership, to lower operational expenses and offer competitive pricing.

B Product differentiation, by leveraging innovation in both existing and new markets.

C Market penetration, through deeper investments in existing product lines.

D Market expansion and diversification, to capture growth opportunities across unrelated industries.

Swati is the marketing manager at a software company. She is responsible for developing and implementing marketing strategies for the company's products. Swati leads a team of marketing professionals and works closely with the product development and sales teams to ensure that the company's products are effectively promoted in the market. She also analyzes market trends and customer feedback to refine the marketing strategies. Which level is she working at, discuss the roles and responsibilities of this level in organization?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Swati operates at the functional level of management, specifically as the marketing manager at a software company. Functional managers like Swati oversee specific departments or functions within an organization, such as marketing, finance, or operations. Their primary responsibilities include implementing corporate strategies and policies within their area of expertise and ensuring that daily operations are conducted efficiently and effectively.

In Swati's case, as a marketing manager, her role involves developing and executing marketing strategies for the company's products. This includes leading a team of marketing professionals, collaborating with product development and sales teams, and analyzing market trends and customer feedback to refine strategies. By working closely with these teams, Swati ensures that the company's products are effectively promoted in the market and that marketing efforts align with overall business goals.

Functional managers like Swati play a critical role in the organization by bridging the gap between corporate strategy and daily operations. They are responsible for translating high-level strategic goals into actionable plans for their departments and ensuring that these plans are executed effectively. Additionally, they are often key decision-makers within their areas of responsibility, making strategic choices that impact on the company's success. Overall, Swati's role as a marketing manager exemplifies the importance of functional managers in driving the success of their organizations.

Distinguish between the three levels of strategy formulation.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A typical large organization is a multidivisional organisation that competes in several different businesses. It has separate self-contained divisions to manage each of these. There are three levels of strategy in management of business - corporate, business, and functional.

The corporate level of management consists of the chief executive officer and other top level executives. These individuals occupy the apex of decision making within the organization. The role of corporate-level managers is to oversee the development of strategies for the whole organization . This role includes defining the mission and goals of the organization, determining what businesses it should be in, allocating resources among the different businesses and so on rests at the Corporate Level.

The development of strategies for individual business areas is the responsibility of the general managers in these different businesses or business level managers. A business unit is a self - contained division with its own functions - for example, finance, production, and marketing. The strategic role of business-level manager, head of the division, is to translate the general statements of direction and intent that come from the corporate level into concrete strategies for individual businesses.

Functional-level managers are responsible for the specific business functions or operations such as human resources, purchasing, product development, customer service, and so on. Thus, a functional manager's sphere of responsibility is generally confined to one organizational activity, whereas general managers oversee the operation of a whole company or division.

"Beyond the basic need to grow modern organizations are driven by a mix of market inadequacy resource needs and the collapse of international barriers." Analyse the various reasons why companies choose to globalise their operations.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Globalisation refers to the process of expanding business operations beyond domestic boundaries into international markets. Companies choose to globalise their operations due to various strategic, economic and competitive reasons. Reasons for Globalisation of Business

1. Need for Growth: The foremost reason for internationalisation is the need to grow. Organizations expand globally in search of new business opportunities, higher sales and greater earnings.

2. Shrinking Time and Distance: Rapid technological developments, faster communication, speedier transportation and increased financial flows have reduced geographical barriers and made global operations easier.

3. Inadequacy of Domestic Markets: Domestic markets are often not sufficient for long-term growth. Companies enter international markets where competition may be less intense and growth opportunities may be higher.

4. Availability of Resources: Businesses globalise to access reliable and cheaper sources of raw materials, skilled labour and talent pools available in foreign countries.

5. Reduction in Transportation Costs: Companies establish overseas manufacturing plants near target markets to reduce transportation costs, delivery time and logistics expenses.

6. Expansion of Foreign Markets: When foreign markets grow substantially, organizations establish overseas production and sales units to increase sales volume and improve cash flows.

7. Growth of Service Sector and Regional Integration: The growing importance of the service sector and regional economic integration among countries encourage firms to expand internationally.

8. Collapse of International Trade Barriers: Reduction in trade tariffs, customs barriers and government restrictions has increased the flow of international business and encouraged globalization.

9. Formation of Strategic Alliances: Globalization enables companies from different countries to form strategic alliances to face technological and economic challenges and leverage competitive advantages.

Thus, modern organizations globalise their operations to achieve growth, access resources, reduce costs, enhance competitiveness and exploit opportunities arising from technological and economic integration across nations.

"A close and continuous interaction between a business and its environment helps in strengthening the business firm and using its resources more effectively." Explain Business environment and discuss how does the interaction between a business and its environment helps the business firm.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The term business environment refers to all external factors, influences, or situations that in some way affect business decisions, plans, and operations. It is highly dynamic and continuously evolving. Organizational success depends not only on its internal abilities but also on its relationship with the external environment.

Interaction between Business and Environment: A close and continuous interaction strengthens the business firm and enables effective utilization of resources in the following ways: i. Determine opportunities and threats: The interaction between the business and its environment would explain opportunities and threats to the business. It helps to find new needs and wants of the consumers, changes in laws, changes in social behaviours and tells what new products the competitors are bringing in the market to attract consumers. ii. Give direction for growth: The interaction with the environment enables the business to identify the areas for growth and expansion of their activities. Once the business is aware and understands the changes happening around, it can plan and strategies to have successful business. iii. Continuous Learning: The managers are motivated to continuously update their knowledge, understanding and skills to meet the predicted changes in the realm of business. iv. Image Building: Environmental understanding helps the business organizations to improve their image by showing their sensitivity to the environment in which they operate. v. Meeting Competition: It helps the businesses to analyse the competitors' strategies and formulate their own strategies accordingly. The idea is to flourish and beat competition for its products and services.

"International development is expensive and challenging". In the context of the statement, explain the internationalization of business and the steps involved in such strategic planning.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Internationalization has become a pivotal trend for businesses aiming to enhance profitability and access cheaper resources. It allows companies to explore new markets, achieve economies of scale, and prolong product lifecycles. However, the process of internationalization is complex due to additional variables and linkages that differ from domestic operations.

To navigate this complexity, businesses should adopt a structured approach to international strategic planning. The steps involved include:

1. Evaluate Global Opportunities and Threats: Businesses must assess potential global markets, identifying opportunities and threats while aligning them with their internal capabilities.

2. Describe the Scope of Operations: Clearly defining the extent of the firm's international commercial activities is crucial for focused strategy development.

3. Create Global Business Objectives: Establishing clear objectives helps guide the organization's international efforts and aligns with its overall mission.

4. Develop Distinct Corporate Strategies: Formulating specific strategies tailored for global operations ensures that the organization can effectively compete in diverse markets.

These steps facilitate the identification of market opportunities and the formulation of effective global strategies, enabling businesses to thrive in the international arena despite the inherent challenges and costs associated with such expansion.

Yash is planning to launch his new tech start-up. He is exploring different locations across the country to establish his company in the right business environment. One option is the city of Bengaluru, the silicon valley of India, with an engaging network of entrepreneurs, investors, advisors and mentors. Coupled with various subsidies for new ventures and tax benefits, Bengaluru might be an ideal choice for Yash to establish his company and increase the chances of success. Define the term Business Environment with respect to the above scenario. Explain the different ways in which the interaction of a business with its environment can be helpful in developing a successful strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Business Environment refers to all external factors, influences, or situations that affect business decisions, plans, and operations. In Yash's case, these factors include the dynamic and evolving conditions in Bengaluru, which impact the strategic decisions for his tech start-up. Benefits of Interaction with the Business Environment

- Determine Opportunities and Threats: Interaction with the environment helps Yash identify new consumer needs, emerging trends, and potential market opportunities. This insight can guide the development of innovative products and services that meet market demands. Understanding changes in laws, social behaviors, and competitor actions enables Yash to anticipate and mitigate potential threats, ensuring the start-up remains resilient and adaptive.

- Give Direction for Growth: By analyzing the external environment, Yash can pinpoint areas for expansion and growth. Recognizing market trends and technological advancements allows him to strategize effectively, ensuring the start-up scales successfully. Awareness of the changes around the business environment facilitates better planning and strategic decisions, aligning the start-up's goals with the market dynamics.
- Continuous Learning: Continuous interaction with the environment motivates Yash and his team to update their knowledge, understanding, and skills. Staying informed about industry trends and advancements ensures the start-up remains competitive. This ongoing learning process enhances the start-up's ability to adapt to changes, promoting innovation and responsiveness to market shifts.
- Image Building: Understanding and responding to environmental needs help the start-up build a positive image. For instance, adopting sustainable practices or contributing to local initiatives can enhance the company's reputation. Demonstrating sensitivity to the business environment shows that the start-up is responsible and community-focused, attracting customers and partners who value corporate social responsibility.

- Meeting Competition: Interaction with the environment allows Yash to analyze competitors' strategies and adapt accordingly. Understanding competitors' strengths and weaknesses helps in crafting strategies that provide a competitive edge. By leveraging insights from the environment, the start-up can position itself uniquely in the market, differentiating its offerings from those of competitors.

212 EXAM Old P7 Nov 2020 Q8(b) 5 marks old scheme

Why companies should go global? Mention any five reasons.

ICAI'S ANSWER

There are several reasons why companies go global. These are discussed as follows:

- One reason could be the rapid shrinking of time and distance across the globe - thanks to faster communication, speedier transportation, growing financial flows and rapid technological changes.
- It is being realized that the domestic markets are no longer adequate and rich. Companies globalize to take advantage of opportunities available elsewhere.

- A new product may gradually get acceptance and grow locally and then globally. This may initially be in form of exports and then later production facilities may begin in other countries.
- Organizations may go global to take advantage of cheaper raw material and labour costs.
- Companies often set up overseas plants to reduce high transportation costs.
- The motivation to go global in high-tech industries is slightly different. Companies in electronics and telecommunications must spend large sums on research and development for new products and thus may be compelled to seek ways to improve sales volume to support high overhead expenses.
- The companies may also go global to take advantage of local taxation laws.
- To form strategic alliances to ward off economic and technological threats and leverage their respective comparative and competitive advantages.

"Industry and competitive analysis begins with an overview of the industry's dominant economic features." Explain and also narrate the factors to be considered in profiling in industry's economic features.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Industry is "a group of firms whose products have same and similar attributes such that they compete for the same buyers." Industries differ significantly in their basic character and structure. Industry and competitive analysis begins with an overview of the industry's dominant economic features. The factors to be considered while profiling an industry's economic features are fairly standard and are given as under:

- Size and nature of market.
- Scope of competitive rivalry.
- Market growth rate and position in the business life.
- Number of rivals and their relative market share.
- The number of buyers and their relative sizes.
- The types of distribution channels used to access consumers.
- The pace of technological change in both production process innovation and new product introductions.
- Whether the products and services of rival firms are highly differentiated, weakly differentiated, or essentially identical?
- Whether organisation can realize economies of scale in purchasing, manufacturing, transportation, marketing, or advertising.
- Whether key industry participants are clustered in a location.

- Whether certain industry activities are characterized by strong learning and experience effects (“learning by doing”) such that unit costs decline as cumulative output grows.
- Whether high rates of capacity utilization are crucial to achieve low-cost production efficiency.
- Capital requirements and the ease of entry and exit.
- Whether industry profitability is above or below par?

CASE SCENARIO

EcoRide Motors, founded in Chennai in 2017, started as a small manufacturer of electric scooters targeted at environmentally conscious urban commuters. The company gained momentum when the government introduced FAME subsidies for EV adoption and rising fuel costs made electric mobility more attractive. Initially, EcoRide differentiated itself with sleek designs and strong battery life, which appealed to young professionals in metro cities. As the EV industry became more competitive, EcoRide realized that success depended not only on product quality but also on an efficient value chain. The company focused on building close partnerships with battery suppliers, invested in efficient assembly lines, and created a network of after-sales service centers. This integrated approach gave EcoRide an edge in reliability and customer satisfaction. In 2021, EcoRide attempted to enter the budget scooter market to expand its customer base. However, the move backfired as cost pressures affected margins, and established players already had stronghold in the low-price segment. Internally, this failure led to debates within the management team. The CEO adopted a transformational leadership style, motivating employees to view challenges as opportunities and encouraging cross-functional collaboration for innovation. To restructure its portfolio, EcoRide introduced high-performance e-bikes for premium customers while continuing scooters for the mass market. Management positioned scooters as a potential Cash Cow in the BCG matrix due to steady demand but low growth, whereas the e-bikes were considered Stars, expected to drive future growth in the expanding premium EV segment. Recently, when the government announced stricter battery recycling norms, EcoRide faced resistance from dealers who feared higher compliance costs. At the same time, an environmental NGO emerged as a powerful stakeholder, urging EcoRide to adopt greener supply chain practices. The company recognized that managing stakeholder expectations would be critical for long-term sustainability. Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple Choice Questions.

Q1(i)

EcoRide's initial success was supported by external factors such as EV subsidies and rising fuel costs. Which specific environmental analysis tool should EcoRide use to systematically assess these factors, and why would it be more suitable than SWOT in this context?

A BCG Matrix

B PESTLE Analysis

C Porter's Five Forces

D Strategic Group Mapping

Q1(ii)

By partnering with battery suppliers, improving assembly lines, and investing in service centers, EcoRide focused on strengthening its entire chain of operations. Which framework does this reflect and how does it add competitive advantage to the EV industry?

A Value Chain Analysis

B Experience Curve

C Ansoff's Growth Matrix

D McKinsey 7S Framework

Q1(iii)

When EcoRide attempted to enter the budget scooter market but failed due to intense competition and thin margins, which of Porter's Five Forces best explains the challenge, and how did it affect profitability?

A Threat of Substitutes

B Bargaining Power of Suppliers

C Competitive Rivalry among Existing Firms

D Bargaining Power of Buyers

Q1(iv)

EcoRide categorized scooters as Cash Cows and e-bikes as Stars in its portfolio planning. According to the BCG Matrix, what does this imply about the resource allocation strategy the company should follow for each product?

A Harvest scooters & divest e-bikes

B Invest in scooters & maintain e-bikes

C Harvest scooters & invest in e-bikes

D Divest scooters & harvest e-bikes

Q1(v)

The rise of environmental NGOs and stricter recycling regulations highlight the importance of stakeholder management. Using Mendelow's Matrix, how should EcoRide position NGOs as stakeholders, and what type of engagement strategy would be most appropriate?

A Minimal Effort – monitor occasionally

B Keep Informed – provide regular updates

C Keep Satisfied – manage but not deeply involve

D Key Players – actively engage and collaborate

How does the PESTLE framework assist in analyzing the macro-environment?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The PESTLE framework assists in analyzing the macro-environment by systematically evaluating six external factors that impact an organization's operations and strategy.

1. Political Factors: This includes government policies, regulations, political stability, and taxation. Understanding these factors helps organizations anticipate regulatory changes and government interventions that could affect their business environment.

2. Economic Factors: This involves assessing economic conditions such as interest rates, inflation, exchange rates, and economic growth. These factors influence business costs, consumer purchasing power, and overall market conditions.

3. Social Factors: This examines demographic trends, lifestyle changes, cultural norms, and consumer attitudes. Insights into social factors help businesses align their products and services with evolving consumer preferences and societal trends.

4. Technological Factors: This includes technological advancements, innovation rates, and technological infrastructure. These factors impact production processes, product development, and competitive positioning.

5. Legal Factors: This involves understanding business laws, employment regulations, health and safety standards, and compliance requirements. Legal factors are crucial for ensuring regulatory compliance and avoiding legal risks.

6. Environmental Factors: This covers ecological issues, sustainability practices, and environmental regulations. Awareness of environmental factors helps businesses adapt to climate change and meet sustainability goals. By analyzing these factors, the PESTLE framework provides a comprehensive understanding of the macro-environment, helping organizations anticipate changes, adapt strategies, and make informed decisions.

In the serene city of Pune, Royal Pens stood as a distinguished company with a rich heritage spanning a century. Specializing in crafting luxurious writing instruments, Royal Pens had long been known for its elegance and precision—valued by collectors and enthusiasts across the nation. However, as the world progressed into the digital era, Royal Pens encountered a tsunami of challenges. Emerging substitutes quickly adapted to technological advancements, offering innovative writing solutions that appealed to a younger demographic. Despite its esteemed legacy, Royal Pens faced sluggish growth as it struggled to adapt to the evolving landscape of the writing instrument industry. In an effort to stand out, Royal Pens strategized on ambitious endeavors. They experimented with new materials, introduced limited-edition designs and even forayed into digital pen technology, including a Bluetooth-enabled stylus for tablets—a move intended to attract tech-savvy users. Least expected, these initiatives failed to resonate with modern consumers. Their attempts to innovate were perceived as outdated or disconnected from actual user needs and their once-unquestionable reputation began to downgrade. As Royal Pens struggled with reducing sales and increased competition, internal challenges started building up. Top executives including the CEO, CFO and the marketing head—accustomed to success—found themselves in a tough position to justify their acumen in the face of shifting market dynamics. Disagreements over strategic direction led to a wave of departures leaving a leadership vacuum at the top. Amidst the turmoil, one aspect of Royal Pens remained strong: its unique company culture.

Despite the challenges, middle managers and employees remained deeply dedicated to the company's traditions and values. Compassionate leadership at the functional level ensured a sense of unity and resilience keeping the spirit of Royal Pens alive during uncertainty. Yet the company's troubles were far from over. Royal Pens faced legal battles from a rival competitor alleging patent infringements. The ensuing legal proceedings drained resources and further depleted the company's finances worsening an already helpless situation. Ultimately, Royal Pens faced a tough choice. With no clear path to recovery, the company made the painful decision to significantly scale down its operations. 70% of its business was discontinued and assets & equipment were sold off to generate much-needed funds. Though difficult, this decision allowed Royal Pens to redirect its resources toward niche opportunities preserving its legacy in a rapidly changing market. Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple-Choice Questions.

Q1(i)

Royal Pens, a century-old brand began losing relevance as the market embraced modern digital writing tools. What external environmental factor caused the greatest disruption to Royal Pens' business model requiring a strategic shift that the company struggled to make?

A Political instability

B Rising inflation

C Legal regulations

D Technological advancement

Q1(ii)

After experiencing a decline in market share due to emerging competitors, Royal Pens responded by launching Bluetooth-enabled styluses and limited-edition pens. These actions were not pre-planned innovations but responses to market shifts. What type of strategic approach does this represent?

A Proactive strategy

B Reactive strategy

C Differentiation strategy

D Market penetration strategy

Q1(iii)

To regain market share, Royal Pens launched limited-edition designs and a stylus pen, targeting younger, tech-driven customers. This strategic choice most closely reflects which of the following business-level strategies?

A Cost leadership

B Market development

C Differentiation

D Retrenchment

Q1(iv)

Despite facing legal disputes and financial decline, Royal Pens' workforce remained resilient and united.

Which aspect of the company played the most vital role in maintaining employee morale and commitment during turbulent times?

A Employee stock ownership

B Regular salary hikes

C Strong company culture

D Remote working options

Q1(v)

Royal Pens believed that its century-old reputation alone would continue to appeal to modern consumers. This assumption formed the basis of its strategies, which ultimately failed as market dynamics shifted. Which type of strategic control was lacking, leading to unchallenged reliance on outdated assumptions?

A Premise control

B Special alert control

C Implementation control

D Strategic surveillance

Nuvanta Healthcare is planning to launch a nutrition supplement targeted at urban consumers in Tier-2 Indian cities. The product team analyzed local population data age groups, income levels, lifestyle patterns and health concerns before finalizing the formulation and pricing. They are also reviewing how changes in government policy and tech adoption may affect the rollout. What kind of external factor has Nuvanta considered for pricing the product? Briefly explain the major categories of such external influences that shape business strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Nuvanta Healthcare has considered the Demographic Environment as an external factor for pricing its nutrition supplement. The analysis of local population data such as age groups, income levels, lifestyle patterns, and health concerns reflects the company's effort to understand its target consumers and formulate a suitable pricing strategy. External environmental factors significantly influence an organization's strategy and operations. These factors may be external to the firm or introduced by managers to adapt to change. The major categories of such external influences that shape business strategy include:

- Demographic Environment – It includes factors such as population size, age distribution, income levels, education, and occupation, which affect consumer preferences and demand.
- Economic Environment – Includes elements like purchasing power, inflation rates, and overall economic conditions that influence pricing and market potential.
- Political-Legal Environment – Consists of government policies, regulations, and legal aspects that can impact product rollout and compliance requirements.
- Technological Environment – Rapid technological changes affect production, product design, marketing, and distribution, influencing how companies deliver value.
- Socio-Cultural Environment – Involves lifestyle patterns, health consciousness, social values, and consumer attitudes that influence buying behavior.

CASE SCENARIO

In the ever-growing consumer electronics industry, Horizon Technologies found itself at a crossroads in 2018. The company, founded a decade earlier, had established itself as a key player in the global market for smartphones and other electronics. However, the pressure to stay relevant, meet customer demands, and fend off competitors was mounting. This is the story of how Horizon Technologies navigated its challenges, leveraging key business strategies and analyses to achieve remarkable success. Horizon Technologies recognized the need to divide its operations to find areas for improvement. They conducted a comprehensive value chain analysis, identifying both primary and support activities. By streamlining processes and eliminating redundancies, the company reduced production costs and enhanced product quality. This allowed them to offer more competitive prices, thus gaining a strategic edge in the market. The company's CEO, Mr. Jonathan Mercer, was known for his authoritative management style. His challenge was to transform his leadership approach to one that encouraged creativity and teamwork within the SBUs. Mr. Mercer invested in leadership development programs for middle and senior managers to enhance their interpersonal and communication skills. The transition wasn't easy, but it fostered a more collaborative and dynamic work environment. They did not stop there, Horizon Technologies adopted a Strategic Business Unit (SBU) structure, dividing the company into smaller, more manageable units. Each SBU was tasked with focusing on specific product lines. This decentralization empowered individual units to make strategic decisions autonomously, leading to quicker market response and a deeper understanding of customer needs. It was the catalyst for innovation and improved customer satisfaction. Post organizational changes, Horizon Technologies strategized to embrace a cost leadership strategy, positioning itself as the go-to brand for affordable yet high-quality electronics. By optimizing production processes and supply chain management, the company achieved cost efficiencies that competitors struggled to match. This not only attracted cost-conscious consumers but also enabled the company to maintain healthy profit margins. As Horizon Technologies expanded into new international markets, the management recognized the importance of adapting to the local environment. Conducting a thorough PESTLE analysis (Political, Economic, Social, Technological, Legal, and Environmental) proved pivotal for navigating complex market dynamics. This analysis highlighted specific challenges, especially in understanding socio-cultural trends and regulatory differences across regions. By leveraging these insights, Horizon Technologies was able to overcome these obstacles, customizing its products, marketing strategies, and operations to align more effectively with local preferences and regulations, ultimately contributing to their success. Through these strategic moves, Horizon Technologies experienced a remarkable transformation. Within two years, their market share had significantly grown in local markets, whereas the cost leadership strategy resonated strongly. Their annual revenue skyrocketed by 35%, and the company saw a 20% increase in its stock price. The business case for Horizon Technologies serves as an inspiration for companies navigating competitive and dynamic industries. Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple Choice Questions.

Q1(i)

In Horizon Technologies' journey towards globalization, PESTLE analysis played a pivotal role in navigating diverse international markets. Which aspect of PESTLE analysis proved to be the most challenging for Horizon Technologies?

A. Socio-cultural factors, as they struggled to keep up with changing trends and cultural preferences.

B. Legal factors, given the complex regulatory landscape in foreign markets.

C. Environmental factors, with the need to adhere to varying sustainability standards.

D. Technological factors, due to rapid changes in local technology preferences.

Q1(ii)

Horizon Technologies implemented a Strategic Business Unit (SBU) structure to improve its responsiveness and innovation. How did the SBU structure differ from the company's previous organizational model, and what benefits did this new structure bring?

A The SBU structure replaced a functional structure and empowered units to make strategic decisions. It led to quicker market response and enhanced customer satisfaction.

B The SBU structure replaced a matrix structure, improving vertical communication and reducing operational silos.

C The SBU structure maintained the existing functional structure but focused solely on cost-cutting measures.

D The SBU structure introduced a more centralized approach, ensuring consistent decision-making across units.

Q1(iii)

Horizon Technologies faced internal challenges, including leadership struggles with an authoritative CEO. How did Mr. Jonathan Mercer transform his leadership style to foster a more collaborative work environment, and what were the key outcomes of this transformation?

A Mr. Mercer increased his authoritative approach to drive quicker decision-making and efficiency.

B He introduced a strict top-down hierarchy to enhance discipline and order within the organization.

C Mr. Mercer invested in leadership development programs, enhancing interpersonal and communication skills, which resulted in a more collaborative and dynamic work environment.

D He delegated most of his responsibilities to middle managers, reducing his involvement in the company's daily operations.

Q1(iv)

While implementing a cost leadership strategy, Horizon Technologies went beyond just streamlining their production processes. What other factors did they consider achieving cost efficiencies, and how did this contribute to their success?

A They solely focused on reducing labor costs, resulting in job cuts and employee dissatisfaction.

B Horizon Technologies invested heavily in extravagant marketing campaigns to attract a premium customer base.

C They optimized supply chain management and invested in research and development, leading to enhanced product quality and reduced production costs.

D The company acquired competitors to eliminate competition and establish a monopoly in the market.

Q1(v)

The primary factor contributing to Horizon Technologies' remarkable transformation was their commitment to systematic analysis. What role did value chain analysis play in this transformation, and how did it drive their success in both local and global markets?

A Value chain analysis revealed opportunities for diversification, enabling them to cater to various market segments.

B It allowed the company to identify and eliminate inefficiencies in their operations, resulting in cost reductions and improved product quality.

C Value chain analysis highlighted the need for excessive vertical integration, helping them control the entire supply chain.

D Horizon Technologies used value chain analysis primarily for financial forecasting and budgeting.

ABC Corp, a multinational consumer electronics company, is planning to expand its operations into a new country. The company's senior management is evaluating the potential risks and opportunities of entering this new market. As part of their analysis, they decide to use the PESTLE framework to assess the external factors that could impact their decision. How can the PESTLE framework help ABC Corp assess the external factors affecting its decision to expand into a new country?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The PESTLE framework can help ABC Corp assess the external factors affecting its decision to expand into a new country by considering the following aspects:

- Political Factors: These include the stability of the government, government policies on foreign investment, trade agreements, and regulatory frameworks. By analyzing these factors, ABC Corp can assess the political risks associated with entering the new market.
- Economic Factors: Economic factors such as GDP growth rate, inflation rate, exchange rates, and economic stability can impact ABC Corp's decision. By analyzing these factors, the company can understand the economic environment of the new market and its potential impact on business operations.
- Social Factors: Social factors such as cultural norms, demographics, and lifestyle trends can influence consumer behavior and demand for ABC Corp's products. Understanding these factors can help the company tailor its marketing strategies to the new market.
- Technological Factors: Technological factors such as infrastructure, technological advancements, and the level of technology adoption in the new market can impact ABC Corp's operations. By assessing these factors, the company can determine the technological requirements for entering the new market.

- Legal Factors: Legal factors such as laws and regulations related to foreign investment, intellectual property rights, and labor laws can impact ABC Corp's decision. By analyzing these factors, the company can ensure compliance with legal requirements in the new market.
- Environmental Factors: Environmental factors such as climate change, environmental regulations, and sustainability practices can impact ABC Corp's operations and reputation. By considering these factors, the company can assess the environmental risks and opportunities in the new market.

Overall, the PESTLE framework can provide ABC Corp with a comprehensive analysis of the external factors that could impact its decision to expand into a new country, helping the company make informed and strategic decisions.

CASE SCENARIO

Titan Tech, a mid-sized software development company based in India, has been experiencing rapid growth over the past five years. The company specializes in customized software solutions for small and medium enterprises (SMEs). However, the competitive landscape is shifting due to the entry of global tech giants and evolving customer needs.

To chart its future strategy, Titan Tech conducted a PESTLE analysis. Politically, government incentives for digital transformation present growth opportunities, but regulatory compliance is tightening. Economically, rising disposable incomes of SMEs promise market expansion, yet inflation is driving up operational costs. Technological advancements like AI and blockchain are reshaping industry standards, and environmentally, there is pressure to adopt sustainable practices. Socially, SMEs are increasingly valuing personalized customer support. Lastly, legal changes in data privacy regulations pose significant compliance challenges.

Titan Tech also mapped its stakeholders using Mendelow's Matrix. Customers and key investors, identified as high-power, high-interest stakeholders, require constant engagement. Employees, although influential, have medium interest, while regulatory bodies, with high power but low interest, need to be monitored closely.

For strategic growth, the leadership team evaluated their product portfolio using the BCG Matrix. Their flagship product, BizEase (a CRM tool), is a "Star," showing high market growth and market share. The legacy ERP product is a "Cash Cow," while new offerings in AI-driven analytics are "Question Marks."

A failed project management tool was classified as a "Dog" and discontinued.

The CEO, Priya Mehra, believes the company's leadership style needs to evolve to meet internal and external challenges. While her approach has traditionally been transactional, focusing on clear roles and rewards, she recognizes the need to adopt a more transformational style to inspire innovation and motivate employees amid uncertainty.

To stay competitive, Titan Tech has adopted Michael Porter's differentiation strategy. By focusing on delivering highly customizable solutions and superior customer service, they aim to stand out in the crowded market. Additionally, a value chain analysis revealed that investing in advanced R&D and strengthening customer support are critical to maintaining their competitive advantage.

As Titan Tech faces these crossroads, the company's leadership must make strategic decisions to sustain growth and profitability.

"International development is expensive and challenging". In the context of the statement, explain the internationalization of business and the steps involved in such strategic planning.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Internationalization has become a pivotal trend for businesses aiming to enhance profitability and access cheaper resources. It allows companies to explore new markets, achieve economies of scale, and prolong product lifecycles.

However, the process of internationalization is complex due to additional variables and linkages that differ from domestic operations.

To navigate this complexity, businesses should adopt a structured approach to international strategic planning. The steps involved include:

1. Evaluate Global Opportunities and Threats: Businesses must assess potential global markets, identify opportunities and threats while aligning them with their internal capabilities.

2. Describe the Scope of Operations: Clearly defining the extent of the firm's international commercial activities is crucial for focused strategy development.

3. Create Global Business Objectives: Establishing clear objectives helps guide the organization's international efforts and aligns with its overall mission.

4. Develop Distinct Corporate Strategies: Formulating specific strategies tailored for global operations ensures that the organization can effectively compete in diverse markets.

These steps facilitate the identification of market opportunities and the formulation of effective global strategies, enabling businesses to thrive in the international arena despite the inherent challenges and costs associated with such expansion.

Aarav is planning to launch his new organic food brand. He is evaluating different cities across the country to establish his business in the most suitable environment. One promising option is Pune, a city known for its health-conscious consumers, strong distribution networks, and government initiatives supporting sustainable businesses. With favorable policies, tax benefits, and access to experienced mentors, Pune seems like an ideal choice for Aarav to launch and scale his organic food brand successfully. Define the term Business Environment with respect to the above scenario. Explain how a business's interaction with its environment can contribute to the development of a successful strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Business Environment refers to the external factors, influences, and conditions that impact a business's decisions, strategies, and operations. In Aarav's case, the business environment includes the evolving consumer preferences, government policies, and market dynamics in Pune, which will play a crucial role in shaping his organic food brand's strategy.

Benefits of Interaction with the Business Environment

- Determine Opportunities and Threats: Aarav can assess market demand for organic products, emerging health trends, and regulatory frameworks. This will help him identify potential opportunities for expansion and anticipate challenges such as competition and supply chain disruptions.

- Give Direction for Growth: By understanding consumer behavior and industry trends, Aarav can align his business with the growing demand for organic and sustainable food options. This insight will help him expand strategically and introduce innovative product offerings.
- Continuous Learning: Regular engagement with the business environment will encourage Aarav and his team to stay updated with nutrition trends, technological advancements in food processing, and changing consumer preferences. This knowledge will help them remain competitive and adapt to industry shifts effectively.
- Image Building: Responding to environmental and social expectations, such as sustainable sourcing, eco-friendly packaging, and ethical farming practices, will enhance the brand's reputation. A socially responsible business is more likely to attract loyal customers and gain market trust.
- Meeting Competition: Aarav can analyze competitors' strategies and differentiate his brand through unique selling propositions (USPs), better distribution networks, or customer engagement initiatives. Understanding the competitive landscape will enable him to position his business effectively and stay ahead in the market.

By actively interacting with the business environment, Aarav can leverage opportunities, mitigate risks, and build a sustainable, customer-centric organic food brand in Pune.

"In a modern competitive landscape, the interaction of supply and demand determines the price at which quantity provided equals to quantity desired." Analyse the inherent characteristics of business products that must be managed to maintain profitability under these market dynamics.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Business products possess certain inherent characteristics that businesses must manage effectively to maintain profitability in a competitive market where price is determined by the interaction of supply and demand. Characteristics of Business Products

1. Products are Tangible or Intangible: A product may be tangible such as a car, mobile phone or table or intangible such as banking, insurance or telecom services. Businesses must manage both types efficiently to satisfy customer requirements.

2. Product has a Price: Every product has a price determined by market forces of supply and demand. The market price is the price at which quantity supplied equals quantity demanded. In the present competitive environment, businesses often cannot fix prices by simply adding profit margins over cost. Therefore, firms need to control and reduce costs to maintain profitability.

3. Products have Features that Deliver Satisfaction: Products possess features relating to design, quality, function and customer experience that provide value and satisfaction to consumers. Businesses continuously improve product features to optimise customer experience and differentiate products from competitors.

4. Product is Pivotal for Business: Product is the centre around which all strategic and operational activities revolve, including production, quality control, marketing, logistics and sales. Thus, product acts as the driving force behind business operations and profitability.

5. Product has a Useful Life: Every product has a useful life and product life cycle after which it may require replacement, reinvention or discontinuation. Businesses need to innovate and update products continuously to remain competitive and profitable in changing market conditions.

What are the key characteristics of business products that contribute to the overall competitiveness and dynamics of the market?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Businesses sell products. A product can be either a good or a service. It might be physical good or a service, an experience. Following are the key characteristics of business products:

1. Products are either tangible or intangible. A tangible product can be handled, seen, and physically felt, such as a car, book, pen, table, mobile handset and so on. Alternatively, an intangible product is not a physical good, such as telecom services, banking, insurance, or repair services.

2. Product has a price. Businesses determine the cost of their products and charge a price for them. The dynamics of supply and demand influence the market price of an item or service. The market price is the price at which quantity provided equals quantity desired. The price that may be paid is determined by the market, the quality, the marketing, and the targeted group. In the present competitive world price is often given by the market and businesses have to work on costs to maintain profitability.

3. Products have certain features that deliver satisfaction. A product feature is a component of a product that satisfies a consumer need. Features determine product pricing, and businesses alter features during the development process to optimize the user experience. Products should be able to provide value satisfaction to the customers for whom they are meant. Features of the product will distinguish it in terms of its function, design, quality and experience A customer's cumulative experience with a product from its purchase to the end of its useful life is an important component of a product feature.

4. Product is pivotal for business. The product is at the centre of business around which all strategic activities revolve. The product enables production, quality, sales, marketing, logistics and other business processes. Product is the driving force behind business activities.

5. A product has a useful life. Every product has a usable life after which it must be replaced, as well as a life cycle after which it is to be reinvented or may cease to exist. We have observed that fixed line telephone instruments have largely been replaced by mobile phones.

ABC Ltd. manufactures and sells air purifier 'Fresh Breath'. The 'Fresh Breath' has seen sales growth of around 1% for the last two years, after strong growth in the previous five years. This is due to new products entering the market in competition with the 'Fresh Breath'. ABC Ltd. is therefore considering cutting its prices to be in line with its major rivals with a hope to maintain the market share. Market research indicates that this will now cause a significant increase in the level of sales, even though in previous years price cuts have had little effect on demand. ABC ltd. is also planning to launch a promotional campaign to highlight the benefits of the 'Fresh Breath' against its rival products. Identify and explain the stage of the product life cycle in which 'Fresh Breath' falls.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Product Life Cycle is a useful concept for guiding strategic choice. PLC is an S-shaped curve which exhibits the relationship of sales with respect of time for a product that passes through the four successive stages of introduction (slow sales growth), growth (rapid market acceptance) maturity (slowdown in growth rate) and decline (sharp downward drift).

What do you mean by value chain analysis? Delineate the support activities in value chain analysis, as stated by Michael Porter.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Value chain analysis is a strategic tool used to examine each business activity to determine how it adds value, helping firms improve efficiency, identify cost-saving opportunities and gain competitive advantage through better coordination and performance of internal processes.

Support Activities in Value Chain Analysis (Michael Porter)

Michael Porter identified four main categories of support activities that support the primary activities and help the organization achieve competitive advantage:

1. Procurement: Refers to the processes involved in acquiring the various resource inputs needed for the primary activities. It focuses on how resources are sourced rather than the resources themselves. Procurement occurs across many parts of the organization.

2. Technology Development: Every value activity has associated technology or know-how. This includes R&D, product design, process development and improvements in resources such as raw materials. Technology development enhances the efficiency and effectiveness of value activities.

3. Human Resource Management: This area spans across all primary activities and involves recruiting, managing, training, developing and rewarding employees. Effective HR management is vital for ensuring that the organization has the right people to perform its activities successfully.

4. Infrastructure: Infrastructure consists of the systems and routines that support the entire organization, including planning, finance, quality control, information management and organizational culture. It sustains and coordinates primary and support activities and is crucial for overall organizational performance.

ICAI'S ANSWER

To maintain a competitive edge in the face of increased competition, Reshuffle Corp can differentiate its products in several ways:

- Tangible and Intangible Aspects: Reshuffle Corp can focus on the tangible aspects of its products, such as using high-quality materials and innovative designs to create furniture that is both functional and aesthetically pleasing. Additionally, they can emphasize the intangible aspects of their products, such as excellent customer service and a strong brand reputation for reliability and durability.
- Pricing Strategies: While market prices are often dictated by competition, Reshuffle Corp can work on cost optimization to maintain profitability. They can also consider offering value-added services, such as free installation or extended warranties, to justify a higher price point.
- Product Features: By continually optimizing their product features based on customer feedback and market trends, Reshuffle Corp can ensure that their products deliver maximum satisfaction to their target customers. This may include features that enhance functionality, design, quality, and overall user experience.

- Product Centric Approach: Reshuffle Corp should keep their products at the center of their strategic activities, ensuring that all business processes, from production to sales and marketing, are aligned to meet customer needs and expectations.
- Product Life Cycle Management: Reshuffle Corp should be aware of the life cycle of their products and plan for reinvention or replacement accordingly. They can introduce new product lines or upgrade existing ones to keep up with changing customer preferences and market trends.

CASE SCENARIO

Café Delight, a thriving restaurant chain known for its unique blend of Australian and Indian culinary experiences, embarked on a remarkable journey from its humble beginnings as a small café in Australia to becoming a renowned player in the Indian restaurant industry. This case study digs into the strategic decisions and market dynamics that fueled Café Delight's growth, highlighting its transition from a single café in Powai, Mumbai, to a flourishing chain with a presence in five cities and over 25 stores. It explores how Café Delight effectively leveraged social media and adapted its pricing strategy to compete with global brands while maintaining a healthy profit margin.

In 2005, Café Delight was founded in Melbourne, Australia, by a passionate entrepreneur with a vision to bring the flavors of Australia and India together. The first café established in Powai, Mumbai, received accolades for its unique menu, blending Australian coffee culture with Indian culinary traditions. Over the course of five years, Café Delight expanded to three stores in Mumbai, driven by exceptional mouth publicity, customer loyalty, and consistent quality.

As the social media landscape evolved, Café Delight recognized the power of online platforms in reaching a wider audience. By effectively utilizing social media and online marketing, Café Delight expanded its presence to five cities across India and established over 25 stores. Customer engagement through social media platforms enabled the brand to create a strong and vibrant community, driving organic growth.

Café Delight's customer-centric approach involved continuously evolving its menu to cater to the changing tastes and dietary preferences of its patrons. By understanding the evolving needs of its customers, Café Delight could offer personalized menu items, seasonal specials, and dietary alternatives. This approach created a sense of loyalty and engagement among customers, strengthening the brand's appeal. Not just customers but High-power, low-interest stakeholders, including regulatory authorities, were addressed with careful compliance and adherence to industry standards. Low-power, high-interest stakeholders, like potential customers and local communities, were engaged through targeted marketing campaigns and community involvement initiatives. This meticulous stakeholder analysis allowed Café Delight to build and maintain strong relationships with each group, effectively managing their influence and impact on the brand.

With its expanding presence and increasing popularity, Café Delight underwent a shift in its pricing strategy. It transitioned from a pocket-friendly pricing model to a skimming strategy, capitalizing on its unique blend of Australian and Indian flavors to position itself as a premium restaurant. Café Delight faced stiff competition from global brands entering the Indian market but maintained a profit margin of approximately 30% through menu engineering and targeted pricing.

In one of its kind, using strategic tools enabled Café Delight to identify and act on opportunities while mitigating threats, contributing to its long-term success in the highly competitive restaurant industry.

The CEO of ABC Enterprises, Mr. Rasik Mehta, had the idea of creating a fitness shake called Robust, which prompted the company to conduct research and development. The company conducted a market survey and feasibility study, which indicated that the idea was feasible and had potential for pr ofitability. Consequently, the product was manufactured, marketed, and launched, which led to its success. As a result, the production of Robust grew, and it became widely available. However, with time, the demand for the product decreased, leading to its obsolescence. Identify and explain the concept highlighted in the above case?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The case highlights the concept of Product Life Cycle (PLC), which outlines the various stages a product goes through, including introduction, growth, maturity and decline. Successful businesses must adapt their strategies to each stage to remain profitable.

Product Life Cycle (PLC) is a useful concept for guiding strategic choice. Essentially, PLC is S-shaped curve which exhibits the relationship of sales with respect of time for a product that passes through the four successive stages of introduction (slow sales growth), growth (rapid market acceptance) maturity (slowdown in growth rate) and decline (sharp downward drift). If businesses are substituted for product, the concept of PLC could work just as well.

The first stage of PLC is the introduction stage in which competition is almost negligible, prices are relatively high, and markets are limited. The growth in sales is at a lower rate because of lack of knowledge on the part of customers.

The second stage of PLC is growth stage. In the growth stage, the demand expands rapidly, prices fall, competition increases, and market expands. The customer has knowledge about the product and shows interest in purchasing it.

The third stage of PLC is maturity stage. In this stage, the competition gets tough, and market gets stabilised. Profit comes down because of stiff competition. At this stage organisations may work for maintaining stability.

The fourth stage of PLC is declining stage in which the sales and profits fall down sharply due to some new product replaces the existing product. So, a combination of strategies can be implemented to stay in the market either by diversification or retrenchment.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The primary activities of the organization are grouped into five main areas: inbound logistics, operations, outbound logistics, marketing and sales, and service.

- Inbound logistics are the activities concerned with receiving, storing and distributing the inputs to the product/service. This includes materials handling, stock control, transport etc.
- Operations transform these inputs into the final product or service: machining, packaging, assembly, testing, etc.
- Outbound logistics collect, store and distribute the product to customers. For tangible products this would be warehousing, materials handling, transport, etc. In the case of services, it may be more concerned with arrangements for bringing customers to the service, if it is a fixed location (e.g., sports events).
- Marketing and sales provide the means whereby consumers/users are made aware of the product/service and are able to purchase it. This would include sales administratio n, advertising, selling and so on. In public services, communication networks which help users' access a particular service are often important.
- Service are all those activities, which enhance or maintain the value of a product/service, such as installation, repair, training and spares.

Write short note on "Phases and significance of Product Life Cycle".

ICAI'S ANSWER

Product Life Cycle (PLC) is a useful concept for guiding strategic choice. Essentially, PLC is S-shaped curve which exhibits the relationship of sales with respect of time for a product that passes through the four successive stages of introduction (slow sales growth), g rowth (rapid market acceptance) maturity (slowdown in growth rate) and decline (sharp downward drift). If businesses are substituted for product, the concept of PLC could work just as well.

The first stage of PLC is the introduction stage in which competition is almost negligible, prices are relatively high, and markets are limited. The growth in sales is at a lower rate because of lack of knowledge on the part of customers.

The second stage of PLC is growth stage. In the growth stage, the demand expands rapidly, prices fall, competition increases, and market expands. The customer has knowledge about the product and shows interest in purchasing it.

The third stage of PLC is maturity stage. In this stage, the competition gets tough, and market gets stabilised. Profit comes down because of stiff competition. At this stage organisations may work for maintaining stability.

The fourth stage of PLC is declining stage in which the sales and profits fall down sharply due to some new product replaces the existing product. So, a combination of strategies can be implemented to stay in the market either by diversification or retrenchment.

Significance of PLC

The main advantage of PLC is that it can be used to diagnose a portfolio of products (or businesses) in order to establish the stage at which each of them exists. Particular attention is to be paid on the businesses that are in the declining stage. Depending on the diagnosis, appropriate strategic choice can be made. For instance, expansion may be a feasible alternative for businesses in the introductory and growth stages. Mature businesses may be used as sources of cash for investment in other businesses which need resources. A combination of strategies like selective harvesting, retrenchment, etc. may be adopted for declining businesses. In this way, a balanced portfolio of businesses may be built up by exercising a strategic choice based on the PLC concept.

Atrix Ltd. is a company engaged in the designing, manufacturing, and marketing of mechanical instruments like speed meters, oil pressure gauges, and so on. Their products are fitted into two and four wheelers. During the last couple of years, the company has been observing a fall in the market share. This is on account of shift to the new range of electronic instruments. The customers are switching away mechanical instruments that have been the backbone of Atrix Ltd.

As a CEO of Atrix Ltd., what can be the strategic options available with you.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Atrix is having a product portfolio that is evidently in the decline stage. The product is being replaced with the technologically superior product. Strategically the company should minimize their dependence on the existing products and identify other avenues for the survival and growth. As a CEO of Atrix Ltd., following can be the strategic options available with the CEO:

- Invest in new product development and switchover to the new technology. Atrix Ltd. also need time to invest in emerging new technology.
- They can acquire or takeover a competitor, provided they have or are able to generate enough financial resources.
- They may also consider unrelated growth and identify other areas for expansion. This will enable Atrix Ltd. to spread their risks.
- In longer run, they should divest the existing products. However, they may continue with the existing products in a limited manner for such time there is demand for the product.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Porter's Five Forces Model holds that the state of competition in an industry is a composite of competitive pressures operating in five areas of the overall market:

- Competitive pressures associated with the market manoeuvring and jockeying for buyer patronage that goes on among rival sellers in the industry.

- Competitive pressures associated with the threat of new entrants into the market.
- Competitive pressures coming from the attempts of companies in other industries to win buyers over to their own substitute products.
- Competitive pressures stemming from supplier bargaining power and supplier-seller collaboration.

Which concept explains the efficiency increase gained by worker through repetitive production work, leading to cost reduction and competitive advantage? List down its relevance features in strategic management.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The concept is Experience Curve. The experience curve, akin to a learning curve, explains the efficiency increase gained by workers through repetitive productive work. It is based on the phenomenon that unit costs decline as a firm accumulates experience in terms of a cumulative volume of production – the idea being, "we learn as we grow." Relevant Features of Experience Curve in Strategic Management

- As business organisations grow, they gain experience which enables cost efficiencies.

- Experience may provide an advantage over competition as lower costs create a barrier for new entrants.
- Experience is considered a key barrier to entry for new firms contemplating industry entry.
- Large and successful organisations possess stronger experience effect, helping in leadership and cost advantage.

Thus, the experience curve is a critical concept in strategic management as it links growth with learning, cost reduction and competitive advantage, making it a strong determinant of industry positioning and entry barriers.

As per one of the five forces of competition, Michael Porter stated that the more intensive is the rivalry, the less attractive is the industry. In view of this, explain the conditions in which rivalry among competitors tends to be cut throat and industry profitability is low.

ICAI'S ANSWER

According to Michael Porter's Five Forces framework, rivalry among competitors significantly influences the attractiveness and profitability of an industry. When rivalry becomes cutthroat, several conditions contribute to low industry profitability:

1. Industry Leader Presence: While a strong industry leader can help maintain pricing discipline, the effectiveness diminishes as the number of competitors increases. Many rivals can engage in aggressive pricing strategies, leading to decreased profitability.

2. Number of Competitors: A higher number of competitors increases rivalry, making it difficult for any single firm to control pricing. This leads to intensified price competition, which adversely affects industry profitability.

3. High Fixed Costs: Industries with high fixed costs create pressure on firms to fully utilize their capacity. When firms face excess capacity, they often resort to price cuts to maintain sales volume, which diminishes profitability across the industry.

4. Exit Barriers: High exit barriers prevent firms from leaving the industry, keeping competition high. Specialized assets or other constraints can lead firms to remain in the market, maintaining competitive pressure and negatively impacting profitability for all players.

5. Product Differentiation: In industries lacking product differentiation, firms primarily compete on price. This leads to price wars and lower profitability. In contrast, firms that can differentiate their products tend to achieve higher profit margins and reduce competitive pressure.

6. Slow Industry Growth: When industry growth slows, firms may adopt aggressive tactics to protect or gain market share, resulting in intensified rivalry and diminished profitability as they compete for a limited customer base. In summary, conditions such as the presence of a strong industry leader, the number of competitors, high fixed costs, exit barriers, lack of product differentiation, and slow industry growth contribute to cutthroat rivalry and low industry profitability.

In light of the five forces as propagated by Michael Porter, explain the common barriers which may cause restrain for the keenness of new entrepreneurs.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In light of Michael Porter's Five Forces, new entrepreneurs often face significant barriers that restrain their keenness to enter an industry. These barriers increase the competitiveness of existing firms and discourage new entrants, impacting industry profitability. Common barriers that may restrain new entrepreneurs include:

(i) Capital Requirements: When a large amount of capital is required to enter an industry, firms lacking funds are effectively barred from the industry, thus enhancing the profitability of existing firms in the industry.

(ii) Economies of Scale: Many industries are characterized by economic activities driven by economies of scale. Economies of scale refer to the decline in the per-unit cost of production (or other activity) as volume grows.

(iii) Product Differentiation: Product differentiation refers to the physical or perceptual differences, or enhancements, that make a product special or unique in the eyes of customers.

(iv) Switching Costs: To succeed in an industry, new entrant must be able to persuade existing customers of other companies to switch to its products. When such switching costs are high, buyers are often reluctant to change.

(v) Brand Identity: The brand identity of products or services offered by existing firms can serve as another entry barrier. Brand identity is particularly important for infrequently purchased products that carry a high unit cost to the buyer.

(vi) Access to Distribution Channels: The unavailability of distribution channels for new entrants poses another significant entry barrier. Despite the growing power of the internet, many firms may continue to rely on their control of physical distribution channels to sustain a barrier to entry to rivals.

(vii) Possibility of Aggressive Retaliation: Sometimes the mere threat of aggressive retaliation by incumbents can deter entry by other firms into an existing industry.

According to Michael Porter, what are the five competitive forces that exist within an industry?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Michael Porter's Five Forces model is a widely utilized tool for systematically analyzing the competitive forces within an industry. The model identifies five competitive forces that shape the overall competitive landscape:

- Threat of New Entrants: New entrants bring added capacity and product variety, intensifying competition and impacting prices. The size of new entrants magnifies their competitive influence, placing constraints on prices and affecting existing players' profitability.
- Bargaining power of Buyers: The ability of buyers to form groups or cartels influences their bargaining power. This force, particularly in industrial products, impacts pricing and often leads to demands for better services, influencing costs and investments for producers.

- Bargaining power of Suppliers: Suppliers with specialized offerings exert significant bargaining power, especially when limited in number. Supplier bargaining power determines raw material costs, affecting industry attractiveness and profitability.
- Rivalry among Current Players: Existing players engage in competition, influencing strategic decisions across various levels. This rivalry is evident in pricing, advertising, cost pressures, and product strategies, impacting the overall competitive landscape.
- Threats from Substitutes: Substitute products can alter an industry's competitive dynamics, offering price advantages or performance improvements. Substitutes limit prices and profits, and industries with substantial R&D investments are particularly susceptible to threats from substitute products.

These forces collectively determine industry attractiveness and profitability by influencing factors such as costs and investments required for industry participation. The strength of these forces varies across industries, ultimately shaping the potential for earning attractive profits.

Buyers of an industry's products or services can sometimes exert considerable pressure on the company. In the light of the five forces as propagated by Michael Porter explain this force. Also state as to when this leverage is evident.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Bargaining Power of Buyers: This is another force that influences the competitive condition of an industry. This force becomes heavier depending on the possibility of buyers forming groups or cartels. Mostly, this is a phenomenon seen in industrial products. Quite often, users of industrial products come together formally or even informally and exert pressure on the producer. The bargaining power of the buyers influences not only the prices that the producer can charge but also influences costs and investments of the producer. This is because powerful buyers usually bargain for better services which involves more investment on the part of the producer.

Buyers of an industry's products or services can sometimes exert considerable pressure on existing firms to secure lower prices or better services. This leverage is particularly evident when;

(i) Buyers have full knowledge of the source(s) of products and their substitutes. Thus, challenging the price being charged by producers.

(ii) They spend a lot of money on the industry's products i.e. they are big buyers. Thus, in a position to demand favourable terms of contract.

(iii) The industry's product is not perceived as critical to the buyer's needs and buyers are more concentrated than firms supplying the product. They can easily switch to the substitutes available.

"The bargaining power of suppliers determines an industry's attractiveness and profitability." Discuss.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Quite often, suppliers too, exercise considerable bargaining power over purchasing companies. The more specialised the offering from the supplier, greater may be its clout. Further, when the suppliers are limited in number, they may openly exhibit their bargaining power. The bargaining power of suppliers determines the cost of raw materials and other inputs of the industry, and therefore, an industry's attractiveness and profitability. Suppliers can influence the profitability of an industry in a number of ways. Suppliers can command bargaining power over a firm when;

(i) Their products are crucial to the buyer and substitutes are not available.

(ii) They can erect/ensure high switching costs.

(iii) They are more concentrated than their buyers. Less suppliers, more buyers.

There are many companies in the market offering COVID vaccine. Analyse the product in terms of threat of new entrants.

ICAI'S ANSWER

There are three companies offering a vaccine for COVID-19 in India and a fourth company is awaiting approval from authorities.

This product involves huge capital requirements and hence not every existing pharma company is likely to get into the competition. However, once approved for use, the entire world is the target market. This would lead to economies of scale helping the company to recover the investments made. The product differentiation is in terms of the low after effect of the vaccine and the effectiveness of the vaccine in controlling COVID-19. Brand identity is becoming very important with people preferring international brands compared to a home – grown company. Factors like switching cost, access to distribution channels and possibility of aggressive retaliation do not apply at present because governments across the world are controlling these factors and the vaccine has not entered the phase of free competition.

Explain briefly the competitive forces in any industry as identified by Michael Porter.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Five forces model of Michael Porter is a popular tool for systematically diagnosing the significant competitive pressures in the market and assessing their strength and importance. The model holds that the state of competition in an industry is a composite of competitive pressures operating in five forces as follows:

1. Threat of new entrants: New entrants place a limit on prices and affect the profitability of existing players. The new capacity and product range the new entrants bring increases competitive pressure. bigger the new entrant, the more severe the competitive effect.

2. Bargaining power of customers: The bargaining power of the buyers influences not only the prices that the producer can charge but also influence costs and investments of the producer. This force will become heavier depending on the possibilities of the buyers forming groups or cartels, particularly in case of industrial products.

3. Bargaining power of suppliers: Often suppliers can exercise considerable bargaining power. If the suppliers are also limited in number they stand a still better chance to exhibit their bargaining power. The bargaining power of suppliers determines the cost of raw materials and other inputs of the industry and, therefore, can affect industry attractiveness and profitability.

4. Rivalry among current players: The rivalry among existing players is quite obvious. This is what is normally understood as competition. The impact is evident more at functional level in the prices being charged, advertising, and pressures on costs, product and so on.

5. Threats from substitutes: Substitute products are a latent source of competition in an industry. Substitute products offering a price advantage and/or performance improvement to the consumer can have significant impact.

The five forces together determine industry attractiveness/profitability. This is so because these forces influence the causes that underlie industry attractiveness/profitability.

SwiftDeliver Logistics Ltd. is a same-day delivery company operating in six metropolitan cities in India. The company is considering expanding to Tier-2 cities. As part of due diligence, the Strategic Planning team is conducting an industry environment analysis. The team has gathered the following information:

- Many e-commerce firms are building in-house delivery capabilities.
- Fuel prices have risen 18% in the past year.
- Drone-based last-mile delivery start-ups are attracting significant venture capital funding.
- Large e-commerce clients negotiate aggressively on delivery rates. Conduct a Porter's Five Forces analysis for SwiftDeliver using the information provided, identifying the relevant force for each bullet point.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Porter's Five Forces Model, developed by Michael Porter, is a framework used to analyse the competitive forces operating in an industry and to assess its attractiveness. The analysis for SwiftDeliver Logistics Ltd. is as follows:

Observation

Many e-commerce firms are building in-house delivery capabilities.

Relevant Force

Threat of New Entrants

Explanation

Large e-commerce companies developing their own logistics networks increase competition in the industry. This reduces the dependence on third-party logistics providers like SwiftDeliver and may adversely affect its market share.

Observation

Fuel prices have risen 18% in the past year.

Relevant Force

Bargaining Power of Suppliers

Explanation

Fuel is a key input for logistics companies. An increase in fuel prices raises operating costs, indicating higher bargaining power of suppliers and affecting the profitability of the company.

Observation

Drone-based last-mile delivery start-ups are attracting significant venture capital funding.

Relevant Force

Threat of Substitute Products or Services

Explanation

Drone-based delivery is an alternative mode of providing last-mile delivery services. As this technology develops, it may offer faster and more cost-effective delivery solutions, posing a substitute threat to traditional logistics services.

Observation

Large e-commerce clients negotiate aggressively on delivery rates.

Relevant Force

Bargaining Power of Buyers

Explanation

Large customers place bulk orders and contribute significantly to the company's revenue. Their strong bargaining position enables them to demand lower prices, customised services, and better delivery terms, thereby reducing the company's profit margins.

The industry analysis indicates that SwiftDeliver Logistics Ltd. operates in a highly competitive environment characterised by increasing competition, strong bargaining power of buyers and suppliers, and emerging substitute technologies. Before expanding into Tier-2 cities, the company should focus on improving operational efficiency, adopting innovative technologies, and differentiating its services to sustain its competitive advantage.

Riya, the strategy manager of FreshSip Beverages Ltd., was studying the packaged fruit juice market in India before launching a new preservative-free juice brand. She observed that several established brands, low-priced local players, and substitute drinks like smoothies and flavored milk were competing intensely. Which aspect of external environment analysis is reflected in this situation?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The situation reflects the competitive environment (industry environment) aspect of external environment analysis. The competitive environment consists of factors within the industry that influence a firm's competitive position, such as existing competitors, new entrants, substitutes, and pricing rivalry. As per strategic analysis, firms must evaluate industry structure and competitive forces before entering or expanding in a market.

In the given case, Riya observed the presence of many established brands, low-cost local players, and substitute beverages like smoothies and flavored milk. This indicates intense industry rivalry and strong threat from substitutes. Such conditions affect profitability and market entry decisions. Therefore, FreshSip must assess competitive forces and develop appropriate strategies such as differentiation or cost competitiveness to succeed. Hence, the aspect reflected is the competitive (industry) environment of external analysis.

As per Michael Porter's Five Forces Model of Competition, intense rivalry among existing competitors reduces the overall attractiveness and profitability of an industry. In this context, explain the situations in which competition among firms becomes cut-throat, leading to lower industry profitability.

ICAI'S ANSWER

According to Michael Porter's Five Forces framework, rivalry among competitors significantly influences the attractiveness and profitability of an industry. When rivalry becomes cutthroat, several conditions contribute to low industry profitability:

1. Industry Leader Presence: While a strong industry leader can help maintain pricing discipline, the effectiveness diminishes as the number of competitors increases. Many rivals can engage in aggressive pricing strategies, leading to decreased profitability.

2. Number of Competitors: A higher number of competitors increases rivalry, making it difficult for any single firm to control pricing. This leads to intensified price competition, which adversely affects industry profitability.

3. High Fixed Costs: Industries with high fixed costs create pressure on firms to fully utilize their capacity. When firms face excess capacity, they often resort to price cuts to maintain sales volume, which diminishes profitability across the industry.

4. Exit Barriers: High exit barriers prevent firms from leaving the industry, keeping competition high. Specialized assets or other constraints can lead firms to remain in the market, maintaining competitive pressure and negatively impacting profitability for all players.

5. Product Differentiation: In industries lacking product differentiation, firms primarily compete on price. This leads to price wars and lower profitability. In contrast, firms that can differentiate their products tend to achieve higher profit margins and reduce competitive pressure.

6. Slow Industry Growth: When industry growth slows, firms may adopt aggressive tactics to protect or gain market share, resulting in intensified rivalry and diminished profitability as they compete for a limited customer base. In summary, conditions such as the presence of a strong industry leader, the number of competitors, high fixed costs, exit barriers, lack of product differentiation and slow industry growth contribute to cutthroat rivalry and low industry profitability.

Easy Access is a marketing services company providing consultancy to a range of business clients. Easy Access and its rivals have managed to persuade the Government to require all marketing services companies to complete a time-consuming and bureaucratic registration process and to comply with an industry code of conduct. Do you think that by doing this Easy Access and its rivals has an advantage in some ways to fight off competitors? Explain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yes, Easy Access and its rivals get advantage from this move. The new bureaucratic process is making it more complicated for organizations to start up and enter the Easy Access market, increasing barriers to entry and thereby reducing the threat of new entrants. New entrants can reduce an industry's profitability, because they add new production capacity, leading to increase in supply of the product, sometimes even at a lower price and can substantially erode existing firm's market share position. However, New entrants are always a powerful source of competition. The new capacity and product range they bring in throws up a new competitive pressure. The bigger the new entrant, the more severe the competitive effect. New entrants also place a limit on prices and affect the profitability of existing players, which is known as Price War.

Rajiv Arya owns an electrical appliance company specializing in the manufacture of domestic vacuum cleaners. The market is competitive, with four other manufacturers offering similar products and achieving comparable sales volumes. Additionally, these rival firms hold several patents related to the vacuum cleaner technology. The supplier base for raw materials is extensive, with multiple suppliers available. Identify and explain the significant forces from Porter's Five Forces framework that are relevant to Rajiv Arya's company.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The competitive rivalry will be a significant force in case of company of Rajiv Arya as all the rivals are similar in sizes and are manufacturing similar products. It is difficult for any single manufacturer to dominate the market. Large number of patents will make it difficult for new entrants to break into the market. Further, as there are a large number of small suppliers the power that suppliers can exert will also be low. There is no information relating to substitutes and bargaining power of customers in the information given in scenario. However, a domestic vacuum cleaner will directly compete with other options such as house maids. Availability of house maids at low cost can significantly disturb the sales of products. Further, as the products are similar customers can easily shift from one company to another. This will only enhance competitive rivalry.

Explain the concept of Experience Curve and highlight its relevance in strategic management.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Experience curve akin to a learning curve which explains the efficiency increase gained by workers through repetitive productive work. Experience curve is based on the commonly observed phenomenon that unit costs decline as a firm accumulates experience in terms of a cumulative volume of production. It is based on the concept, "we learn as we grow". The implication is that larger firms in an industry would tend to have lower unit costs as compared to those for smaller companies, thereby gaining a competitive cost advantage. Experience curve results from a variety of factors such as learning effects, economies of scale, product redesign and technological improvements in production. Experience curve has following features:

- As business organisation grow, they gain experience.
- Experience may provide an advantage over the competition. Experience is a key barrier to entry.
- Large and successful organisation possess stronger “experience effect”.

A typical experience curve may be depicted as follows:

Figure: Experience curve As a business grows, it understands the complexities and benefits from its experiences. The concept of experience curve is relevant for a number of areas in strategic management. For instance, the experience curve is considered a barrier for new firms contemplating entry in an industry. It is also used to build market share and discourage competition.

Easy Access is a marketing services company providing consultancy to a range of business clients. Easy Access and its rivals have managed to persuade the Government to require all marketing services companies to complete a time-consuming and bureaucratic registration process and to comply with an industry code of conduct. Do you think that by doing this Easy Access and its rivals has an advantage in some way to fight off competitors? Explain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yes, Easy Access and its rivals get advantage by this move. The new bureaucratic process is making it more complicated for organizations to start up and enter in Easy Access market, increasing barriers to entry and thereby reducing the threat of new entrants. New entrants can reduce an industry's profitability, because they add new production capacity, leading to increase in supply of the product, sometimes even at a lower price and can substantially erode existing firm's market share position. However, New entrants are always a powerful source of competition. The new capacity and product range they bring in throws up a new competitive pressure. What are the common barriers that are faced by new entrants when an existing firm earns higher profits?

ICAI'S ANSWER

A firm's profitability tends to be higher when other firms are blocked from entering the industry. New entrants can reduce industry profitability because they add new production capacity leading to increase supply of the product even at a lower price and can substantially erode existing firm's market share. Barriers to entry represent economic forces (or 'hurdles') that slow down or impede entry by other firms. Common barriers to entry include:

(i) Capital requirements: When a large amount of capital is required to enter an industry, firms lacking funds are effectively barred from the industry, thus enhancing the profitability of existing firms in the industry.

(ii) Economies of scale: Many industries are characterized by economic activities driven by economies of scale. Economies of scale refer to the decline in the per-unit cost of production (or other activity) as volume grows. A large firm that enjoys economies of scale can produce high volumes of goods at successively lower costs. This tends to discourage new entrants.

(iii) Product differentiation: Production differentiation refers to the physical or perceptual differences, or enhancements, that make a product special or unique in the eyes of customers. Firms in the personal care products and cosmetics industries actively engage in product differentiation to enhance their products' features. Differentiation works to reinforce entry barriers because the cost of creating genuine product differences may be too high for the new entrants.

(iv) Switching costs: To succeed in an industry, new entrant must be able to persuade existing customers of other companies to switch to its products. To make a switch, buyers may need to test a new firm's product, negotiate new purchase contracts, and train personnel to use the equipment, or modify facilities for product use. Buyers often incur substantial financial (and psychological) costs in switching between firms. When such switching costs are high, buyers are often reluctant to change.

(v) Brand identity: The brand identity of products or services offered by existing firms can serve as another entry barrier. Brand identity is particularly important for infrequently purchased products that carry a high unit cost to the buyer. New entrants often encounter significant difficulties in building up the brand identity, because to do so they must commit substantial resources over a long period.

(vi) Access to distribution channels: The unavailability of distribution channels for new entrants poses another significant entry barrier. Despite the growing power of the internet, many firms may continue to rely on their control of physical distribution channels to sustain a barrier to entry to rivals. Often, existing firms have significant influence over the distribution channels and can retard or impede their use by new firms.

(vii) Possibility of aggressive retaliation: Sometimes the mere threat of aggressive retaliation by incumbents can deter entry by other firms into an existing industry. For example, introduction of products by a new firm may lead existing firms to reduce their product prices and increase their advertising budgets.

A startup company is thinking of launching of a low cost detergent powder in the market. The market of the said product is already dominated by a big FMCG player.

You are advised to put forward your suggestions to the management of the company to deal with the problems of 'Entry 'Barrier' while launching the low cost detergent powder.

ICAI'S ANSWER

There are number of factors that can act as entry barrier for the start-up company. An FMCG, big in size, is already dominating the market space and will act as a strong deterrent for the new start-up. The following will be some suggestions to the management of the start-up to deal with the problem of entry barriers:

1. The company is working on producing low cost detergent. Keeping other expenses also on the lower side the management can create price advantage that is competitive to the existing established players including the large FMCG.

2. The company focussing on single product in comparison to multiple products of an FMCG can develop competencies to produce and sell the low cost detergent that are difficult to deploy by the FMCG by its strategy that addresses needs of multiple products.

3. The start-up needs to have strong financial strength to sustain the onslaught from the dominant FMCG and other players. The start-up can identify sources of capital well in advance and be able to use it judiciously to their advantage.

4. The start-up should identify the customer segments that are likely to switch to the product well in advance so as to target the same and generate the initial hold on the market. Once the product gets some hold and their brands get some identity, the market can be further developed to address other customers.

5. The start-up should identify the environmental factors that go to their advantage. These may include special scheme of the government to encourage entrepreneurs, tax holiday, low interest rates, advantages available to small and medium sized enterprises alike.

6. It has to create an image in the market that its products are qualitative and 'Made in India' to attract a particular segment of customers.

7. They need to have a team of experts and dedicated management professionals who can implement strategies formulated by top management.

What are the five competitive forces in an industry as identified by Michael Porter?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Five forces model of Michael Porter is a popular tool for systematically diagnosing the significant competitive pressures in the market and assessing their strength and importance. The model holds that the state of competition in an industry is a composite of competitive pressures operating in five forces as follows:

1. Threat of new entrants: New entrants place a limit on prices and affect the profitability of existing players. The new capacity and product range the new entrants bring increases competitive pressure.

2. Bargaining power of customers: The bargaining power of the buyers influences not only the prices that the producer can charge but also influence costs and investments of the producer. This force will become heavier depending on the possibilities of the buyers forming groups or cartels, particularly in case of industrial products.

3. Bargaining power of suppliers: Often suppliers can exercise considerable bargaining power. The bargaining power of suppliers determines the cost of raw materials and other inputs of the industry and, therefore, can affect industry attractiveness and profitability.

4. Rivalry among current players: The impact is evident more at functional level in the prices being charged, advertising, and pressures on costs, product and so on.

5. Threats from substitutes: Substitute products are a latent source of competition in an industry. Substitute products offering a price advantage and/or performance improvement to the consumer can have significant impact.

Bharat EV Motors, an Indian electric vehicle manufacturer, has witnessed intense competition in the EV market. Several new domestic and international companies have entered the industry with innovative models. Customers have many alternatives and can easily compare prices and features online. Battery suppliers have increased their prices due to limited availability of raw materials, while petrol and hybrid vehicles continue to remain attractive substitutes for many consumers. In the light of the above case, analyse the competitive environment of Bharat EV Motors using Porter's Five Forces Model. Explain any five competitive forces affecting the company.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Porter's Five Forces Model, developed by Michael Porter, analyses the competitive forces that determine the attractiveness and profitability of an industry.

1. Threat of New Entrants: The entry of new domestic and international EV manufacturers increases competition and reduces the market share of existing firms like Bharat EV Motors.

2. Bargaining Power of Buyers: Customers have several alternatives and can easily compare prices, quality and features, giving them higher bargaining power and forcing companies to offer better value.

3. Bargaining Power of Suppliers: Limited availability of battery raw materials enables suppliers to increase prices, raising production costs and strengthening their bargaining power.

4. Threat of Substitute Products: Petrol, diesel and hybrid vehicles serve as substitutes. If customers find these alternatives more economical or convenient, demand for electric vehicles may decline.

5. Rivalry among Existing Competitors: Intense competition among existing EV manufacturers through pricing, product innovation, technology and marketing increases competitive rivalry and affects profitability.

Thus, Porter's Five Forces help organisations understand the competitive intensity of an industry and formulate strategies to build and sustain a competitive advantage.

Which concept explains the efficiency increase gained by workers through repetitive production work, leading to cost reduction and competitive advantage? List down its relevance features in strategic management.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The concept is Experience Curve. The experience curve, akin to a learning curve, explains the efficiency increase gained by workers through repetitive productive work. It is based on the phenomenon that unit costs decline as a firm accumulates experience in terms of a cumulative volume of production – the idea being, "we learn as we grow."

Relevant Features of Experience Curve in Strategic Management

- As business organisations grow, they gain experience which enables cost efficiencies.

- Experience may provide an advantage over competition as lower costs create a barrier for new entrants.
- Experience is considered a key barrier to entry for new firms contemplating industry entry.
- Large and successful organisations possess stronger experience effect, helping in leadership and cost advantage.

Thus, the experience curve is a critical concept in strategic management as it links growth with learning, cost reduction and competitive advantage, making it a strong determinant of industry positioning and entry barriers.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In light of Michael Porter's Five Forces, new entrepreneurs often face significant barriers that restrain their keenness to enter an industry. These barriers increase the competitiveness of existing firms and discourage new entrants, impacting industry profitability.

(v) Brand Identity: The brand identity of products or services offered by existing firms can serve as another entry barrier. Brand identity is particularly important for infrequently purchased products that carry a high unit cost to the buyer.

(vi) Access to Distribution Channels: The unavailability of distribution channels for new entrants poses another significant entry barrier.

Despite the growing power of the internet, many firms may continue to rely on their control of physical distribution channels to sustain a barrier to entry to rivals.

(vii) Possibility of Aggressive Retaliation: Sometimes the mere threat of aggressive retaliation by incumbents can deter entry by other firms into an existing industry.

CASE SCENARIO

PlaySphere Interactive was founded in Bangalore in 2010 as a small startup developing mobile puzzle games for local users. For several years, its growth remained modest, as the Indian gaming industry was still in its infancy.

In 2015, the new CEO redefined the company's vision as "To be India's leading creator of immersive gaming experiences," and its mission as "To design culturally relevant games with global quality." This gave PlaySphere both long-term direction and concrete operational purpose.

The company's breakthrough came when it launched a fantasy role-playing game, MythQuest, based on Indian mythology. Within a year, it reached millions of downloads. Success was partly due to its core competitive advantage an in-house game engine optimized for low-bandwidth conditions, which allowed seamless multiplayer play. This helped PlaySphere survive intense industry rivalry and the threat of substitutes from foreign gaming platforms, both of which are key forces in Porter's Five Forces model.

As player volumes increased, PlaySphere benefited from the experience curve costs per unit declined as developers became more efficient and processes standardized. This improved profitability despite rising competition.

To manage its expanding portfolio, the company restructured into two Strategic Business Units (SBUs): Mobile Games (casual and puzzle titles) and Immersive Games (RPGs and multiplayer). Each SBU was given autonomy for faster decision-making, while the corporate office focused on resource allocation.

Leadership also played a role. The CEO adopted a participative leadership style, involving development teams in key creative and technical decisions, which boosted morale and innovation.

In 2020, sudden regulations on in-app purchases threatened revenues. PlaySphere responded using special alert control, adjusting its monetization models quickly to stay compliant. At the same time, it relied on premise control to monitor assumptions about growth in internet penetration and youth demographics, ensuring its strategies remained valid.

Today, PlaySphere stands as one of Bangalore's fastest-growing gaming companies, with revenues crossing ₹ 4,000 crore, symbolizing how strategic clarity and adaptive execution can turn a startup into a national leader.

Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple-Choice Questions.

Karan Malhotra owns a company that operates a chain of organic food restaurants in metropolitan cities. The market has a limited number of premium organic restaurants, but customers have many alternative dining options such as fast-food outlets, home-cooked meals, and food delivery services. Customers are highly conscious of price and quality and frequently switch between restaurants based on offers and reviews. Additionally, entering the organic restaurant business requires moderate investment and compliance with food safety standards, but no major technological barriers exist. Identify the Porter's Five Forces that are significant in this scenario and explain their impact on the company.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In this case, the bargaining power of customers is a significant force. Customers have multiple dining choices and are highly price sensitive. Since switching costs are low, they can easily move to other restaurants offering better value, quality, or discounts. This forces the company to continuously improve its offerings and pricing strategies.

The threat of substitutes is also high, as customers can opt for alternatives such as fast food, home-cooked meals, or online food delivery services. These substitutes can significantly impact demand, especially if they are more convenient or cost-effective.

The threat of new entrants is moderate because, although some investment and regulatory compliance are required, there are no major technological barriers. New players can enter the market if they identify growth opportunities, increasing competition over time.

The competitive rivalry is moderate, as there are limited premium organic restaurants, but competition still exists in attracting and retaining health-conscious customers.

There is no strong indication of high or low bargaining power of suppliers in the scenario. However, if organic ingredient suppliers are limited, supplier power could increase; otherwise, it may remain moderate.

Explain the concept of Experience Curve and highlight its relevance in strategic management.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Experience curve akin to a learning curve which explains the efficiency increase gained by workers through repetitive productive work. Experience curve is based on the commonly observed phenomenon that unit costs decline as a firm accumulates experience in terms of a cumulative volume of production. It is based on the concept, "we learn as we grow".

The implication is that larger firms in an industry tend to have lower unit costs compared to those for smaller companies, thereby gaining a competitive cost advantage.

Experience curve results from a variety of factors such as learning effects, economies of scale, product redesign and technological improvements in production.

Experience curve has following features:

- As business organisation grow, they gain experience.
- Experience may provide an advantage over the competition. Experience is a key barrier to entry.
- Large and successful organisation possess stronger “experience effect”.

A typical experience curve may be depicted as follows:

As a business grows, it understands the complexities and benefits from its experiences.

The concept of experience curve is relevant for a number of areas in strategic management. For instance, the experience curve is considered a barrier for new firms contemplating entry into an industry. It is also used to build market share and discourage competition.

Easy Access is a marketing services company providing consultancy to a range of business clients. Easy Access and its rivals have managed to persuade the Government to require all marketing services companies to complete a time-consuming and bureaucratic registration process and to comply with an industry code of conduct. Do you think that by doing this Easy Access and its rivals has an advantage in some ways to fight off competitors? Explain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yes, Easy Access and its rivals get advantage by this move. The new bureaucratic process is making it more complicated for organizations to start up and enter the Easy Access market, increasing barriers to entry and thereby reducing the threat of new entrants. New entrants can reduce an industry's profitability, because they add new production capacity, leading to increase in supply of the product, sometimes even at a lower price and can substantially erode existing firm's market share position. However, New entrants are always a powerful source of competition. The new capacity and product range they bring in throws up a new competitive pressure. The bigger the new entrant, the more severe the competitive effect. New entrants also place a limit on prices and affect the profitability of existing players, which is known as Price War.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Buyers of an industry's products or services can sometimes exert considerable pressure on existing firms to secure lower prices or better services. This is evident in situations where buyers enjoy a superior position than the seller of the product. This leverage is particularly evident when:

(i) Buyers have full knowledge of the sources of products and their substitutes.

(ii) They spend a lot of money on the industry's products, i.e., they are big buyers.

(iii) The industry's product is not perceived as critical to the buyer's needs and buyers are more concentrated than firms supplying the product. They can easily switch to the substitutes available.

Rajiv Arya is owner of an electrical appliance company that specializes in manufacturing of domestic vacuum cleaners. There are four other manufacturers with similar products and sales volume. Current rival firms also own a number of patents related to the product. The supplier base for procurement of raw material is also very large as there are multiple suppliers.

Identify Porter's Five Forces that may be classified as significant for the company? Explain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The competitive rivalry will be a significant force in case of company of Rajiv Arya as all the rivals are similar in sizes and are manufacturing similar products. It is difficult for any single manufacturer to dominate the market. Large number of patents will make it difficult for new entrants to break into the market. Further, as there are a large number of small suppliers the power that suppliers can exert will also be low.

There is no information relating to substitutes and bargaining power of customers in the information given in scenario. However, a domestic vacuum cleaner will directly compete with other options such as house maids. Availability of house maids at low cost can significantly disturb the sales of products.

Further, as the products are similar customers can easily shift from one compa ny to another. This will only enhance competitive rivalry.

Pulkit was very confident about cloud kitchen business model, and he bought three real estate spaces in very hideous localities. Later due to government and court orders the cloud kitchens had to be only operated in a well-ventilated space, which made his investment redundant. What aspect of industry competition is Pulkit currently faced as a result of this situation?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Pulkit may be facing exit barriers due to his investment in the real estate spaces. Exit barriers are factors that make it difficult for a company to exit a particular market or industry. In this case, Pulkit's investment in the real estate spaces may make it difficult for him to exit the cloud kitchen industry or switch to a different business model. If Pulkit is unable to find new spaces or make the necessary renovations, he may be forced to continue operating in the hideous localities, which may impact his brand image and customer experience. This can create an exit barrier for Pulkit as it may be difficult for him to turn to a different business model or exit the industry entirely. Additionally, Pulkit may have incurred significant sunk costs in the purchase and renovation of the real estate spaces, which can create a further exit barrier. Sunk costs refer to costs that have already been incurred and cannot be recovered. If Pulkit has invested a significant amount of money in the real estate spaces, he may be hesitant to exit the industry or switch to a different business model as it may mean that he has to write off the sunk costs.

Therefore, Pulkit may be facing exit barriers due to his investment in the real estate spaces, which may make it difficult for him to adapt to the new requirements or exit the industry entirely.

CASE SCENARIO

Case Scenario - II :

Jatin opened a shop with a wooden counter and two shelves at the corner of a narrow lane in a quiet neighbourhood. He sold some basic stationery and grocery items. Most of his customers were neighbours who appreciated the convenience, even though the selection of items was limited.

Although Jatin's shop was small, his approach was always customer-centric as he actively led the efforts on customer prioritization. He analyzed his customers well, studied their brand preferences and the groceries usually bought by them. He knew that customers are vital for the shop's existence as they provide revenue and resultant profits. His shop was known for neat displays, fair prices but more importantly trusted for transparent quality.

Once during the monsoons, when heavy rains disrupted the retail supply chains, many larger stores struggled to restock. However, Jatin's shelves remained fuller than many of them because he had built strong relationship with small suppliers and partnered with local farmers to source directly. He also offered discounts on certain items of daily use to his regular customers. As a result, his store gained popularity and customers even from nearby areas apart from the immediate neighbourhood also began visiting his store.

To cater to increasing growth, Jatin reinvested his earnings to expand his shelves by adding fresh vegetables, dairy products & other items of daily requirement and extended the store hours. With growth as the shop started lacking space, he acquired an adjacent shop thereby doubling his shop size.

However, with passage of time, competition intensified with big retail chains opening their supermarkets nearby. The new stores were fully air-conditioned with bright lights, several options and carried out extensive advertisements. Again, modern customers also started purchasing groceries through delivery apps offering discounts and same day delivery. As footfall declined Jatin faced a decrease in revenue and increasing pressure to modernize operations.

Jatin stayed calm and decided not to compete directly with the large retailers and the online platforms. He believed the ability to execute and make a real difference is more important than mere strategizing. Instead he responded by introducing small but meaningful novel ideas. He decided to provide personalized services to the neighbourhood. He remembered customer preferences and kept a regular track of customers' monthly purchases. He also started taking orders over the phone, popular messaging apps and introduced personalized home delivery for the existing elderly customers. Customers began preferring his shop despite higher prices because of its quality and specialized differentiated offerings.

Over the years Jatin's shop grew in size combining the efficiency of modern retail stores with the warmth of a neighbourhood shop. Customers can now find almost everything they need under one roof.

Based on the above case scenario, choose the correct answer to Q. Nos. 9 to 13.

Mr. Rohit Khanna runs a chain of organic grocery stores under the brand name "Green Basket" in northern India. Over the past two years, he has faced intense competition from large retail chains and online delivery platforms offering organic products at discounted prices. Despite loyal customers, his profit margins are shrinking. On his consultant's advice, Rohit decided to undertake a comprehensive study to understand the competitors, their vision, mission, and financial status to gain competitive advantage. Identify the business analysis done by Mr. Rohit and discuss steps to carry out the same.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In the given case, Mr. Rohit Khanna has undertaken Competitor Analysis/Competitive Landscape analysis. Competitor analysis is a part of external environment analysis, wherein a firm systematically studies its competitors to understand their objectives, strategies, strengths, weaknesses and capabilities in order to gain competitive advantage. Steps to Understand the Competitive Landscape

1. Identify the Competitors: The first step is to identify existing and potential competitors in the industry and collect data regarding their respective market shares.

2. Understand the Competitors: After identification, information about competitors' products and services, pricing, distribution and strategies is gathered through sources such as market research reports, internet, newspapers, social media and industry publications.

3. Determine Competitors' Strengths: Analyse what competitors do well, such as superior products, strong branding, effective marketing or efficient operations and why customers prefer them.

4. Determine Competitors' Weaknesses: Weaknesses are identified through consumer reports, reviews and feedback available in various media, highlighting areas where competitors underperform.

5. Put all of the information together: All information is consolidated to identify gaps in competitors' offerings and areas where the firm can improve or differentiate to build competitive advantage.

Thus, through Competitor Analysis, Mr. Rohit can better understand the competitive dynamics of the organic grocery market and formulate suitable strategies to protect profit margins and sustain the competitive position of Green Basket.

Mr. LMN has established a successful venture in the textiles sector in Maharashtra. His enterprise specializes in crafting unique and high-quality home furnishings, which have garnered significant market presence. However, there was a sales dip in the previous year. Seeking professional advice, Mr. LMN consulted a strategic management expert who suggested his first course of action should be to grasp the dynamics of the competitive landscape.

In order to comprehend the competitive landscape, what steps should Mr. LMN follow?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Understanding the competitive landscape is crucial for Mr. LMN to navigate the textile sector in Maharashtra successfully. This involves identifying both direct and indirect competitors while gaining insights into their vision, mission, core values, niche markets, and strengths and weaknesses. Here are the structured steps Mr. LMN should follow to comprehend the competitive landscape and bolster his strategic position:

(i) Identify the competitor: The first step to understand the competitive landscape is to identify the competitors in the firm's industry and have actual data about their respective market share.

(ii) Understand the competitors: Once the competitors have been identified, the strategist can use market research report, internet, newspapers, social media, industry reports, and various other sources to understand the products and services offered by them in different markets.

(iii) Determine the strengths of the competitors: What are the strengths of the competitors? What do they do well? Do they offer great products? Do they utilize marketing in a way that comparatively reaches out to more consumers? Why do customers give them their business?

(iv) Determine the weaknesses of the competitors: Weaknesses (and strengths) can be identified by going through consumer reports and reviews appearing in various media. After all, consumers are often willing to give their opinions, especially when the products or services are either great or very poor.

(v) Put all of the information together: At this stage, the strategist should put together all information about competitors and draw inference about what they are not offering and what the firm can do to fill in the gaps. The strategist can also know the areas which need to be strengthened by the firm.

By following these steps, Mr. LMN can gain a comprehensive understanding of the competitive landscape, enabling him to make informed strategic decisions. This tailored approach considers the specific dynamics of the textile sector in Maharashtra, ensuring that the insights gained are directly applicable to his business context.

Competitive landscape is a business analysis which identifies competitors, either direct or indirect. Competitive landscape is about identifying and understanding the competitors and at the same time, it permits the comprehension of their vision, mission, core values, niche market, strengths and weaknesses.

Steps to understand the competitive landscape are:

(i) Identify the competitor: The first step to understand the competitive landscape is to identify the competitors in the firm's industry and have actual data about their respective market share.

(ii) Understand the competitors: Once the competitors have been identified, the strategist can use market research report, internet, newspapers, social media, industry reports, and various other sources to understand the products and services offered by them in different markets.

(iii) Determine the strengths of the competitors: What are the strength of the competitors? What do they do well? Do they offer great products? Do they utilize marketing in a way that comparatively reaches out to more consumers? Why do customers give them their business?

(iv) Determine the weaknesses of the competitors: Weaknesses (and strengths) can be identified by going through consumer reports and reviews appearing in various media. After all, consumers are often willing to give their opinions, especially when the products or services are either great or very poor.

(v) Put all of the information together: At this stage, the strategist should put together all information about competitors and draw inference about what they are not offering and what the firm can do to fill in the gaps. The strategist can also know the areas which need to be strengthen by the firm.

Examine the significance of KSFs (Key Success Factors) for competitive success.

ICAI'S ANSWER

As industry's Key Success Factors (KSFs) are those things that most affect industry members' ability to prosper in the market place – the particular strategy elements, product attributes, resources, competencies, competitive capabilities and business outcomes that spell the difference between profit & loss and ultimately, between competitive success or failure. KSFs by their very nature are so important that all firms in the industry must pay close attention to them. They are the prerequisites for industry success, or, to put it in another way, KSFs are the rules that shape whether a company will be financially and competitively successful.

Mr. Arun Kumar has built a successful business in the handmade ceramic products industry in Gujarat. His company, CeramiCrafts, is renowned for crafting distinctive, high-quality ceramic home décor items that have gained a strong foothold in the market. However, recent market shifts and rising competition have impacted sales. Seeking professional guidance, Mr. Kumar consults a strategic advisor who recommends an in-depth analysis of the competitive landscape. To comprehend the competitive landscape, what steps should Mr. Kumar follow?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Understanding the competitive landscape is crucial for Mr. Arun Kumar to navigate the handmade ceramic products industry in Gujarat successfully. This involves identifying both direct and indirect competitors while gaining insights into their vision, mission, core values, niche markets, and strengths and weaknesses. Here are the structured steps Mr. Kumar should follow to comprehend the competitive landscape and bolster his strategic position:

(i) Identify the competitor: The first step to understanding the competitive landscape is to identify the competitors in the handmade ceramic products industry. Mr. Kumar should gather actual data on the market share and positioning of competitors within the industry.

(ii) Understand the competitors: Once the competitors have been identified, Mr. Kumar can use market research reports, the internet, newspapers, social media, industry reports, and various other sources to understand the products and services offered by competitors. This will help him comprehend how they position themselves in different markets and their unique selling propositions.

(iii) Determine the strengths of the competitors: Mr. Kumar should assess what the competitors excel at. Do they offer superior product quality? Are they using marketing strategies that reach a wider customer base? Why do consumers choose them over others? Understanding these strengths will help Mr. Kumar identify areas where his company, CeramiCrafts, can enhance its offerings.

(iv) Determine the weaknesses of the competitors: Weaknesses of competitors can be identified by reviewing customer feedback, consumer reports, and reviews. Consumers often share their experiences, especially when products or services are either exceptional or subpar. By examining these weaknesses, Mr. Kumar can find opportunities to position CeramiCrafts as a better alternative.

(v) Put all of the information together: At this stage, Mr. Kumar should consolidate all the information gathered about competitors. This will help him identify gaps in the market that his company can fill, as well as areas where CeramiCrafts needs to improve. By understanding the competition thoroughly, he can devise strategies that strengthen his market position. By following these steps, Mr. Kumar can gain a comprehensive understanding of the competitive landscape, enabling him to make informed strategic decisions for CeramiCrafts. This tailored approach ensures that the insights gained are directly applicable to the handmade ceramic products industry in Gujarat.

Cosmetics include a huge range of products, from skin care to hair care, makeup (the most profitable), lip care, hygiene products and many more lines of personal care. However, Aanya being a trained nano art designer and Anand driven by Nail Art, happened to share common interests, and hence, built Naileo.

The business plan was simple, collaborate with online service providers, be active on social media, offer paid promotions, and give out free trials to lure in customers. The focus being on creating a connection. Clearly, the target group was young working females who could spend decent amounts of money on personal luxury. The brand wanted to cash on easy disposal income of the target consumers. However, in the same segment for men, tattoo parlours were already taking away the share of business. These tattoo brands could easily transition into Nail Art and be a tough competition to Naileo. The team had to be aware of the competitor dynamics.

Anand had personal connections in Solan district of Himachal Pradesh, where they planned to open small workshops to produce artificial nails of high quality to be sold pan- India, online as well as to other parlours. The team of two also wanted to add value to the society. For that they offered free training to young girls and offered them permanent employment. The customers found the initiative quite enriching and supported them by being loyal to their services. This was an unplanned aspect of brand building that added more value than paid promotions.

The brand has been doing well lately, with the economic model being sustainable so far. They plan to open two more stores in Mumbai and a flagship store in Bengaluru. With a set vision of the future and a socially impactful mission, Naileo has been a profitable bet for Anand and Aanya.

CASE SCENARIO

Increasing investment in the share market, mutual funds, and equity/debt investment plans from the growing salaried middle class gave birth to Scripzy, an Artificial Intelligence based market predictor and digital brokerage company. The company is headquartered in Mumbai and has a team of 100+ IT professionals working on building a safe and secure digital infrastructure.

The market is saturated. There is fierce competition and big brands have all jumped in with digital offerings for their existing customers. Scripzy, on the other hand, is new and vulnerable but its organic reach to the young earning set of customers is a winning streak. This was achieved by project Force.

Project Force was a secret market analysis conducted by internal teams to find sustainable competitive advantages, focus on final product attributes most valued by customers and imitate the competitive capabilities of competitors. It was a complete final product-customer approach which helped them win over youngsters.

Interestingly, the company being AI based has also automated its internal decision making with in-house AI decision making bots. The top management explains their requirements to the AI bot and the bot makes functional decisions that are to be executed by respective teams. It also engages with team leaders and sends regular reports on fulfilments. This projected a very strong image for the company in the international market and a Chinese investor offered them a huge undisclosed amount to buy-out the AI system. Scripzy immediately accepted the offer and earned huge sums from the unexpected sale.

Repercussions followed and their core customers, the youth, boycotted their product. The team had to approach the share market leaders to support and with a little influence from the share market leaders, they were able to regain their “True Indian Company” status in the media. Nonetheless, damage had been done and they saw their customer base shattered to an all time low.

Decisions which seem economically attractive are multi-faceted, and this is one lesson that Scripzy shall remember for times to come. Business for now is low and weak, but a good strategy can change the landscape for Scripzy's future.

Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple Choice Questions.

Connect Private Limited, a Mumbai based company is launching a smartphone, under the brand name of Poppy. The company recognizes plethora of options that customers have from Chinese manufacturers flooding the smartphone landscape. With recent COVID-19 pandemic hurting the global sentiment towards Chinese products, the company plans to play on the patriotic card and advertise Poppy as the “Desi” smartphone of India. Strategic Arm of the company undertook an industry analysis and reported, that, budget phone segment was overtaken by the Chinese brands completely; however, the low segment of smartphones was still open for exploration. Thus, the company planned to enter the market with two models, Poppy A and Poppy B, priced at ' 4,499 and ' 5,499. The company is also aware that their product can easily be imitated at same costing as well as pricing, and thus the very essence of their product can be lost. A team of marketing professionals was hired to tackle this issue. The solution they suggested was to take the first mover advantage by spending huge sums in advertising and promotion. Based on sound consciousness of the competition from huge money backed international players, the company decided to manufacture smartphone covers and accessories with the same “Desi” tag, along with Poppy smartphones. This shall help them mitigate the risk of being completely thrown out of business. Consequently, they invested a fairly good amount in manufacturing of these accessories.

The investors made it an objective for the team to reach an annual sales volume of 15,000 handsets and 70,000 pieces of accessories. The accessories sales surpassed the expectations by a fairly good margin. However, Poppy A and Poppy B did not receive the much anticipated response and the leadership decided to reduce the scope and focus purely on accessories business going forward.

With a new focus on accessories production, the “Desi” tag will still play an important part in the success. However, they need to ensure creation of strong barriers to entry for domestic players, and for that, they have plans to increase the production to enormous levels. This shall reduce their unit cost, thus, eliminating the new entrants due t o extremely competitive pricing.

A luxury skincare brand saw a sudden spike in sales after celebrity endorsements and social media promotions. What factors could be influencing this change in consumer buying behavior, and why is understanding such behavior critical to business success?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The sudden surge in demand for the skincare brand after celebrity endorsements can be explained through the framework of Consumer Behaviour, which goes beyond identifying customers and focuses on how they purchase products, their preferences, perceptions and shopping patterns.

Consumer behaviour is influenced by four major conceptual domains:

1. External Influences: These include factors such as advertisements, celebrity endorsements, peer recommendations and social norms. In this case, the endorsements and social media promotions acted as strong marketing stimuli, directly shaping how consumers perceived the brand and influencing their decision to purchase.

2. Internal Influences: These are psychological processes within the consumer, such as motivation, attitudes and perception. The promotions may have altered consumer perception of the product's quality and created motivation linked to beauty, self-image or aspirational lifestyles, prompting purchase.

3. Decision-Making Process: Consumers often follow a sequence:

- Problem recognition
- Search for alternatives
- Information seeking and evaluation
- Final choice

The endorsements and promotions helped consumers recognise the product as a desirable solution, providing information and reducing perceived risk, leading to quicker and more confident decision-making.

4. Post-Decision Processes: If customers feel satisfied after purchase, they will repeat buying and recommend the brand to others, helping sustain the increased sales. If dissatisfied, they may experience dissonance and not return.

Understanding customer behaviour—its external and internal influences, decision-making stages and post-purchase reactions—is critical. It enables businesses to communicate effectively, design relevant marketing campaigns, deliver products that meet consumer needs and retain customers for repeat sales.

ZymaTech Pvt. Ltd., a growing player in the smart home devices industry, seeks to increase its market share amidst strong competition from HomeEdge, AutoNest and IntelliSpace. Each competitor holds a distinct edge —brand loyalty, pricing & distribution reach and AI driven product innovation respectively. However, IntelliSpace faces criticism regarding post-sales service. ZymaTech, while offering decent product quality, struggles with brand visibility and customer service. As a strategist at ZymaTech, how would Mr. Anoj Dass apply the steps involved in understanding the competitive landscape to help the company build a sustainable competitive advantage?

ICAI'S ANSWER

To improve ZymaTech's competitive advantage, Mr. Anoj Dass would apply the five steps of understanding the competitive landscape as follows:

1. Identify the competitors: ZymaTech has already identified its three major competitors—HomeEdge, AutoNest and IntelliSpace. Data on their market share confirms they are significant players in the smart home industry.

2. Understand the competitors: Through market reports, online reviews, and competitor websites, Mr. Anoj Dass would assess each competitor's product portfolio, pricing, market presence and customer feedback. This helps understand what they offer and how they position themselves.

3. Determine the strengths of the competitors: HomeEdge has strong brand loyalty—this makes it a premium and trusted choice. AutoNest's strength lies in affordability and an extensive distribution network. IntelliSpace leads in premium AI-driven innovations but faces service issues.

4. Determine the weaknesses of the competitors: IntelliSpace's weak post-sales service is a gap ZymaTech can exploit. AutoNest's lower product quality (not mentioned but inferred from low price) and HomeEdge's premium pricing could be other opportunities.

5. Put all of the information together: ZymaTech should improve its customer service, enhance brand visibility through digital campaigns and offer mid-range AI-integrated products to position itself between AutoNest's affordability and IntelliSpace's premium features. It should target the segment looking for quality and innovation at a reasonable price—thereby exploiting competitor gaps and strengthening its own capabilities.

Competitive landscape is a business analysis which identifies competitors, either direct or indirect. Competitive landscape is about identifying and understanding the competitors and at the same time, it permits the comprehension of their vision, mission, core values, niche market, strengths and weaknesses.

An in-depth investigation and analysis of a firm's competition allows it to assess the competitors' strengths and weaknesses in the marketplace and helps it to choose and implement effective strategies that will improve its competitive advantage.

Steps to understand the competitive landscape for building competitive advantage are:

(i) Identify the competitor: The first step to understanding the competitive landscape is to identify the competitors in the firm's industry and have actual data about their respective market share.

(ii) Understand the competitors: Once the competitors have been identified, the strategist can use market research report, internet, newspapers, social media, industry reports, and various other sources to understand the products and services offered by them in different markets.

(iii) Determine the strengths of the competitors: What are the strengths of the competitors? What do they do well? Do they offer great products? Do they utilize marketing in a way that comparatively reaches out to more consumers? Why do customers give them their business?

(iv) Determine the weaknesses of the competitors: Weaknesses (and strengths) can be identified by going through consumer reports and reviews appearing in various media. After all, consumers are often willing to give their opinions, especially when the products or services are either great or very poor.

(v) Put all of the information together: At this stage, the strategist should put together all information about competitors and draw inference about what they are not offering and what the firm can do to fill in the gaps. The strategist can also know the areas which need to be strengthened by the firm.

"Managing stakeholders is critical to the success of a project". Explain how Mendelow's Matrix helps in managing stakeholders and categorizing the stakeholders into groups.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The Mendelow's matrix is a simple framework to help manage key stakeholders.

Managing Stakeholders: Mendelow's Matrix is an essential tool for managing stakeholders effectively in project management, as it involves managing the competing interests of various stakeholders. It categorizes stakeholders based on their power and interest levels. This framework helps project managers to identify which stakeholders are incredibly important and prioritize their engagement strategies to ensure project success.

Categorization of Stakeholders: The matrix divides stakeholders into four groups:

- Key Players (High Power, High Interest): These stakeholders require close management and regular communication. Engaging them fully ensures their support and input, which is crucial for project success. For instance, CEOs and shareholders fall into this category.
- Keep Satisfied (High Power, Low Interest): While these stakeholders have significant influence, they may not be as invested in the project's success. It is essential to keep them satisfied with sufficient information to prevent potential conflicts.
- Keep Informed (Low Power, High Interest): Stakeholders in this group are interested in the project but lack the power to influence its outcome. Regular updates and communication can foster goodwill and may provide valuable feedback.
- Low Priority (Low Power, Low Interest): These stakeholders require minimal attention. Monitoring their interest and power levels periodically is sufficient, as they do not significantly impact the project.

In summary, Mendelow's Matrix provides a clear framework for categorizing stakeholders based on their power and interest, facilitating effective stakeholder management and enhancing the likelihood of project success.

EcoBuild Constructions, a leading infrastructure development company, is planning to launch a large-scale smart city project. The project involves multiple stakeholders, including government bodies, investors, suppliers, local communities and environmental groups — each with varying levels of influence and interest. To ensure smooth project execution and stakeholder cooperation, the management wants to analyze and manage these stakeholders effectively. How can EcoBuild Constructions use Mendelow's Matrix to analyze and manage stakeholders in this project?

ICAI'S ANSWER

EcoBuild Constructions can use Mendelow's Matrix effectively to analyze and manage stakeholders through a structured, grid-based approach by following these steps:

1. Identify Stakeholders: Begin by identifying all relevant stakeholders such as government bodies, investors, suppliers, environmental groups and local communities who may influence or be affected by the project.

2. Assess Power and Interest: Evaluate each stakeholder's power (ability to influence project outcomes) and interest (level of concern or involvement). Power may stem from authority, resources or expertise, while interest relates to the stakeholder's stake in the project's success.

3. Plot Stakeholders on the Grid: Create a grid with Power on one axis and Interest on the other. Plot stakeholders accordingly:

o High Power–High Interest: Key Players

o High Power–Low Interest: Keep Satisfied

o Low Power–High Interest: Keep Informed

o Low Power–Low Interest: Low Priority

4. Develop Strategies for Each Quadrant:

o Key Players: Engage closely with these stakeholders, involve them in decision-making and keep them informed as their support is vital for project success.

o Keep Satisfied: Provide periodic updates and address concerns to maintain their satisfaction and prevent potential opposition.

o Keep Informed: Communicate regularly and share progress updates to sustain their interest and gain valuable feedback.

o Low Priority: Monitor occasionally for changes in their power or interest but allocate minimal resources to manage them.

5. Monitor and Adapt: Continuously review stakeholder power and interest, as these may change over time. Adjust engagement strategies accordingly to ensure ongoing alignment with project goals. By applying Mendelow's Matrix, EcoBuild Constructions can systematically analyze and manage stakeholders, tailor communication and engagement efforts and build strong relationships—thereby increasing the likelihood of the project's success.

Soltex Green Energy is rolling out a major wind project in a coastal town. A local business coalition with strong political ties and deep interest in the project has started influencing policy discussions. The company's strategy team is closely engaging with them while managing other stakeholders differently. What might be the reason Soltex is prioritizing engagement with this specific group? Identify and briefly explain the four types of stakeholder categories businesses typically deal with in such situations.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Soltex Green Energy is prioritizing engagement with the local business coalition because they fall under the category of Key Players in Mendelow's Stakeholder Matrix. This group possesses high power (due to strong political ties and ability to influence policy) and high interest (due to deep involvement in the wind project). As per Mendelow's Matrix, such stakeholders must be fully engaged, informed regularly, and their advice and expectations carefully considered, as they can significantly impact the success of the project. Mendelow's Matrix categorizes stakeholders into four types based on their Power (ability to influence the organization) and Interest (concern with the organization's success):

1. Key Players (High Power, High Interest): These stakeholders should be closely managed and fully engaged. They are critical to strategic decisions.

2. Keep Satisfied (High Power, Low Interest): These stakeholders should be kept satisfied with regular information but not over-communicated with.

3. Keep Informed (Low Power, High Interest): These stakeholders must be kept adequately informed to avoid misunderstandings and gain useful feedback.

4. Low Priority (Low Power, Low Interest): These stakeholders require minimal effort, only to be monitored occasionally.

Power / Influence
High

Interest in the Organisation: Low
KEEP SATISFIED — Consult often; Increase their interest; Can be hindrance to new ideas or strategic choices

Interest in the Organisation: High
KEY PLAYER — Manage Closely; Involve in decision making; Engage regularly and build strong relationship

Power / Influence
Low

Interest in the Organisation: Low
LOW PRIORITY — Monitor only, no engagement; General occasional communication

Interest in the Organisation: High
KEEP INFORMED — Utilise the high interest by engaging in decisions; Consult in their areas of expertise and interest

Mendelow's Matrix thus helps organizations like Soltex to allocate their time, resources, and communication efforts strategically across different stakeholder groups, adjusting the engagement as the environment evolves.

CASE SCENARIO

Once upon a time in the land of sun, sand, and vibrant cultures, there existed a company named "MuseoGoa" - a company that managed museums in the beautiful state of Goa. MuseoGoa had a vision to celebrate the rich history and culture of Goa, but their journey was not without its fair share of challenges. MuseoGoa had chosen a picturesque location in a quaint village to build their first museum. However, this initial enthusiasm was met with an uproar from the local communities. The villagers were concerned about the impact on their way of life and traditions. They worried that the influx of tourists might disrupt their peaceful existence. To address this challenge, MuseoGoa applied Mendelow's matrix, identifying the local communities as key stakeholders. They decided to engage in open dialogues, understanding and respecting the villagers' concerns. MuseoGoa initiated community-building activities, such as involving locals in museum operations, supporting local artisans, and organizing cultural events that showcased the village's heritage. Slowly but steadily, the company transformed from being perceived as a threat to a valued partner within the community. While MuseoGoa had successfully resolved their initial issues with the local community, they faced another challenge. Their location, although idyllic, was a bit off the beaten path. Tourists typically preferred the bustling beaches closer to the city, and this posed a real challenge. MuseoGoa decided to employ a pricing strategy. They priced their tickets affordably, significantly cheaper than the city's attractions. This strategy attracted budget-conscious tourists who were looking for unique experiences in Goa without burning a hole in their pockets. As word spread about the cultural gem tucked away in the village, visitors started flocking in, drawn not just by the museum's charm but also the economical ticket prices. In the age of social media, MuseoGoa knew that word-of-mouth was no longer limited to whispers. They tapped into the power of social media to promote their unique museum experience. MuseoGoa ran interactive campaigns, encouraging visitors to share their experiences on various platforms. One particular Instagram post featuring a vibrant Goan mural in the museum went viral. This was the turning point. The picture-perfect aesthetics of the museum attracted influencers, bloggers, and travel enthusiasts, making MuseoGoa a social media sensation. Visitors came pouring in, not just from India but from across the globe, eager to capture their own moments at the "Instagrammable Museum of Goa." With success came ambition. MuseoGoa decided to expand its footprint beyond Goa. To guide this expansion, they conducted a strategy audit and trend analysis. They identified emerging cultural and tourism trends and found potential markets in Pune and Trivandrum. In Pune, MuseoGoa curated a special exhibition that celebrated the fusion of Goan and Maharashtrian cultures. They strategically partnered with local influencers and travel agencies to market the new experience. The expansion into Pune was met with resounding success. For Trivandrum, MuseoGoa recognized the importance of local traditions and the distinct flavor of Kerala. They tailored their offerings to harmonize with the regional culture. MuseoGoa became the gateway for tourists to explore Kerala's rich heritage, with the museum acting as a bridge between Goa and Kerala's cultural tapestry. MuseoGoa's journey from initial uproar to expansion was a testament to their commitment to community building, strategic pricing, social media savvy, and a keen eye for trends. The company continued to flourish, celebrating the diverse cultural tapestry of India and making history come alive in every location they touched.

How can Mendelow's Matrix be used to analyze and manage the stakeholders effectively?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Mendelow's Matrix can be used effectively to analyze and manage stakeholders through a grid-based approach by the following steps:

1. Identify Stakeholders: Begin by identifying all relevant stakeholders for your project or organization. This includes individuals, groups, or organizations that may be impacted by or have an impact on your activities.

2. Assess Power and Interest: For each stakeholder, assess their power to influence your project or organization and their level of interest in its success. Power can be assessed based on factors such as authority, resources, and expertise, while interest can be gauged by their level of involvement, expectations, and potential benefits or risks.

3. Plot Stakeholders on the Grid: Create a grid with Power on one axis and Interest on the other. Plot each stakeholder on the grid based on your assessment. Stakeholders with high power and high interest are placed in the "Key Players" quadrant, those with high power but low interest are in the "Keep Satisfied" quadrant, those with low power but high interest are in the "Keep Informed" quadrant, and those with low power and low interest are in the "Low Priority" quadrant.

4. Develop Strategies for each Quadrant: Based on the placement of stakeholders in the grid, develop specific strategies for managing each quadrant:

- Key Players: Fully engage with these stakeholders, seek their input, and keep them informed. They are crucial for the success of your project, so their needs and expectations should be a top priority.
- Keep Satisfied: These stakeholders have significant power but may not be as interested in your project. Keep them satisfied by providing regular updates and addressing any concerns they may have to prevent them from becoming detractors.
- Keep Informed: While these stakeholders may not have much power, they are highly interested in your project. Keep them informed to ensure they remain supportive and to leverage their insights and feedback.
- Low Priority: These stakeholders have low power and interest. Monitor them for any changes but allocate minimal resources to managing their expectations.

5. Monitor and Adapt: Continuously monitor the power and interest of stakeholders and adjust your strategies accordingly. Stakeholders may move between quadrants based on changing circumstances, so it's important to remain flexible and responsive. By using Mendelow's Matrix as a grid-based tool, you can effectively analyze and manage stakeholders by tailoring your engagement strategies to their specific needs and expectations, ultimately increasing the likelihood of project success.

GreenBasket Pvt. Ltd., an online grocery retailer, is planning to expand its operations across India. The management recognises that different stakeholders have varying levels of influence and interest in the organisation. While the company intends to engage its investors and top management in every strategic decision, it plans to regularly update employees, suppliers, and customers about its expansion plans. The company also intends to maintain good relations with regulatory authorities and lenders by ensuring compliance and periodic communication. At the same time, it proposes to spend minimal time and resources on business magazines and similar external groups, while continuing to monitor them. In the light of the above case, explain how GreenBasket Pvt. Ltd. can manage its stakeholders effectively using Mendelow's Matrix.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Mendelow's Matrix is a stakeholder analysis tool that categorises stakeholders based on their Power (ability to influence the organisation) and Interest (level of concern in the organisation's success). It helps organisations determine the appropriate level of engagement with different stakeholders.

GreenBasket Pvt. Ltd. should manage its stakeholders as follows:

- Key Players (High Power, High Interest): Investors and top management should be closely involved in strategic decisions and regularly consulted, as they significantly influence the organisation's success.
- Keep Satisfied (High Power, Low Interest): Regulatory authorities and lenders should be kept satisfied through compliance, timely communication, and periodic updates.
- Keep Informed (Low Power, High Interest): Employees, suppliers, and customers should receive regular information and feedback opportunities, as they are highly interested in the organisation's activities.
- Low Priority (Low Power, Low Interest): Business magazines and similar external groups require only occasional monitoring, with minimum time and resources devoted to them.

Using Mendelow's Matrix enables GreenBasket Pvt. Ltd. to allocate its resources efficiently, strengthen stakeholder relationships, and improve the effectiveness of its strategic decisions.

CASE SCENARIO

Nav-Uday Electric Mobility Pvt. Ltd., a family-led company based in Pune, began its journey in 1998 as a modest battery manufacturer. Under the leadership of its founder, Mr. Prakash Deshmukh and later his children, the company evolved into a respected player in the electric two-wheeler segment, especially catering to semi-urban and tier-2 markets in India. Their electric scooters earned a reputation for being sturdy, affordable and well-suited to Indian road conditions. With a loyal customer base and an extensive dealer network, Nav-Uday enjoyed steady growth for many years.

However, by 2020, the Indian EV landscape started changing rapidly. International players such as Volterra Motors from Germany and HwaRide from South Korea entered the market with AI-enabled features, aspirational designs and strategic e-commerce partnerships. Their sleek, tech-savvy scooters captured the attention of India's urban youth and redefined customer expectations. Nav-Uday, which had traditionally focused on functionality and affordability, found itself losing momentum in the face of this disruption.

Recognizing the challenges, Nav-Uday's leadership initiated a comprehensive strategic review. It became evident that while the company maintained strong relationships and a value-driven culture, it had not kept pace with emerging market trends and global innovations. The organization's rigid functional structure, outdated information systems and conservative decision-making processes hindered its ability to adapt quickly. Employees, though skilled in cost-effective engineering, lacked exposure to global design thinking and user-centric innovation.

The review also identified key stakeholders—such as dealers, regulatory authorities and financial partners—whose growing influence needed to be addressed through stronger engagement and alignment with the company's future goals. Three strategic alternatives emerged from the analysis are (1) Targeting less competitive international markets like Africa and Southeast Asia for exports; (2) Becoming a contract manufacturer for global EV brands entering India; (3) Monetizing their patented battery-swapping technology by licensing it within the EV ecosystem.

Nav-Uday chose a hybrid path, combining the second and third options. They began manufacturing for international players while licensing their underutilized battery-swapping technology globally. This dual strategy allowed the company to diversify its revenue streams with lower capital risk while playing to its engineering strengths. To support this strategic shift, the company restructured its operations, implemented agile processes, adopted integrated information systems and empowered leaders across departments to make faster, data-driven decisions. They also onboarded professionals with global exposure and established innovation-focused teams.

By balancing tradition with transformation, Nav-Uday is now better positioned to compete on a global scale. While staying rooted in its core values of trust and reliability, the company has embraced adaptability, innovation and collaboration as cornerstones of its future growth.

CASE SCENARIO

In the bustling metropolis of Techville, a once small startup named Athena Corporation embarked on a journey that exemplified the essence of strategic management.

Athena Corporation began its journey as a manufacturer of cutting-edge tech gadgets. In the initial years, they classifide stakeholders based on their power and interest. By nurturing important stakeholders like investors, and minimizing conflicts amongst them, the company-maintained stability. This strategic stakeholder analysis proved instrumental during the introduction and growth phases of their product life cycle.

As the product reached maturity, Athena Corporation faced the inevitable challenges of saturation. However, they decided to innovate, investing heavily in research and development. Their commitment to value creation resulted in a series of product enhancements, rekindling customer interest and extending the product's life cycle.

The company recognized the importance of distribution. They diversified their distribution strategy, forging partnerships with global retailers and e-commerce giants. This enabled them to reach a wider audience and adapt to changing market conditions, reinforcing their presence during the product decline phase.

The most significant obstacle Athena Corporation faced was existing big giants in the tech industry. To combat this, they leveraged their brand's reputation and strong distribution networks. Additionally, they initiated collaborations with smaller startups, enhancing innovation and expanding their reach.

To enter new international markets, Athena Corporation conducted a further comprehensive analysis. By using its strengths of branding, addressing not being able to manage costs, & capitalizing on opportunities for AI (Artificial Intelligence) and motivating its talented employees, it mitigated to an extent the threats of competition in the global markets. And so, it is safe to say that the next 10 years are going to be a defining moment in Athena Corps' life.

Same question, different ICAI answer: #345 RTP Sep 2024 · #349 MTP Sep 2025 S-II

How can Mendelow's Matrix be used to analyze and manage the stakeholders effectively?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Stakeholders through a grid-based approach by the following steps:

1. Identify Stakeholders: Begin by identifying all relevant stakeholders for your project or organization. This includes individuals, groups, or organizations that may be impacted by or have an impact on your activities.

2. Assess Power and Interest: For each stakeholder, assess their power to influence your project or organization and their level of interest in its success. Power can be assessed based on factors such as authority, resources, and expertise, while interest can be gauged by their level of involvement, expectations, and potential benefits or risks.

3. Plot Stakeholders on the Grid: Create a grid with Power on one axis and Interest on the other. Plot each stakeholder on the grid based on your assessment. Stakeholders with high power and high interest are placed in the "Key Players" quadrant, those with high power but low interest are in the "Keep Satisfied" quadrant, those with low power but high interest are in the "Keep Informed" quadrant, and those with low power and low interest are in the "Low Priority" quadrant.

Power / Influence

High

Low interest in the organisation

KEEP SATISFIED — Consult often; Increase their interest; Can be hindrance to new ideas or strategic choices

High interest in the organisation

KEY PLAYER — Manage Closely; Involve in decision making; Engage regularly and build strong relationship

Power / Influence

Low

Low interest in the organisation

LOW PRIORITY — Monitor only, no engagement; General occasional communication

High interest in the organisation

KEEP INFORMED — Utilise the high interest by engaging in decisions; Consult in their areas of expertise and interest

4. Develop Strategies for each Quadrant: Based on the placement of stakeholders in the grid, develop specific strategies for managing each quadrant:

- Key Players: Fully engage with these stakeholders, seek their input, and keep them informed. They are crucial for the success of your project, so their needs and expectations should be a top priority.
- Keep Satisfied: These stakeholders have significant power but may not be as interested in your project. Keep them satisfied by providing regular updates and addressing any concerns they may have to prevent them from becoming detractors.

- Keep Informed: While these stakeholders may not have much power, they are highly interested in your project. Keep them informed to ensure they remain supportive and to leverage their insights and feedback.
- Low Priority: These stakeholders have low power and interest. Monitor them for any changes but allocate minimal resources to managing their expectations.

Chic Threads, a boutique fashion brand renowned for its commitment to sustainability and ethical practices, has recently launched a new line of eco-friendly clothing made from recycled materials. The brand recognizes the growing influence of environmentally conscious consumers who actively shape industry standards through their advocacy and purchasing decisions. These consumers align with Chic Threads' values and have a significant impact on its market position and reputation. How should Chic Threads effectively manage its relationship with environmentally conscious consumers, considering their high power and high interest in shaping the brand's success?

ICAI'S ANSWER

According to Mendelow's Matrix, environmentally conscious consumers who influence industry standards fall into the Key Players quadrant. These stakeholders possess both high power and high interest, making them crucial to the success of Chic Threads' sustainability-focused initiatives. Their high interest stems from their alignment with the brand's ethical and eco-friendly values, while their high power arises from their ability to shape market trends, advocate for sustainable practices, and impact on the brand's reputation through their purchasing decisions and influence within the industry.

As Key Players, these consumers require active engagement. Chic Threads must focus on satisfying their expectations by providing regular updates on sustainability efforts, maintaining transparent communication, and incorporating their feedback to ensure continued support. The brand should actively involve these stakeholders in its decision-making processes by seeking their input on product design and sustainability measures. Additionally, building strong relationships through targeted marketing campaigns, collaborations, and awareness initiatives will further solidify their trust and advocacy. Effectively managing this stakeholder group is vital, as their support and satisfaction directly contribute to the success of the brand's eco-friendly clothing line.

"The wider and stronger the channel the better position a business has to fight and win over competition." In the context of this statement, define the concept of channels. Why is channel analysis more important for a business strategy? Explain different type of channels.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Channels refer to the distribution system through which an organisation distributes its products or provides its services to customers. Strong and wide channels help businesses reach customers effectively and gain competitive advantage. Importance of Channel Analysis Channel analysis is important when a business strategy aims to scale up and expand into new geographies and markets. Businesses need suitable channels to reach new customers effectively. Strong channels also help businesses fight competition and create barriers for new entrants into the industry. Types of Channels

1. Sales Channel: Sales channel refers to intermediaries involved in selling the product to the end user. It focuses on who sells the product to customers. For example, fashion designers use agencies and retail stores to sell products to consumers.

2. Product Channel: Product channel refers to intermediaries who physically handle and distribute the product from producer to customer. For example, logistics companies and delivery services distribute products purchased through online platforms.

3. Service Channel: Service channel refers to entities providing support services such as installation, maintenance and customer assistance after purchase. For example, installation of appliances by authorised service providers after sales.

Thus, strong and efficient channels act as important strategic tools for market reach, customer satisfaction and competitive advantage.

Full Health Limited is a beverage company engaged in the production and distribution of energy drink. It plans to launch a new line of beverages targeted at health-conscious consumers. The Indian energy drink market, however, is already saturated with strong competitors, including several well-established national and international brands that command a significant market share. Considering the dominant position of these rival firms in the segment, which analytical tool would you recommend the manager to use to assess the market environment? Additionally, explain the procedure for implementing this tool effectively.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic Group Mapping is the most appropriate analytical tool in the given case. Since the Indian energy drink market is saturated and dominated by strong national and international competitors, this tool helps in analysing competition within the industry by grouping firms that follow similar strategies. It enables the manager of Full Health Limited to understand the relative competitive positions of rival firms and identify strategic gaps or opportunities. The procedure for constructing a Strategic Group Mapping and deciding which firms belong to which strategic group is as follows:

1. Identify the competitive characteristics that differentiate firms in the industry. Typical variables include price/quality range (high, medium, low), geographic coverage (local, regional, national, global), degree of vertical integration (none, partial, full), product-line breadth (wide, narrow), distribution channels used (one, some, all), and degree of service offered (no-frills, limited, full).

2. Plot firms on a two-variable map using selected pairs of these differentiating characteristics.

3. Assign firms falling in the same strategy space to the same strategic group.

4. Draw circles around each strategic group, making the circles proportional to the group's respective share of total industry sales revenue.

Thus, Strategic Group Mapping helps the manager assess intra-industry competitive dynamics and take informed decisions before launching a new beverage line in a highly competitive market.

CASE SCENARIO

Case Scenario - III Primo Neo Logistics (PNL) is engaged in transportation of goods in India. It has its operational presence across the country since the year 2010. In addition to transporting goods by road, company is also taking services of private airways as its logistics partner. However, there is a sharp decline in business through airways as sales and profits have declined steeply. Company also wants to ascertain the market positions of rival companies having similar competitive approaches in the market with the intent to identify the strongest or the weakest players in view of the tough competitive landscape. Once the market position is ascertained, company would like to modify its strategy to adapt according to the changing circumstances. Technology, means and ways of transporting goods are also changing. Company wants to utilize its resources and capabilities, not only to compete and survive but to grow efficiently. Multidimensional expansion with new and improved means of transportation and marketing seems inevitable. Company has strong presence in transporting goods by road and wants to collaborate with some other operator who can bring expertise in transporting goods using improved technology. Cargo Movers Plc. (CMP) is a well-known transporter of goods using state of art technology in the Asia Pacific region. Banking upon their respective core competencies, PNL and CMP would like to develop close and collaborative relationship where both will continue to maintain their respective independent existence. Once collaboration is in place, marketing team of both the companies would like to cater to the needs of transporting goods with speed and agility. In line with basic principles, the team will also focus on best long- run performance of the marketing system. In view of the same the team is planning to rope in various social media influencers with intent to create a brand image with customer orientation and spreading a word about its distinctive services to its present and prospective customers.

Write a short note on the key strategic drivers of an organization.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Key Strategic Drivers of an Organization Strategic drivers are essential elements that influence an organization's ability to differentiate itself from its competitors and achieve competitive advantage. These drivers assess the current performance of the business and provide insights into areas that need focus. The key strategic drivers include:

1. Industry and Markets: Understanding the industry and markets is crucial for identifying the organization's relative position. Industries group similar companies based on their primary products, while markets are defined by the buyers and sellers of these products. Analyzing industry and market dynamics, often through tools like strategic group mapping, helps organizations evaluate competition and refine strategies.

2. Customers: Identifying and understanding customers is a critical driver. Customers are segmented based on their needs and spending capacity, which guides product development and marketing strategies. Differentiating between customers (buyers) and consumers (users) is vital to tailoring pricing, design, and usability strategies effectively.

3. Products and Services: Products and services are central to defining the business. Organizations must assess their offerings, classify products, and devise strategies for differentiation, branding, and pricing. Product innovation and marketing are key to maintaining competitiveness.

4. Channels: The channels through which products and services are delivered impact accessibility and customer satisfaction. Strategies related to direct, digital, or relationship-based marketing ensure the efficient distribution of offerings to target customers. By aligning these drivers with organizational goals, businesses can achieve sustained growth and maintain a competitive edge.

Also asked in RTP Jan 2025 Q12 · MTP Jan 2026 S-II Q3(b)

What are channels? Why is channel analysis important? Explain the different types of channels?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Channels represent the distribution system through which organizations distribute their products or provide services to customers. They play a pivotal role in reaching target markets, maximizing sales, and establishing competitive advantages. Channel analysis is important when the business strategy is to scale up and expand beyond the current geographies and markets. When a business plans to grow to newer markets, they need to develop or leverage existing channels to get to new customers. Thus, analysis of channels that suit one's products and customers is of utmost importance. There are typically three channels that should be considered: sales channel, product channel and service channel.

- The sales channel - These are the intermediaries involved in selling the product through each channel and ultimately to the end user. The key question is: Who needs to sell to whom for your product to be sold to your end user? For example, many fashion designers use agencies to sell their products to retail organizations, so that consumers can access them.

- The product channel - The product channel focuses on the series of intermediaries who physically handle the product on its path from its producer to the end user. This is true of Australia Post, who delivers and distributes many online purchases between the seller and purchaser when using eBay and other online stores.
- The service channel - The service channel refers to the entities that provide necessary services to support the product, as it moves through the sales channel and after purchase by the end user. The service channel is an important consideration for products that are complex in terms of installation or customer assistance. For example, a Bosch dishwasher may be sold in a Bosch showroom, and then once sold it is installed by a Bosch contracted plumber.

In general, marketing is an activity performed by business organizations. In the present day for business, it is considered to be the activities related to identifying the needs of customers and taking such actions to satisfy them in return of some consideration. The term marketing constitutes different processes, functions, exchanges and activities that create perceived value by satisfying needs of individuals.

Social marketing and service marketing are marketing strategies primarily with different orientations. Social Marketing refers to the design, implementation, and control of programs seeking to increase the acceptability of a social ideas, cause, or practice among a target group. For instance, the publicity campaign for prohibition of smoking or encouraging girl child, etc.

On the other hand, service marketing is applying the concepts, tools, and techniques, of marketing to services. Service is any activity or benefit that one party can offer to another that is essentially intangible and non-perishing. These may be from business to consumer and from business to business.

Neha, the strategy head of UrbanRide Motors Ltd., was analysing the two-wheeler industry before launching a new premium electric scooter. She observed that firms in the market could be grouped based on price range (economy–premium) and technology (petrol–electric).

She decided to position UrbanRide among premium electric brands. Which strategic analysis tool is reflected in this situation?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The situation reflects the use of Strategic Group Mapping, an important tool of industry (competitive) environment analysis. Strategic group mapping identifies clusters of firms within an industry that follow similar strategies or have similar characteristics, such as price level, quality, technology, distribution, or product range. Firms within the same strategic group compete more directly with each other than with firms in other groups. In the given case, Neha classified two-wheeler firms based on price (economy to premium) and technology (petrol to electric). This classification creates distinct strategic groups such as economy petrol, premium petrol, economy electric, and premium electric. UrbanRide plans to position itself in the premium electric group. Such mapping helps identify close competitors, market gaps, and positioning opportunities before strategic decisions. Hence, the strategic analysis tool reflected is Strategic Group Mapping.

What is a Strategic Group? Discuss the procedure for constructing a strategic group map.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A strategic group consists of those rival firms which have similar competitive approaches and positions in the market. Companies in the same strategic group can resemble one another in any of the several ways – have comparable product-line breadth, same price/quality range, same distribution channels, same product attributes, identical technological approaches, offer similar services and technical assistance and so on. The procedure for constructing a strategic group map and deciding which firms belong in which strategic group is as follows:

- Identify the competitive characteristics that differentiate firms in the industry typical variables are price/quality range (high, medium, low); geographic coverage (local, regional, national, global); degree of vertical integration (none, partial, full); product-line breadth (wide, narrow); use of distribution channels (one, some, all); and degree of service offered (no-frills, limited, full).

- Plot the firms on a two-variable map using pairs of these differentiating characteristics.
- Assign firms that fall in about the same strategy space to the same strategic group.
- Draw circles around each strategic group making the circles proportional to the size of the group's respective share of total industry sales revenues.

Rafi Merchant, a timber trader based in Surat, entered into a strategic alliance with Woodie Ducks, a South Africa-based manufacturer of premium wooden planks, to manufacture and supply wooden planks worth ₹150 crore for residential projects in GIFT City, Gujarat. Before the consignment reached India, real estate developers and customers shifted their preference to polyester-based furnishing materials due to their durability, affordability and variety of colours. Consequently, the demand for wooden planks declined sharply, causing substantial losses to Rafi Merchant. In the light of the above case, identify and explain the strategic driver overlooked by Rafi Merchant. Also, state other strategic drivers that organisations should consider before making strategic decisions.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Rafi Merchant overlooked the strategic driver of Customers. Customers are one of the key strategic drivers, and organisations must understand the needs, preferences and buying behaviour of their target customers before taking strategic decisions. Different customers have different requirements and changes in customer preferences directly influence the demand for products and services. In the given case, customers shifted their preference from premium wooden planks to polyester-based furnishing materials due to their greater durability, affordability and wider range of colours. As a result, the demand for wooden planks declined, leading to substantial losses for Rafi Merchant despite the strategic alliance.

Apart from Customers, organisations should also analyse the following strategic drivers before making strategic business decisions:

1. Industry and Markets: Organisations should understand their position in the industry and the markets in which they operate. This involves analysing the competitive environment, market size, customer segments, growth opportunities and competitors' strategies. Such analysis helps in identifying the organisation's competitive position and formulating strategies to achieve and sustain a competitive advantage.

2. Products/Services: Organisations should continuously evaluate whether their products or services meet changing customer needs. They should improve existing products, introduce new offerings, or discontinue unprofitable ones. Product differentiation through quality, branding, innovation, packaging and after-sales service helps organisations remain competitive and create customer value.

3. Channels: Organisations should analyse the effectiveness of their sales, product, and service channels. Efficient distribution channels improve market reach, ensure better customer accessibility, strengthen customer service and support business expansion while creating barriers for new competitors.

A strategic analyst wants to study the competitive positioning of companies in the smartphone industry based on price range and product features. Explain how the analyst can use Strategic Group Mapping to analyse the industry. Also, state the insights that can be derived from such a map.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The strategic analyst can use Strategic Group Mapping to analyse the competitive positioning of smartphone companies based on price range and product features as follows:

Steps to use Strategic Group Mapping:

1. Identify key variables: Select relevant competitive dimensions such as price (low to high) and product features (basic to advanced).

2. Plot companies on a graph: Position each smartphone company on a two-dimensional map using these variables.

3. Form strategic groups: Companies with similar strategies (e.g., high price–high features or low price–basic features) will cluster together forming strategic groups.

4. Represent market share: The size of each group (circle) may indicate the market share of firms within that group.

Insights derived from the map:

- Helps in understanding the competitive positioning of firms in the industry.
- Identifies direct competitors within the same strategic group.
- Reveals market gaps or opportunities (e.g., underserved segments).
- Highlights mobility barriers between groups (e.g., difficulty in moving from low-end to premium segment).

- Assists in analysing the intensity of competition within and across groups.

Thus, Strategic Group Mapping provides a visual and analytical tool for better strategic decision-making in the smartphone industry.

CASE SCENARIO

Zenith Global Enterprises (ZGE), a diversified conglomerate based in Dubai, operates across five distinct industries: renewable energy, luxury real estate, fashion retail, healthcare and digital services. With a revenue of $12 billion in 2024, ZGE is recognized for its ability to adapt and thrive in competitive global markets. However, the conglomerate's leadership is now focusing on streamlining operations and leveraging digital channels to sustain growth.

To address operational complexity, ZGE's management highlights the advantages of its Strategic Business Unit (SBU) structure. Each business unit operates autonomously with dedicated leadership teams, enabling tailored strategies for market-specific needs. For example, the renewable energy SBU recently secured a $500 million contract with a European government for solar power solutions, while the fashion retail SBU launched a luxury e-commerce platform that grew sales by 45% year-on-year.

ZGE's overarching strategy emphasizes the best-cost provider approach. By balancing premium quality with competitive pricing, the healthcare SBU, for instance, has introduced telemedicine services that cost 30% less than competitors without compromising service quality. This approach resonates strongly with middle-income consumers across Asia and Africa.

Digital marketing has become a cornerstone of ZGE's customer engagement strategy. In 2024, the company allocated $200 million to develop AI-driven marketing campaigns, leveraging predictive analytics to personalize ads. This resulted in a 20% higher customer acquisition rate across all SBUs. The luxury real estate division also adopted virtual reality (VR) tours, allowing global customers to explore properties remotely, driving a 35% increase in international sales.

A key challenge for ZGE lies in balancing the needs of customers (the direct purchasers) and consumers (the end users). In the digital services SBU, this tension is evident in pricing decisions for their cloud computing solutions. While enterprise customers demand cost-efficient packages, end users prioritize seamless, high-speed performance. ZGE's leadership employs customer insights and feedback loops to align pricing with both groups' expectations.

Finally, ZGE's channel of distribution heavily relies on e-commerce platforms. The fashion retail SBU's recent collaboration with a major e-commerce marketplace increased distribution efficiency by 40%. Meanwhile, the healthcare SBU's direct-to-consumer online pharmacy has achieved $100 million in annual revenue by offering home delivery of essential medicines.

With these strategies, ZGE aims to achieve 10% annual growth while maintaining its commitment to innovation and quality. However, as the conglomerate scales, it must address potential challenges such as inter-SBU competition and digital transformation risks.

Q1(A)(i) 2 marks

The decision of the renewable energy SBU to secure a $500 million European solar contract is an example of:

- A Reactive response to market uncertainty
- B Proactive expansion into international government partnerships
- C Reactive change based on customer feedback
- D Delayed adaptation to global competition

Q1(A)(ii) 2 marks

How does ZGE's best-cost provider strategy benefit its healthcare SBU?

A By offering the lowest-priced services in the market

B By maintaining high service quality at competitive prices

C By targeting only premium customers in developed markets

D By focusing solely on cost-cutting measures

Q1(A)(iii) 2 marks

What role does digital marketing play in ZGE's growth strategy?

A It reduces the need for traditional marketing channels.

B It drives personalized customer engagement and higher acquisition rates.

C It replaces in-person customer interactions entirely.

D It focuses solely on promoting the renewable energy SBU.

Q1(A)(iv) 2 marks

How has the reliance on e-commerce benefited ZGE's distribution strategy?

A By completely eliminating traditional retail outlets

B By improving efficiency and expanding market reach

C By reducing the importance of product quality

A consumer technology startup continually revises its business model to align with shifting user behaviour, the rise of new digital platforms and rapid technological advancements. In the context of internal strategic analysis, identify the key internal elements or strategic drivers that the firm is responding to that shape its strategic direction?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The tech startup is responding to internal strategic drivers—the key elements within the organisation that shape its performance and strategic direction. Internal analysis involves assessing strategic drivers, which include:

1. Industry and Markets: The startup closely monitors its relative position in the industry and changing market dynamics. As user behaviour, platforms and technologies evolve, the startup adapts its model to stay aligned with shifting market expectations.

2. Customers: Changing user behaviour directly influences customer needs and preferences. Understanding these customers, their usage patterns and their value to the business drives the startup to update its offerings.

3. Products/Services: The startup modifies its business model to refine or expand its products/services in response to technological shifts and customer demands. This ensures relevance, competitiveness and differentiation in the market.

4. Channels: As new digital platforms emerge, the startup adjusts the channels through which it delivers its services—such as apps, web platforms or partner integrations—to reach customers effectively.

Therefore, the internal elements the firm is responding to are its key strategic drivers: industry & markets, customers, products/services and channels. These drivers help the organisation assess its current performance and make strategic decisions to stay competitive and aligned with emerging trends.

Introducing "UrbanScape Developers", a new-age contemporary real estate developers, reshaping urban landscapes with groundbreaking projects across three dynamic Indian cities of Mumbai, Bangalore, and Delhi.

In the bustling metropolis of Mumbai, UrbanScape is coming up with "CitySquare Mall," a futuristic retail destination poised to redefine shopping experiences. Boasting state-of-the-art facilities and a modern mix of brands, it promises to be a benchmark of today's retailing, attracting shoppers from across the globe.

In Bangalore, UrbanScape is shaping up "GreenVista Residency," an eco-conscious housing society that sets new standards in sustainable living. Nested in the middle of lush greenery and equipped with eco-friendly amenities, it offers residents a peaceful blend of luxury and environmental responsibility.

Meanwhile, in the vibrant capital city of Delhi, UrbanScape is building "MetroBiz Institute", a global-desi MBA college dedicated to nurturing the leaders of tomorrow. With innovative curriculum, industry-aligned programs, and world-class faculty, it aims to cultivate a new generation of business visionaries and changemakers.

However, despite these visionary projects, UrbanScape is facing challenges in attracting pre-bookings from potential customers. A market study revealed that high interest rates and soaring gold prices have created an environment where individuals are hesitant to invest in real estate, opting instead for more liquid assets.

To tackle this issue smartly, UrbanScape initiated strategic collaborations with leaders in the banking sector. Leveraging their influence and expertise, they strategized an effort to lobby for interest rate subsidies targeted towards new-age technology-based real estate developers like themselves. By aligning themselves strategically and positioning their cause as essential for driving economic growth and urban development, they aim to generate decent demand and incentivize investment in the real estate sector.

Furthermore, they recognize the shifting dynamics of consumer behavior and preferences towards spending more on travel and experiences. In response, they are adopting a proactive approach to engage potential buyers in innovative ways. They are launching an immersive, AI-based website that offers virtual experiences of their projects. Prospective buyers can explore apartments, wander through the mall's corridors, or attend virtual classes at the MBA college - all from the comfort of their living rooms. This revolutionary platform not only increases customer engagement but also generates significant word-of-mouth marketing, as impressive visitors share their experiences with friends and family.

With a comprehensive strategy in place, UrbanScape Developers is navigating the ever-evolving real estate landscape with confidence and foresight. As they continue to shape the urban areas of India's most dynamic cities, the future holds endless possibilities for its visionary endeavors.

A beverage company is launching a new line of energy drinks targeted at health-conscious consumers. The strategic manager wants to study the market position of rival companies in the energy drink segment. Which tool can be used for this analysis, and what is the procedure to implement it effectively?

ICAI'S ANSWER

To study the market position of rival companies in the energy drink segment, the strategic manager can use strategic group mapping. This tool helps identify strategic groups, which consist of rival firms with similar competitive approaches and positions in the market. The procedure for implementing strategic group mapping effectively is as follows:

1. Identify the competitive characteristics that differentiate firms in the industry typical variables that are price/quality range (high, medium, low); geographic coverage (local, regional, national, global); degree of vertical integration (none, partial, full); product-line breadth (wide, narrow); use of distribution channels (one, some, all); and degree of service offered (no-frills, limited, full).

2. Plot the firms on a two-variable map using pairs of these differentiating characteristics.

3. Assign firms that fall in about the same strategy space to the same strategic group.

4. Draw circles around each strategic group making the circles proportional to the size of the group's respective share of total industry sales revenues.

By following these steps, the strategic manager can gain valuable insights into the competitive landscape of the energy drink segment and identify potential positioning strategies for the new line of energy drinks targeted at health-conscious consumers.

What are distribution channels, and why is analyzing them crucial for business expansion? Describe the three main types of channels explaining their roles in ensuring products reach customers efficiently and with the necessary support.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Channels represent the distribution system through which organizations distribute their products or provide services to customers. They play a pivotal role in reaching target markets, maximizing sales, and establishing competitive advantages.

Channel analysis is important when the business strategy is to scale up and expand beyond the current geographies and markets. When a business plans to grow to newer markets, they need to develop or leverage existing channels to get to new customers. Thus, analysis of channels that suit one's products and customers is of utmost importance.

There are typically three channels that should be considered: sales channel, product channel and service channel.

- The sales channel - These are the intermediaries involved in selling the product through each channel and ultimately to the end user. The key question is: Who needs to sell to whom for your product to be sold to your end user? For example, many fashion designers use agencies to sell their products to retail organizations, so that consumers can access them.
- The product channel - The product channel focuses on the series of intermediaries who physically handle the product on its path from its producer to the end user. This is true of Australia Post, who delivers and distributes many online purchases between the seller and purchaser when using eBay and other online stores.
- The service channel - The service channel refers to the entities that provide necessary services to support the product, as it moves through the sales channel and after purchase by the end user. The service channel is an important consideration for products that are complex in terms of installation or customer assistance. For example, a Bosch dishwasher may be sold in a Bosch showroom, and then once sold it is installed by a Bosch contracted plumber.

Name the tool that may be used by Mr. Banerjee? Explain the procedure that may be used to implement the technique.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A tool to study the market positions of rival companies by grouping them into like positions is strategic group mapping. Grouping competitors is useful when there are many competitors such that it is not practical to examine each one in-depth. In the given scenario there are thirteen competitors. A strategic group consists of those rival firms which have similar competitive approaches and positions in the market.

The procedure for constructing a strategic group map and deciding which firms belong in which strategic group is as follows:

- Identify the competitive characteristics that differentiate firms in the industry typical variables that are price/quality range (high, medium, low); geographic coverage (local, regional, national, global); degree of vertical integration (none, partial, full); product-line breadth (wide, narrow); use of distribution channels (one, some, all); and degree of service offered (no-frills, limited, full).
- Plot the firms on a two-variable map using pairs of these differentiating characteristics.
- Assign firms that fall in about the same strategy space to the same strategic group.

- Draw circles around each strategic group making the circles proportional to the size of the group's respective share of total industry sales revenues.

Explain the four specific criteria of sustainable competitive advantages that a company can use to determine the capabilities that are core competencies.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Four specific criteria of sustainable competitive advantage that firms can use to determine those capabilities that are core competencies. Capabilities that are valuable, rare, costly to imitate, and non-substitutable are core competencies. i. Valuable:

Valuable capabilities are the ones that allow the firm to exploit opportunities or avert the threats in its external environment. A firm created value for customers by effectively using capabilities to exploit opportunities. Finance companies build a valuable competence in financial services. In addition, to make such competencies as financial services highly successful require placing the right people in the right jobs. Human capital is important in creating value for customers. ii. Rare: Core competencies are very rare capabilities and very few of the competitors possess this. Capabilities possessed by many rivals are unlikely to be sources of competitive advantage for any one of them. Competitive advantage results only when firms develop and exploit valuable capabilities that differ from those shared with competitors. iii. Costly to imitate: Costly to imitate means such capabilities that competing firms are unable to develop easily. iv. Non-substitutable: Capabilities that do not have strategic equivalents are called non-substitutable capabilities. This final criterion for a capability to be a source of competitive advantage is that there must be no strategically equivalent valuable resources that are themselves either not rare or imitable.

"The sustainability of competitive advantage and a firm's ability to earn profits from its competitive advantage depends on characteristics of resources and capabilities". Explain this statement.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The sustainability of competitive advantage and a firm's ability to earn profits from it depends, to a great extent, upon four major characteristics of resources and capabilities which are as follows:

1. Durability: The period over which a competitive advantage is sustained depends in part on the rate at which a firm's resources and capabilities deteriorate. In industries where the rate of product innovation is fast, product patents are quite likely to become obsolete. Similarly, capabilities which are the result of the management expertise of the CEO are also vulnerable to his or her retirement or departure. On the other hand, many consumer brand names have a highly durable appeal.

2. Transferability: Even if the resources and capabilities on which a competitive advantage is based are durable, it is likely to be eroded by competition from rivals. The ability of rivals to attack position of competitive advantage relies on their gaining access to the necessary resources and capabilities. The easier it is to transfer resources and capabilities between companies, the less sustainable will be the competitive advantage which is based on them.

3. Imitability: If resources and capabilities cannot be purchased by a would-be imitator, then they must be built from scratch. How easily and quickly can the competitors build the resources and capabilities on which a firm's competitive advantage is based? This is the true test of imitability. Where capabilities require networks of organizational routines, whose effectiveness depends on the corporate culture, imitation is difficult.

4. Appropriability: Appropriability refers to the ability of the firm's owners to appropriate the returns on its resource base. Even where resources and capabilities are capable of offering sustainable advantage, there is an issue as to who receives the returns on these resources.

Mohan has joined as the new CEO of XYZ Corporation and aims to make it a dominant technology company in the next five years. He aims to develop competencies for managers for achieving better performance and a competitive advantage for XYZ Corporation. Mohan is well aware of the importance of resources and capabilities in generating competitive advantage. Discuss the four major characteristics of resources and capabilities required by XYZ Corporation to sustain the competitive advantage and its ability to earn profits from it.

ICAI'S ANSWER

XYZ Corporation is aiming to transform into a dominant technology company under the leadership of Mohan, the new CEO. He aims to develop competencies for managers for achieving better performance and a competitive advantage for the corporation. Mohan is also well aware of the importance of resources and capabilities in generating and sustaining the competitive advantage. Core competencies provide edge to a business over its competitors. Discuss. Also, briefly state the three areas in which major core competencies are identified.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A core competence is a unique strength of an organization which may not be shared by others. Core competencies are those capabilities that are critical to a business achieving competitive advantage. In order to qualify as a core competence, the competency should differentiate the business from any other similar businesses. An organization's combination of technological and managerial know-how, wisdom and experience are a complex set of capabilities and resources that can lead to a competitive advantage compared to a competitor.

According to C.K. Prahalad and Gary Hamel, major core competencies are identified in following three areas:

1. Competitor differentiation: The Company can consider having a core competence if the competence is unique and it is difficult for competitors to imitate. This can provide a company an edge compared to competitors. It allows the company to provide better products and services to market with no fear that competitors can copy it.

2. Customer value: When purchasing a product or service it has to deliver a fundamental benefit for the end customer in order to be a core competence. It will include all the skills needed to provide fundamental benefits. The service or the product has to have real impact on the customer as the reason to choose to purchase them. If customer has chosen the company without this impact, then competence is not a core competence and it will not affect the company's market position.

3. Application of competencies to other markets: Core competence must be applicable to the whole organization; it cannot be only one particular skill or specified area of expertise. Therefore, although some special capability would be essential or crucial for the success of business activity, it will not be considered as core competence if it is not fundamental from the whole organization's point of view. Thus, a core competence is a unique set of skills and expertise, which will be used throughout the organization to open up potential markets to be exploited.

OrthoCare Super Speciality Hospital has developed an advanced robotic knee replacement surgery programme supported by years of surgeon expertise, specialised training protocols, coordinated teamwork and a unique organisational culture. Although several competing hospitals have invested in similar robotic technology, they have been unable to achieve comparable surgical outcomes because the hospital's expertise is based on complex, tacit knowledge that cannot be easily copied. Identify the characteristics of a core competency illustrated in the above case and briefly explain it.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The characteristic of a core competency illustrated in the given case is Costly to Imitate. It means that competing firms are unable to develop or duplicate such capabilities easily. A capability becomes difficult to imitate because it is created through the superior integration of technological, physical and human resources along with organisational culture, teamwork, experience and accumulated knowledge. Such competencies are developed over time and cannot be replicated merely by acquiring similar technology or resources. In the given case, although competing hospitals have invested in robotic knee replacement technology, they have failed to achieve comparable surgical outcomes because OrthoCare's expertise is based on specialised surgeon skills, coordinated teamwork, unique organisational culture and tacit knowledge. These capabilities are deeply embedded in the organisation and are not easily transferable or replicable. Therefore, OrthoCare's robotic knee replacement programme represents a core competency that is costly to imitate, providing the hospital with a sustainable competitive advantage. Only capabilities that are valuable, rare, costly to imitate and non-substitutable qualify as core competencies and become a source of sustainable competitive advantage.

CASE SCENARIO

Pantheon Yoga Center (PYC), situated in the dense forests of Chhattisgarh by Dr. Manohar Dasgupta, a less known meditation center is visited by affluent Indians and foreign seekers, only by invitation. The uniqueness of his methodologies remains in the fact that only a few people have been able to experience them yet.

Recently, CEO of a big investment bank approached Dr. Dasgupta to take special sessions for his management team in Los Angeles, USA - and given Dr. Dasgupta's popularity amongst business leaders, he wanted to strengthen his network as well for business purposes by building relations with him. Though Dr. Dasgupta was reluctant at first but understanding the need to publicize his practice and an offer by the CEO to get access to more corporates through this route, he took the opportunity, and called his corporate suite of sessions, the 'Shanti Classes'.

There were certain risks though; first, his techniques could be shunned by the top management as being too orthodox and old. Second, maybe they could be revealed to the outside world in a very disruptive manner, thus taking away the core uniqueness of exclusivity, and lastly, how would he monetize his methodologies if they expanded so quickly.

With above risks also came the need to build a strong team of like minded individuals who could support and propagate the ideologies in a positive fashion. For this he relied on his daughter, Sukanya. She took three months to build a team of fifty young-vibrant men and women from different backgrounds and trained them with basics and a few specializations.

'Speed' is a leading retail chain, on account of its ability to operate its business at low costs. The retail chain aims to further strengthen its top position in the retail industry. The Chief executive of the retail chain is of the view that to achieve the goals they should focus on lowering the costs of procurement of products. Highlight and explain the core competence of the retail chain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A core competence is a unique strength of an organization which may not be shared by others. Core competencies are those capabilities that are critical to a business achieving competitive advantage. In order to qualify as a core competence, the competency should differentiate the business from any other similar businesses. A core competency for a firm is whatever it does is highly beneficial to the organisation. 'Speed' is the leader on account of its ability to keep costs low. The cost advantage that 'Value for Money' has created for itself has allowed the retailer to price goods lower than competitors. The core competency in this case is derived from the company's ability to generate large sales volume, allowing the company to remain profitable with low profit margin.

"The primary objective of SWOT analysis is to help organizations develop a full awareness of all factor involved in making a business decision." In the light of the above statement, explain why is it necessary to do SWOT analysis for business organization before using the strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The primary objective of SWOT analysis is to help organizations develop a full awareness of all the factors (internal as well as external) involved in making a business decision. Hence, it becomes necessary to conduct SWOT analysis before strategy formulation for the following reasons:

- SWOT analysis identifies the Strengths and Weaknesses (internal factors) and Opportunities and Threats (external factors). This ensures that management considers all aspects before deciding on a strategic move.
- It helps in discovering recommendations and strategies with a focus on leveraging strengths and opportunities while working to overcome weaknesses and threats. This lays the base for realistic and practical strategies.
- SWOT highlights both – the areas where the business is performing well and the areas which need improvement. This helps organizations to align resources efficiently to achieve objectives.
- Periodic SWOT analysis helps organizations to check the current landscape of their business and to make necessary improvements in operations, thus keeping strategies relevant to changing circumstances.
- It places complex internal and external issues into a simple framework, making it easier for managers to identify challenges, opportunities, and competitive factors before finalizing a strategy.

Thus, SWOT analysis is a necessary step before using any strategy, as it ensures that decisions are based on both internal capabilities and external realities, thereby increasing the chances of success in achieving organizational objectives.

ABC Corporation, a leading manufacturer of consumer electronics, is considering launching a new line of smart home devices. As a strategic manager, conduct a SWOT analysis for ABC Corporation to assess the feasibility and potential success of this new venture. Consider both internal and external factors that could impact on the success of the new product line.

ICAI'S ANSWER

SWOT Analysis for ABC Corporation's New Smart Home Devices Venture:

Strengths	Weaknesses
• Strong brand reputation in consumer electronics.	• Limited experience in the smart home devices market.
• Established distribution network.	• May require additional investments in research and development.
• Access to technological expertise for product development.	• Potential challenges in integrating a new product line with existing offerings.
• Financial resources to support product launch and marketing.	• Lack of established customer base for smart home devices.

Opportunities	Threats
• Growing market for smart home devices due to increasing consumer interest in home automation.	• Intense competition from established players in the smart home devices market.
• The possibility of partnering with existing smart home platform providers.	• Rapid technological advancements lead to short product life cycles.

Opportunities	Threats
• Potential to leverage brand loyalty from existing customers.	• Potential for cybersecurity threats in connected devices.
• Ability to differentiate through innovative features and design.	• Economic factors impacting consumer spending on discretionary items.

The SWOT analysis highlights that while ABC Corporation has several strengths that can support the launch of a new smart home devices line, there are also significant weaknesses and threats to consider. To maximize the chances of success, ABC Corporation should focus on leveraging its brand reputation and distribution network while carefully addressing the weaknesses and threats identified. Additionally, being informed about technological developments and consumer trends will be essential for maintaining competitiveness in the dynamic smart home devices market.

What is the purpose of SWOT analysis? Why is it necessary to do a SWOT analysis before selecting a particular strategy for a business organization?

ICAI'S ANSWER

An important component of strategic thinking requires the generation of a series of strategic alternatives, or choices of future strategies to pursue, given the company's internal strengths and weaknesses and its external opportunities and threats. The comparison of strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats is normally referred to as SWOT analysis.

- Strength: Strength is an inherent capability of the organization which it can use to gain strategic advantage over its competitors.

- Weakness: A weakness is an inherent limitation or constraint of the organization which creates strategic disadvantage to it.
- Opportunity: An opportunity is a favourable condition in the organisation's environment which enables it to strengthen its position.
- Threat: A threat is an unfavourable condition in the organisation's environment which causes a risk for, or damage to, the organisation's position.

SWOT analysis helps managers to craft a business model (or models) that will allow a company to gain a competitive advantage in its industry (or industries). Competitive advantage leads to increased profitability, and this maximizes a company's chances of surviving in the fast-changing, competitive environment. Key reasons for SWOT analyses are:

- It provides a logical framework.
- It presents a comparative account.
- It guides the strategist in strategy identification.

GreenGardens, a small but growing organic farm, is assessing its business environment to strategically plan for future growth. The farm boasts high-quality, pesticide-free crops, but faces challenges with its limited distribution channels. As the demand for organic products continues to rise, GreenGardens recognizes the potential to broaden its market reach. However, unpredictable weather conditions and competition from larger farms present significant obstacles. To effectively navigate these challenges and opportunities, GreenGardens needs to conduct a comprehensive evaluation. Identify the type of analysis GreenGardens should conduct to strategically plan for its future growth and outline the grid.

ICAI'S ANSWER

GreenGardens should conduct a SWOT analysis to strategically plan for future growth. This analysis will help them understand their internal strengths and weaknesses, as well as external opportunities and threats.

SWOT Analysis Grid for GreenGardens:

Strengths	Weaknesses
High-quality, pesticide-free produce	Limited distribution channels
Strong brand reputation for organic products	Small scale of operations
Dedicated and knowledgeable workforce	Limited marketing and sales reach

Opportunities	Threats
Rising demand for organic products	Unpredictable weather conditions
Potential to expand into new markets	Intense competition from larger farms
Increased consumer awareness of health and sustainability	Regulatory changes affecting organic farming

By systematically evaluating these areas, GreenGardens can leverage its strengths, address its weaknesses, capitalize on opportunities, and mitigate threats. This strategic planning will guide them toward sustainable growth and success in the organic farming industry.

CASE SCENARIO

Case Scenario - II Alex Motor Company was born out of crisis in a small garage on the edge of a dusty town. In the early 90s when the fuel prices soared and imported vehicles flooded the market, many automobile companies were forced to shut down their operations. Many employees lost their jobs. Ajay Sharma, a production engineer at a failing automobile plant along with ten of his colleagues, rented an abandoned garage and a portion of unused equipment from a shutdown factory and decided to start operations. Their main aim was to transform Indian auto industry by providing comprehensive, affordable and fuel-efficient vehicles. Instead of chasing volumes, the company focused on customization-adjustable cargo layouts, fuel efficient engines and easy maintenance to cater demand of narrow market. Alex Motor Company developed its first commercial model Alex One which was simple but could survive floods, heat waves, bumpy roads, and most importantly was fuel efficient. The customers loved it and hence sales grew steadily. Ajay made a simple promise that every decision would begin on the factory floor and not in the board-room. Mechanics were encouraged to suggest improvement in design and were rewarded for the best innovations, but success brought a new challenge. The younger generation demanded technology with higher connectivity, better safety systems and cleaner energy. Due to these matters Alex Motor Company lagged behind from the flashy foreign brands that entered the Indian market. As a result, sales declined and critics called the company outdated. Ajay, now the CEO of the company, faced defining choice, either to sell the company or reinvent it. Ajay's team of engineers, through participation, shared their next plan of action to the employees for the further technology upgradation, in order to gain growth and success of business. The team took the initiative to develop the good working culture and code of ethics. They focused on training and various motivational plans for employees so they can be tuned up with new working system. In this way the company made its breakthrough with the launch of Alex Electra; a hybrid vehicle designed specifically for congested urban environment. It was not just the technology that made Electra different, but the mindset. Engineers, designers and data-analysts worked side by side, decision making became faster and mistakes were treated as learning cost and not failures. Alex Motor Company also established company-owned showrooms and service centers to increase their sales and provide free after-sale services which led to improved customer services and brand image. Today Alex Motor Company's success is studied in business schools as it proved that companies that listen, learn and adapt can outlast any crisis.

Pearl India Ltd. is a major packaged food company which dominates in some sectors like snacks, diary, biscuits and instant meals. It offers high quality and unique products that match the taste and preference of the customers. It always takes steps to enhance brand image and charge a premium price for which buyers do not negotiate. Often the unique features of their products that are not available with their competitors help them to gain competitive advantage. Hence, using this strategy, today Pearl India Ltd. is consistently gaining its position in the industry over its competitors. Identify and explain Michael Porter's generic strategy being followed by Pearl India Ltd. to gain competitive advantage. What are the disadvantages of following such strategy?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Pearl India Ltd. is following the Differentiation Strategy propounded by Michael Porter. Differentiation strategy is aimed at a broad market and involves creation of products or services that are perceived by customers as unique. The uniqueness may be associated with product quality, features, brand image, technology or customer preferences. Because of differentiation, the business can charge a premium price and gain competitive advantage. In the given case, Pearl India Ltd. offers high quality and unique food products matching customer tastes and preferences. It continuously enhances its brand image and charges premium prices for which buyers do not negotiate. The special features of its products help it gain a strong competitive position over rivals. Disadvantages of Differentiation Strategy

1. In the long run, uniqueness may be difficult to sustain as competitors may imitate product features.

2. Charging very high prices for differentiated products may force customers to switch to alternative products.

3. Differentiation strategy fails if the basis of differentiation is not valued by customers.

However, cost leadership is not without its pitfalls - discuss the potential disadvantages that could undermine its effectiveness.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Cost Leadership Strategy aims at becoming the lowest-cost producer in an industry while offering products or services of acceptable quality. It enables the firm to charge lower prices than competitors and still earn satisfactory profits. Striving to be a low-cost producer in an industry can especially be effective,

- when the market is composed of many price-sensitive buyers and
- when there are few ways to achieve product differentiation.

Disadvantages of Cost Leadership Strategy

1. Cost advantage may not last long as competitors may imitate cost reduction techniques.

2. Cost leadership can succeed only if the firm can achieve higher sales volume.

3. Cost leaders tend to keep their costs low by minimizing cost of advertising, market research, and research and development, but this approach can prove to be expensive in the long run.

4. Technological advancement areas a great threat to cost leaders.

Thus, while Cost Leadership Strategy can provide a strong competitive advantage, its success depends on favourable conditions and continuous vigilance to avoid risks that may undermine its effectiveness.

ARP Motors, an automobile company, was struggling in the competitive SUV market in India. As a business strategist, you recommended that ARP launch a compact SUV that balances affordability with premium features. In response, ARP developed and introduced FLEXON, strategically pricing it and incorporating high-end features such as a 5-star Global NCAP safety rating, a modern design and an advanced technology. Furthermore, the company expanded into the electric vehicle segment with FLEXON EV, positioning it as one of the most affordable yet feature-rich electric SUVs in India. Which strategy did you recommend to ARP Motors to achieve a competitive advantage? Explain the strategy briefly and enumerate the key ways ARP Motors implemented it.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The strategy recommended to ARP Motors is the Best-Cost Provider Strategy.

Best-cost provider strategy is directed towards giving customers more value for their money by emphasizing both low cost and premium features. The objective is to keep costs and prices lower than those of other sellers of comparable products while offering better quality and superior features.

Application in ARP Motors Case:

- Launch of FLEXON (Compact SUV): ARP priced FLEXON strategically at an affordable level, while at the same time incorporating premium features such as a 5-star Global NCAP safety rating, advanced technology and a modern design. This reflects the approach of offering better quality at lower or comparable prices.
- Introduction of FLEXON EV: By entering the electric vehicle market, ARP positioned FLEXON EV as one of the most affordable yet feature-rich electric SUVs in India. This aligns with the principle of charging lower prices for comparable products or offering higher quality for similar prices thereby giving customers more value for money.

Market for baby care, readymade garments for new born, toys and strollers meant for babies are there. M/s. Maa ki Pasand is desirous to introduce new products for existing customers and new customers as well. The market for such products is narrow. On one side there are customers who are price conscious and on the other side there are customers who are ready to pay premium charges for an upscale product. The company wants to charge low price, relative to other firms that compete within the target market for customers who are price sensitive and also wants to charge premium based on uniqueness for rest of its products. Which of the strategy is being considered by the company, out of strategies as suggested by Michael Porter at business level. Also outline the advantages and disadvantages using such strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The company, M/s. Maa ki Pasand, is adopting a focus strategy that incorporates both focused cost leadership and focused differentiation strategies. In the given case, M/s. Maa ki Pasand aims to target price-conscious customers by charging low prices relative to other firms within the narrow market of baby care products. This aligns with focused cost leadership, where the firm competes based on price within a targeted niche. For the segment of customers willing to pay more for premium, unique products, the company follows a focused differentiation strategy. It caters to this specific niche by offering high-end, differentiated products, which is a key feature of focused differentiation. Advantages of using a Focus Strategy:

1. Premium prices: For the differentiated segment, the company can charge higher prices for its upscale products.

2. Expertise in niche markets: M/s. Maa ki Pasand can develop expertise in both price-sensitive and premium segments, making it difficult for rivals to compete effectively.

Disadvantages of Using a Focus Strategy:

1. Distinctive competencies required: The firm needs to have strong competencies in both cost control and product differentiation to succeed. Otherwise, it may struggle to pursue the focus strategy effectively.

2. High costs: Serving a narrow market can lead to higher costs due to limited demand, which could pose challenges in maintaining profitability, especially in the premium segment.

3. Disappearance in long run: In the long run, the niche goods can disappear or be taken over by large competitors by acquiring the same distinctive competencies. In conclusion, M/s. Maa ki Pasand is adopting a focus strategy by targeting specific customer niches with both cost leadership and differentiation. While this strategy offers opportunities for premium pricing and market expertise, it also comes with challenges related to cost control and distinctive competencies.

Quick N Sturdy Inc., a multinational company, is undergoing feasibility study to introduce new luxury and sports car for specific group of customers. The product is meant for customers with distinctive preferences and special requirements. The product is not a standard one and as such the target market is also narrow. Company knows that demand for the product is large enough to be profitable for the company, but small enough to be ignored by other major industry players. The company wants to position itself in the niche market with the prime consideration to offer unique features in the product for the target market.

In the given situation, identify the generic strategy as suggested by Michael Porter. Also state the advantages and disadvantages of such strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Quick N Sturdy Inc. has adopted Focused Differentiation Strategy which is one of the Michael Porter's Generic strategies. A focused differentiation strategy requires offering unique features that fulfil the demands of a narrow market. Some firms using a focused differentiation strategy concentrate their efforts on a particular sales channel, such as selling over the internet only. Others target particular demographic groups. Firms that compete based on uniqueness and target a narrow market are following a focused differentiation strategy.

Advantages of Focused Strategy

1. Premium prices can be charged by the organisations for their focused product/services.

2. Due to the tremendous expertise in the goods and services that the organisations following focus strategy offer, rivals and new entrants may find it difficult to compete.

Disadvantages of Focused Strategy

1. The firms lacking in distinctive competencies may not be able to pursue focus strategy.

2. Due to the limited demand of product/services, costs are high, which can cause problems.

3. In the long run, the niche could disappear or be taken over by larger competitors by acquiring the same distinctive competencies.

What is cost leadership strategy? Under what circumstances an organization can gain competitive advantages from cost leadership strategy? Is there any risk in pursuing cost leadership strategy?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Cost leadership strategy emphasizes producing standardized products at a very low per-unit cost for consumers who are price-sensitive. It frequently results from productivity increases and aggressive pursuit of cost reduction throughout the development, production, marketing, and distribution processes. It allows a firm to earn higher profits than its competitors.

The circumstances in which an organization can gain competitive advantages from cost leadership strategy are:

- when the market is composed of many price-sensitive buyers.
- when there are few ways to achieve product differentiation.
- when buyers do not care much about differences from brand to brand.
- when there are a large number of buyers with significant bargaining power.

The basic idea is to underprice competitors and thereby gain market share driving some of the competitors out of the market.

Some risks of pursuing cost leadership are:

- that competitors may imitate the strategy, therefore driving overall industry profits down
- that technological breakthroughs in the industry may make the strategy ineffective; or that buyer interests may swing to other differentiating features besides price.

Inspite of high commodity inflation, shortage of components and the threat of third wave of COVID-19 pandemic in India, manufacturers of packaged goods, home appliances and consumer electronics are expecting the business to grow by 12 to 25 percent in the coming months. After one-and-a-half years of disruption, manufacturers are now confident about managing their inventories better, keeping their supply channels well-stocked and preparing themselves to minimalize the impact of any COVID related restrictions even as they gear up for the festive season, which usually accounts for 25 to 35 percent of their yearly sales.

The home appliances sector could be an example. After a dismal April-June quarter in the year 221; producers of air conditioners, refrigerators and washing machines are expecting their business to grow by 15-20 percent in the months to come. All the companies operating in the sector have geared up to grab the opportunities available in the market.

A leading company in the home appliances domain, XXP India, is planning to launch various innovative product designs and offer loyalty programmes to lure consumers.

With reference to Michael Porter's generic strategies, identify which strategy XXP India has planner for? Explain how this strategy will be advantageous to the company to remain profitable?

ICAI'S ANSWER

According to Michael Porter, strategies allow organizations to gain competitive advantage from three different bases: cost leadership, differentiation, and focus. Porter called these base generic strategies.

XXP India Ltd. has planned for Differentiation Strategy. The company is planning to launch various innovative product designs and offer loyalty programmes to lure customers. Differentiation strategy should be pursued only after a careful study of buyers' needs and preferences to determine the feasibility of incorporating one or more differentiating features into a unique product that features the desired attributes. A successful differentiation strategy allows a firm to charge a higher price for its product and to gain customer loyalty, because consumers may become strongly attached to the differentiated features.

Advantages of Differentiation Strategy

A differentiation strategy may help an organisation to remain profitable even with rivalry, new entrants, suppliers' power, substitute products, and buyers' power.

1. Rivalry - Brand loyalty acts as a safeguard against competitors. It means that customers will be less sensitive to price increases, as long as the firm can satisfy the needs of its customers.

2. Buyers – They do not negotiate for price as they get special features, and they have fewer options in the market.

3. Suppliers – Because differentiators charge a premium price, they can afford to absorb higher costs of supplies as the customers are willing to pay extra too.

4. Entrants – Innovative features are an expensive offer. So, new entrants generally avoid these features because it is tough for them to provide the same product with special features at a comparable price.

5. Substitutes – Substitute products can't replace differentiated products which have high brand value and enjoy customer loyalty.

Write a short note on the concept of cost leadership strategy and how to achieve it?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Cost leadership strategy requires vigorous pursuit of cost reduction in the areas of procurement, production, storage and distribution of product or service and also economies in overhead costs. Accordingly, the cost leader is able to charge a lower price for its products than its competitors and still make satisfactory profits. The low cost leadership should be such that no competitors are able to imitate so that it can result in sustainable competitive advantage to the cost leader firm.

To achieve cost leadership, following are the actions that could be taken:

1. Forecast the demand of a product or service promptly.

2. Optimum utilization of the resources to get cost advantages.

3. Achieving economies of scale leads to lower per unit cost of product/service.

4. Standardisation of products for mass production to yield lower cost per unit.

Explain in brief the various basis of differentiation strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

There are several basis of differentiation, major being: Product, Pricing and Org anization. Product: Innovative products that meet customer needs can be an area where a company has an advantage over competitors. However, the pursuit of a new product offering can be costly – research and development, as well as production and marketing costs can all add to the cost of production and distribution. The payoff, however, can be great as customer's flock to be among the first to have the new product.

Pricing: It fluctuates based on its supply and demand and may also be influenced by the customer's ideal value for a product. Companies that differentiate based on product price can either determine to offer the lowest price or can attempt to establish superiority through higher prices.

Organisation: Organisational differentiation is yet another form of differentiation. Maximizing the power of a brand or using the specific advantages that an organization possesses can be instrumental to a company's success. Location advantage, name recognition and customer loyalty can all provide additional ways for a company differentiate itself from the competition.

A business consultancy firm specializes in environment management consultancy. It advises client companies on how to set up environmental management accounting systems. For measuring recording and analyzing environmental costs. A large part of its business involves performing environmental audits to check whether companies have achieved an international assurance standard in environmental management; this is something that rival consultancy firms do not do. The firm also carries out other management consultancy projects for client, but these make up only a small proportion of its total annual fee income.

Identify the strategy categories by Michael Porter which best describes the strategy of this firm.

ICAI'S ANSWER

By concentrating mainly on the 'market' for consultancy services in environmental management, the firm is pursuing a focus strategy. By offering audit services, which rival firms do not, this indicates a differentiation strategy within this chosen mark et niche. Hence, the firm is following Focus differentiation strategy.

A focused differentiation strategy requires offering unique features that fulfil the demands of a narrow market. Similar to focused low-cost strategy, narrow markets are defined in different ways in different settings. Some firms using a focused differentiation strategy concentrate their efforts on a particular sales channel, such as selling over the internet only. Others target particular demographic groups. Firms that compete based o n uniqueness and target a narrow market are following a focused differentiations strategy.

CASE SCENARIO

O-Farm, an organic farm products brand has been operating in India since 2014. It has had a decent history of business with revenue of ₹ 50 crores in the previous year and a Compound Annual Growth Rate (CAGR) of 11% year on year.

While the company operated on "Kisaan Kalyan" i.e., farmer friendly agenda since its inception, the rough times ahead seem to call for changes. The recent amendments in Agriculture laws, though indirectly related to organic farming, have posed immense threat to how the business operates. The leaders have been proactive in shifting gears and budgeted funds for shifting focus to "Upbhokta Sewa", i.e., customer orientation. To create newer demands and position themselves against the local farming practice changes, they reached out to West Asian and African Nations for their farm inputs, just like many other small traders from their segment. Accordingly, they ordered dry fruits from Afghanistan, whole wheat from Nigeria, and citrus fruits from Turkey. This has helped them get raw inputs at cheaper than usual rates and even better contractual terms, thus, reducing input costs and thereby, passing on the surplus margins to customers.

Further, the marketing team roped in big cricket stars and many social media influencers to aware customers about the brand's customer orientation and product benefits. But, as the focus was on minimal spending, the team smartly locked in affiliate marketing terms with the influencers and even celebrities, instead of upfront promotion fee. This also helped in saving a lot of cost initially.

With the changing environment in the Indian subcontinent around agriculture production, the team is confident with its strategic positioning. The sales have been just at the break - even bars for now, and the projected CAGR is 19% year on year, taking the sales volume to 10X in the next 4 years.

Farming has been a respected profitable business with big players as huge as oil companies. Nonetheless, it is complex, as it involves a lot of stakeholders, especially as it still remains a labour intensive industry.

Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple Choice Questions.

Q1(i)

O-Farm's new strategy implementation as a result of amendment of Agriculture laws by the government, resonates with which of the following statements?

A. Organisational operations are highly influenced by ripple effect of environmental changes.

B. Organisational structure is highly influenced by ripple effect of environmental changes.

C. Organisational operations are not affected by the ripple effect of environmental changes.

D Organisational structure can influence the environmental changes.

Explain in brief the various basis of differentiation strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

There are several basis of differentiation, major being: Product, Pricing and Organization. Product: Innovative products that meet customer needs can be an area where a company has an advantage over competitors. However, the pursuit of a new product offering can be costly – research and development, as well as production and marketing costs can all add to the cost of production and distribution. The payoff, however, can be great as customer's flock to be among the first to have the new product.

Pricing: It fluctuates based on its supply and demand and may also be influenced by the customer's ideal value for a product. Companies that differentiate based on product price can either determine to offer the lowest price or can attempt to establish superiority through higher prices.

Organisation: Organisational differentiation is yet another form of differentiation. Maximizing the power of a brand or using the specific advantages that an organization possesses can be instrumental to a company's success. Location advantage, name recognition and customer loyalty can all provide additional ways for a company differentiate itself from the competition.

Write a short note on the concept of cost leadership strategy and how to achieve it?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Cost leadership strategy requires vigorous pursuit of cost reduction in the areas of procurement, production, storage and distribution of product or service and als o economies in overhead costs. Accordingly, the cost leader is able to charge a lower price for its products than its competitors and still make satisfactory profits. The low cost leadership should be such that no competitors are able to imitate so that it can result in sustainable competitive advantage to the cost leader firm.

To achieve cost leadership, following are the actions that could be taken:

1. Forecast the demand of a product or service promptly.

2. Optimum utilization of the resources to get cost advantages.

3. Achieving economies of scale leads to lower per unit cost of product/service.

4. Standardisation of products for mass production to yield lower cost per unit.

5. Invest in cost saving technologies and try using advance technology for smart working.

Distinguish between Cost Leadership and Differentiation Strategies.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Cost leadership emphasizes producing standardized products at a very low per-unit cost for consumers who are price-sensitive. Differentiation is a strategy aimed at producing products and services considered unique industry wide and directed at consumers who are relatively price-insensitive.

A primary reason for pursuing forward, backward, and horizontal integration strategies is to gain cost leadership benefits. But cost leadership generally must be pursued in conjunction with differentiation. Different strategies offer different degrees of differentiation. A differentiation strategy should be pursued only after a careful study of buyers' needs and preferences to determine the

A differentiation strategy may help to remain profitable even with: rivalry, new entrants, suppliers' power, substitute products, and buyers' power.

1. Rivalry - Brand loyalty acts as a safeguard against competitors. It means that customers will be less sensitive to price increases, as long as the firm can satisfy the needs of its customers.

2. Buyers – They do not negotiate for price as they get special features and also they have fewer options in the market.

3. Suppliers – Because differentiators charge a premium price, they can afford to absorb higher costs of supplies and customers are willing to pay extra too.

4. Entrants – Innovative features are an expensive offer. So, new entrants generally avoid these features because it is tough for them to provide the same product with special features at a comparable price.

5. Substitutes – Substitute products can't replace differentiated products which have high brand value and enjoy customer loyalty.

A century-old footwear company "Mota Shoes" had an image of being the footwear choice for formal occasions. In an attempt to reinvent its brand, it tied up with a foreign footwear giant "Buffrine" to manufacture and sell its Hideseek brand in the country. Putting its best foot forward, it launched extra soft, casual and relaxed footwear for young. Aiming at a brand and image makeover the "Mota Shoes" decided to price the Hide Seek products at premium.

What kind of Michael Porter business level strategy is being used by "Mota Shoe company"? State its advantages.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Mota shoes is trying to use differentiation. This strategy is aimed at broad mass market and involves the creation of a product or service that is perceived by the customers as unique. The uniqueness can be associated with product design, brand image, features, technology, dealer network or customer service. Because of differentiation, the business can charge a premium for its product.

A differentiation strategy has definite advantages as it may help to remain profitable even with rivalry, new entrants, suppliers' power, substitute products, and buyers' power.

i. Rivalry: Brand loyalty acts as a safeguard against competitors. It means that customers will be less sensitive to price increases, as long as the firm can satisfy the needs of its customers.

ii. Buyers: They do not negotiate for price as they get special features and also they have fewer options in the market.

iii. Suppliers: Because differentiators charge a premium price, they can afford to absorb higher costs of supplies and customers are willing to pay extra too.

iv. New entrants: Innovative features are expensive to copy. So, new entrants generally avoid these features because it is tough for them to provide the same product with special features at a comparable price.

What do you understand by cost leadership? How is it achieved?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Cost leadership is a low cost competitive strategy that aims at broad mass market. It requires vigorous pursuit of cost reduction in the areas of procurement, production, storage and distribution of product or service and also economies in overhead costs. Because of its lower costs, the cost leader is able to charge a lower price for its products than its competitors and still make satisfactory profits. A primary reason for pursuing forward, backward, and horizontal integration strategies is to gain cost leadership benefits. A successful cost leadership strategy usually permeates the entire firm, as evidenced by high efficiency, low overhead, limited perks, intolerance of waste, intensive screening of budget requests, wide spans of control, rewards linked to cost containment, and broad employee participation in cost control efforts. Some risks of pursuing cost leadership are that competitors may imitate the strategy.

To achieve cost leadership, following are the actions that could be taken:

(a) Forecast the demand of a product or service promptly.

(b) Optimum utilization of the resources to get cost advantages.

(c) Achieving economies of scale leads to lower per unit cost of product/service.

ARP Motors, an automobile company, was struggling in the competitive SUV market in India. As a business strategist, you recommended that ARP launch a compact SUV that balances affordability with premium features. In response, ARP developed and introduced FLEXON, strategically pricing it and incorporating high-end features such as a 5-star Global NCAP safety rating, a modern design and advanced technology. Furthermore, the company expanded into the electric vehicle segment with FLEXON EV, positioning it as one of the most affordable yet feature-rich electric SUVs in India. Which strategy did you recommend to ARP Motors to achieve a competitive advantage? Explain the strategy briefly and enumerate the keyways ARP Motors implemented it.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The strategy recommended to ARP Motors is the Best-Cost Provider Strategy.

Best-cost provider strategy is directed towards giving customers more value for their money by emphasizing both low cost and premium features. The objective is to keep costs and prices lower than those of other sellers of comparable products while offering better quality and superior features.

Application in ARP Motors Case:

- Launch of FLEXON (Compact SUV): ARP priced FLEXON strategically at an affordable level, while at the same time incorporating premium features such as a 5-star Global NCAP safety rating, advanced technology and a modern design. This reflects the approach of offering better quality at lower or comparable prices.
- Introduction of FLEXON EV: By entering the electric vehicle market, ARP positioned FLEXON EV as one of the most affordable yet feature-rich electric SUVs in India. This aligns with the principle of charging lower prices for comparable products or offering higher quality for similar prices thereby giving customers more value for money.

A business consultancy firm focuses on providing specialized services in environmental management consultancy. It assists client companies in establishing robust environmental management accounting systems for the measurement, recording, and analysis of environmental costs. A significant portion of the firm's operations involve conducting environmental audits to verify compliance with international assurance standards in environmental management—an exclusive service not offered by its competitors. While the firm also undertakes other management consultancy projects, these constitute only a minor share of its total annual revenue. Identify the strategy categories by Michael Porter which best describes the strategy of this firm.

ICAI'S ANSWER

By concentrating primarily on the market for consultancy services in environmental management, the firm is pursuing a focus strategy. Its provision of audit services, which rival firms do not offer, highlights a differentiation strategy within this specific market niche. Therefore, the firm is following a focused differentiation strategy.

A focused differentiation strategy involves offering unique features that cater to the specific needs of a narrow market segment. As with the focused low-cost strategy, narrow markets can be defined differently depending on the context. For instance, some firms using this strategy focus on a particular sales channel, such as exclusively selling online, while others may target specific demographic groups. Firms that compete on uniqueness while addressing the needs of a narrow market exemplify the focused differentiation strategy.

This focus on design led to their vehicles receiving excellent reviews and achieving an impressive 15% year-on-year growth in sales.

Secondly, Zing implemented switching costs to discourage customers from switching to other brands. Their vehicles featured branded software, making it both expensive and cumbersome for customers to transition to alternative brands. This strategic move effectively protected Zing's market share.

Zing's overarching goal was to position itself as a premium automotive brand, blending luxury with sustainability. However, their execution fell down as they challenged with maintaining consistent quality and service levels, resulting in mixed customer reviews.

Despite their best efforts, Zing's differentiation strategy fell short due to issues with inconsistent quality and service. Negative word-of-mouth and declining customer satisfaction scores tarnished their brand image, leading to stagnating sales. This failure to deliver on their brand promise proved to be a significant setback.

As Zing's reputation suffered from execution failures, securing additional funds for international expansion became challenging. Consequently, they made the difficult decision to postpone their global ambitions for the next five years, focusing instead on stabilizing their finances and rebuilding their brand image.

In summary, Zing's strategic journey illustrates the importance of not only crafting a compelling differentiation strategy but also executing it flawlessly. In the competitive automotive landscape, maintaining consistent quality and service is paramount to sustaining brand loyalty and achieving long-term success.

StarTech Solutions, an aerospace technology firm, operates in a highly competitive industry. Despite the fierce competition in the aerospace sector, StarTech has carved out a niche for itself by focusing on serving unique, high-end clients. Unlike its competitors, StarTech has chosen not to diversify its target market and instead specializes in providing cutting-edge solutions to this niche market.

Identify and explain the strategy adopted by StarTech Solutions. Discuss the advantages and disadvantages of this strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The strategy adopted by StarTech Solutions is Focused differentiation. This strategy involves targeting a specific segment of the market with unique products or services that are perceived as valuable by customers in that segment. By specializing in serving unique, high-end clients, StarTech is able to differentiate itself from competitors and create a competitive advantage.

Advantages of Focused Differentiation:

- Strong Customer Loyalty: By catering to a specific niche market, StarTech can build strong relationships with its customers, leading to higher customer loyalty and retention.

- Higher Profit Margins: Serving a niche market allows StarTech to command higher prices for its specialized products or services, leading to higher profit margins.
- Reduced Competition: By focusing on a niche market that other firms are not targeting, StarTech faces less competition, allowing it to establish itself as a leader in that segment.
- Better Resource Allocation: Focusing on a specific market segment allows StarTech to allocate its resources more efficiently, concentrating on areas that will provide the greatest return on investment.

Disadvantages of Focused Differentiation:

- Limited Market Size: The niche market that StarTech is targeting may be limited in size, restricting the company's potential for growth.
- Risk of Market Changes: Changes in the market or customer preferences could impact on the demand for StarTech's specialized products or services, leading to potential revenue loss.
- Higher Costs: Serving a niche market may require specialized resources and expertise, leading to higher costs of operation.
- Imitation by Competitors: If StarTech's success in the niche market attracts competitors, they may attempt to imitate its strategy, eroding its competitive advantage.

Overall, the focused differentiation strategy adopted by StarTech Solutions has allowed it to differentiate itself in a competitive industry and build a strong position in the market. However, the company must be aware of the potential challenges and risks associated with this strategy and continue to innovate and adapt to maintain its competitive edge.

BudgetSmart Retailers, a renowned supermarket chain, faced fierce competition in the grocery retail sector due to escalating operational expenses. Rising costs from rent, labor, and inventory management challenged their profitability amidst the emergence of discount stores and online competitors. To counter this, BudgetSmart Retailers optimized their supply chain through bulk procurement, revamped store layouts for cost efficiency and customer experience, embraced lean operational practices to minimize waste, and conducted comprehensive staff training to boost productivity and customer service efficiency.

Identify and explain the strategy adopted by BudgetSmart Retailers to enhance the profitability.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Budget Smart Retailers adopted a cost leadership strategy to enhance profitability in the fiercely competitive grocery retail sector. It is a low-cost competitive strategy that aims at broad mass market. It requires vigorous pursuit of cost reduction in the areas of procurement, production, storage and distribution of product or service and also economies in overhead costs. Because of its lower costs, the cost leader is able to charge a lower price for its products than most of its competitors and still earn satisfactory profits.

By negotiating bulk procurement deals with suppliers, BudgetSmart Retailers lowered their cost of goods, allowing them to offer competitive prices to customers. The revamping of store layouts aimed to maximize space utilization and product placement, reducing operational costs and improving the overall shopping experience. Embracing lean principles minimized waste in the supply chain, reducing unnecessary expenses and improving efficiency. Comprehensive staff training boosted employee productivity and customer service efficiency, contributing to cost reduction and enhanced customer satisfaction.

Explain in brief the various basis of differentiation strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

There are several basis of differentiation, major being: Product, Pricing and Organization.

Product: Innovative products that meet customer needs can be an area where a company has an advantage over competitors. However, the pursuit of a new product offering can be costly – research and development, as well as production and marketing costs can all add t o the cost of production and distribution. The payoff, however, can be great as customer's flock to be among the first to have the new product.

Pricing: It fluctuates based on its supply and demand and may also be influenced by the customer's ideal value for a product. Companies that differentiate based on product price can either determine to offer the lowest price or can attempt to establish superiority through higher prices.

Organisation: Organisational differentiation is yet another form of differentiation. Maximizing the power of a brand or using the specific advantages that an organization possesses can be instrumental to a company's success. Location advantage, name recognition and customer loyalty can all provide additional ways for a company differentiate itself from the competition.

Case scenario · Q1(A)1 to Q1(A)5 6 marks old scheme

CASE SCENARIO

Hi-tech Corporation has been a pioneer in developing innovative products and core technologies that have played a vital role in shaping the future of electronics. The company's expertise in liquid crystal displays (LCDs) and digital technologies has helped it offer one of the most comprehensive and advanced lines of consumer electronics, information products, and electronic components while also creating new network businesses. However, it hasn't always been a leader in the industry.

Hi-tech Corporation has travelled a long way from an assembler of televisions to a leading TV manufacturer. In the early days, Hi-tech was making low-quality, low-priced televisions and was overshadowed by big players like LG, Sony and Samsung. It was a technology follower in the beginning and was using secondary technology, which resulted in a low brand image. The company went through a major transformation under the leadership of Mr. Joyce, who focused on R&D and innovation to enhance its market coverage and reputation.

Hi-tech's innovation in LCD technology and developing products featuring LCDs made it the world's largest manufacturer of LCD TVs. The company's success has been attributed to its focus on innovation, which is a critical factor in sustaining its position as a leader in the industry. However, the global economic downturn has affected Hi-tech, and the industry has realized that only innovation in terms of quality, cost, and competitive strength can help companies survive. Additionally, every new technology becomes obsolete faster, which means companies have to continuously innovate to stay ahead of the competition.

Hi-tech is facing challenges from the ever-changing competitive scenario, with global competitors striving to dethrone it and the entry of low-cost manufacturers from Asia. The emergence of newer display technologies with superior quality at a lower price has posed one of the biggest challenges for Hi-tech. While Hi-tech has taken the first-mover advantage, it is facing competition from late entrants.

Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple-Choice Questions which are as follows:

Q1(A)1 2 marks

Can Hi-tech's initial position in the industry be called as cost leadership strategy?

A Initial Position: A manufacturer of low-quality, low-priced televisions. No, not a cost leader, as cost leader does not necessarily mean low quality with low prices.

What are the various alternative strategies which the managers need to identify that will create and sustain a competitive advantage in the business? Discuss.

ICAI'S ANSWER

According to Porter, strategies allow organizations to gain competitive advantage from three different bases: cost leadership, differentiation, and focus.

These bases form different generic strategies as follows:

- Cost leadership emphasizes producing standardized products at a very low per-unit cost for consumers who are price-sensitive. It frequently results from productivity increases and aggressive pursuit of cost reduction throughout the development, production, marketing, and distribution processes. It allows a firm to earn higher profits than its competitors.
- Differentiation is a strategy aimed at producing products and services considered unique industry wide and directed at consumers who are relatively price-insensitive. It concerns with distinguishing a product/service from that of its competitors through unique design features, technological leadership, unique uses of products and attributes like quality, environmental impact and customer service.
- Focus means producing products and services that fulfill the specific needs of small groups of consumers. It involves selecting or focusing a market or customer segment in which to operate.

A private Moneyload Ltd. Bank that targets high worth individuals. They offer a premium service with many additional and personal services not normally available through other banks. They charge a significant annual fee for these services. The company makes full use of information technology throughout its operations in order to minimize costs. Identify and explain the generic strategy adopted by Moneyload Ltd. Bank?

ICAI'S ANSWER

According to Porter, strategies allow organizations to gain competitive advantage from three different bases: cost leadership, differentiation, and focus. Porter called these base generic strategies.

Moneyland Ltd. Bank targets a narrow segment of the market, offering unique and desirable products. The bank will want to keep its costs under control, but it will not reduce costs at the expenses of reducing the quality levels of the customer service it offers. By maintaining high quality levels, it will still be able to charge a premium for its services. Thus, the strategy adopted by Moneyland Ltd. Bank is Focused Differentiation.

A focused differentiation strategy requires offering unique features that fulfil the demands of a narrow market. Some firms using a focused differentiation strategy concentrate their efforts on a particular sales channel, such as selling over the internet only. Others target particular demographic groups. Firms that compete based on uniqueness and target a narrow market are following a focused differentiations strategy.

Distinguish between the following:

Cost Leadership and Differentiation Strategies.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Cost leadership emphasizes producing standardized products at a very low per-unit cost for consumers who are price-sensitive. Differentiation is a strategy aimed at producing products and services considered unique industry wide and directed at consumers who are relatively price insensitive.

A primary reason for pursuing forward, backward, and horizontal integration strateg ies is to gain cost leadership benefits. But cost leadership generally must be pursued in conjunction with differentiation. Different strategies offer different degrees of differentiation. A differentiation strategy should be pursued only after a careful study of buyers' needs and preferences to determine the feasibility of incorporating one or more differentiating features into a unique product. A successful differentiation strategy allows a firm to charge a higher price for its product and to gain customer loyalty.

Aloe Veda, a women run health company has been making innovative products based on Aloe Vera. Their portfolio includes creams, edibles, juices, face masks, and now even hand sanitizers. They have had a simple focus; luring women customers of all ages who care about their personal health and hygiene at prices that the common consumer can afford. The market is growing over the years and even men have shown interest in their products.

However, running the company has not been easy, for big FMCG brands are readily offering similar products with better reach. Mr. Mukesh Bakshi was onboarded to help the company scale up its customer reach and he implemented old school distribution tactics. The distributors were offered better margins, foreign trips and gifts and even profit sharing in some cases. This helped the company shelf Aloe Veda products at most of the retailers. Online business was also ramped up diligently.

Mukesh has been instrumental in achieving targets, but the core team has been a group of close-knit partners who have built the company on trust. And as the business grew, the partners took up individual responsibilities in an autonomous fashion, where each one of them was responsible for their own segment's operations and process improvement, and collectively driven by positive and margins. The policy of "trust all, ask no questions" could be seen at the leadership level.

The company has been aware of its industry and the players therein, with different set of strengths and economic backgrounds, but it wanted to deep dive into some more metrics to get a holistic view of the competition. For that, they reached out to KMGP LLP to project a strategic group mapping for them, based on which they could plan ahead. KMGP LLP prepared the below chart;

BHAVNAV is a business which makes and sells laptop computers in France. In recent years it has been struggling to compete with its rivals and has seen a significant fall in its market share. BHAVNAV's managers identify that majority of its products launched by BHAVNAV's rivals were high specification, with good quality materials and many innovative design features. Products with inferior quality, such as those sold by BHAVNAV have not sold well in France. This information led BHAVNAV's management team to decide to select a new business strategy based on Porter's Generic Strategic Model. Identify and suggest the best business strategy BHAVNAV's management has to opt for?

ICAI'S ANSWER

According to Porter, the three different business strategies are: cost leadership, differentiation, and focus. Porter called these base generic strategies.

The information about competitor activities indicates that the market is uninterested in low-cost items, so a cost leadership approach is unlikely to be successful for BHAVNAV. It is suggested to adopt a differentiation strategy and find some way of enabling its laptops to stand out from its rivals.

Differentiation strategy is aimed at broad mass market and involves the creation of a product or service that is perceived by the customers as unique. The uniqueness can be associated with product design, brand image, features, technology, dealer network or customer service.

Rohansh Bakshi a 22-year-old from Maharashtra, started a gaming equipment company called TEEMOX, which specialises in gaming chairs, gaming consoles, controllers, wireless keyboard, and touchscreen mouse pads. Rohan has been an innovator and loves building products. Hence, to prioritise his time more on development, he insisted Mr. N. Muniyappa, his mentor, to be the CEO of the company and spearhead business from the front.

Rohansh has always believed in bringing something new to the consumer and that is clearly projected in the products offered by TEEMOX. His designs reflect youth with exciting colors and comfort, and they match the quality of global big brands. However, to make hi s products worth the money that his customers are paying, the procurement is done from Indonesia and Vietnam, where the materials are easily available at low costs.

Interestingly, Rohansh's AI based gaming chairs have been a huge hit for the company, bringing in the maximum revenue and margins. The business has gone from 200 units sold to over 5000 units sold in just six months. To add to it, a famous FMCG Brand approached TEEMOX to collaborate for a sports drink focused on gamers. The team is excited about this collaboration as the deal shall bring in more awareness and open newer markets for them. But Mr. Muniyappa insists that this might as well displease the existing consumers who relate to TEEMOX as a customer-oriented brand rather than yet another money minting business.

Nonetheless, the plans seem to be working in the company's favour for now and the future seems bright. To put in context, the gaming industry is booming with a Compound Annual Growth Rate (CAGR) of 190%, adding over 20 million new customers every quarter. Which business level strategy would best suit for Mr. Vijay's idea and what are the major sub-strategies that can be implemented to capture maximum market?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The Best Cost Provider strategy would ensure a better reach to the not so affluent customers and provide them with good quality cycles and equipments, thus tapping in on the increasing trend of cycling.

Two sub-strategies that can be implemented are:

1. Offering lower prices than rivals for the same quality of products

2. Charging same prices for better quality of products

The idea of Mr. Vijay is to provide almost same quality of products in terms of functionality if not so in terms of branding, to customer who do not have huge sums of money to pay. Thus, sub - strategy number one, offering lower prices for almost same quality should be impl emented to become the best cost provider of cycles and related equipments in the market.

Write a short note on the concept of competitive advantage.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Competitive advantage is the position of a firm to maintain and sustain a favorable market position when compared to the competitors. Competitive advantage is ability to offer buyers something different and thereby providing more value for the money. It is achieved advantage over rivals when a company's profitability is greater than average profitability of firms in its industry. It is the result of a successful strategy. This position gets translated into higher market share, higher profits when compared to those that are obtained by competitors operating in the same industry. Competitive advantage may also be in the form of low cost relationship in the industry or being unique in the industry along dimensions that are widely valued by the customers in particular and the society at large.

A primary reason for pursuing forward, backward, and horizontal integration strategies is to gain cost leadership benefits. But cost leadership generally must be pursued in conjunction with differentiation. Different strategies offer different degrees of differentiation. A differentiation strategy should be pursued only after a careful study of buyers' needs and preferences to determine the feasibility of incorporating one or more differentiating features into a unique product. A successful differentiation strategy allows a firm to charge a higher price for its product and to gain customer loyalty.

Advantages of cost leadership strategy

ICAI'S ANSWER

Advantages of Cost leadership strategy

Earlier we have discussed Porter's Five Forces Model in detail. A cost leadership strategy may help to remain profitable even with: rivalry, new entrants, suppliers' power, substitute products, and buyers' power.

1. Rivalry – Competitors are likely to avoid a price war, since the low cost firm will continue to earn profits after competitors compete away their profits.

2. Buyers – Powerful buyers/customers would not be able to exploit the cost leader firm and will continue to buy its product.

3. Suppliers – Cost leaders are able to absorb greater price increases before it must raise price to customers.

4. Entrants – Low cost leaders create barriers to market entry through its continuous focus on efficiency and reducing costs.

5. Substitutes – Low cost leaders are more likely to lower costs to induce customers to stay with their product, invest to develop substitutes, purchase patents.

Innovation is widely regarded as a catalyst for business growth, enabling firms to upgrade existing products and processes, enhance customer satisfaction, and improve profitability. In light of this statement explain what an innovation offers to the organisation and any risk involved in doing so.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Innovation refers to the creation and implementation of new or significantly improved products, services, processes or business models. Innovation acts as a key driver of growth, competitiveness and long-term sustainability. Innovation refers to the upgradation of existing products, services or processes, which leads to higher market share, revenues, profitability and customer satisfaction. For long-term business growth, innovation plays a crucial strategic role.
What Innovation Offers to an Organisation

1. Helps Solve Complex Problems: Innovation enables businesses to identify opportunities in societal and business problems and develop customer-centric and sustainable solutions. Though initial costs may be high, innovation ensures long-term economic and environmental sustainability.

2. Increases Productivity: Innovation simplifies and automates tasks, reduces manual effort and improves efficiency. Automation and digital tools enhance productivity at both process and organisational levels, creating a ripple effect across industries.

3. Gives Competitive Advantage: Faster innovation helps firms move ahead of competitors. Innovative products offer greater customer satisfaction, require less marketing effort, help retain existing customers and attract new ones.

Risks Involved in Innovation

1. High Cost and Financial Risk: Innovation involves significant investment and returns may not be immediate or assured.

2. Uncertain Returns: Some innovations may not deliver expected benefits, making them appear as unnecessary expenses in the short run.

3. Technological Uncertainty: Rapid technological changes may make existing innovations obsolete.

4. Implementation Risk: Poor execution or lack of organisational capability can lead to failure of innovative initiatives.

Thus, while innovation is a powerful driver of growth, productivity and competitive advantage, it also involves risks that must be carefully managed to achieve long-term sustainability and success.

"In a dynamic business environment, merger serves as a critical tool for companies seeking expansion, synergy creation and competitive advantage." Discuss the concept of mergers, their classifications and their impact on business performance.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Merger is a process when two or more companies come together to expand their business operations. In such a case the deal gets finalized on friendly terms and both the organizations share profits in the newly created entity. In a merger two organizations combine to increase their strength and financial gains along with breaking of the trade barriers. Types of Mergers and their impact on business performance

(a) Horizontal Merger: A horizontal merger occurs when two firms in the same industry and direct competitors combine. Its objective is to achieve economies of scale by eliminating duplication, widening product lines, reducing investment in working capital and fixed assets and removing competition, thereby strengthening market position and efficiency.

(b) Vertical Merger: A vertical merger occurs between firms in the same industry at different production or distribution stages. It may involve backward integration (taking over suppliers) or forward integration (acquiring buyers/distributors). Such mergers create synergies, cost efficiencies and advantages by controlling inputs, reducing dependence and enhancing overall operational and financial performance.

(c) Co-generic Merger: A co-generic merger takes place between firms related through production processes, markets, or technologies. It allows product line extension or acquisition of components essential for operations. Such mergers enable businesses to diversify around common resources and strategic needs, creating opportunities for growth, synergy and better utilization of existing capabilities.

(d) Conglomerate Merger: A conglomerate merger involves firms from unrelated industries with no direct linkages in customers, functions or technologies. It helps companies diversify risk, enter new markets and expand business portfolios. Though largely unrelated, some overlap in production, marketing or R&D may exist, offering opportunities for growth and financial stability.

‘Innovation leads to unnecessary expenses that do not give as many returns.’ Do you agree with the statement? Give reasons in support of your answer.

ICAI’S ANSWER

The statement "Innovation leads to unnecessary expenses that do not give as many returns" is often debated, but evidence strongly suggests that innovation is crucial for long-term business growth and success. I disagree with the statement for several reasons: Innovation offers the following for a business to grow long term: Helps to solve complex problems: A business strives to find opportunities in existing problems of the society, and it does so through planned innovation in areas of expertise. This guided innovation helps solve complex problems by developing customer centric sustainable solutions. Increases productivity: Innovation leads to simplification and in most cases automation of existing tasks. Companies are willing to spend millions on increasing their productivity. Innovation, by automating repetitive tasks and simplifying the long chain of processes, adds to productivity of teams and thereby the organization as a whole. Gives competitive advantage: Being ahead of competition is a need and businesses spend majority of their strategic time building solutions to achieve this advantage. The faster a business innovates, the farther it goes from its competitors reach. Innovative products need less marketing as they aim to provide added satisfaction to consumers, thus, creating a competitive advantage. Innovation not only helps retain its existing customers but helps acquire new ones with ease too.

Explain the concept of vertically integrated diversification. How is forward integration different from backward integration?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Vertically integrated diversification is a strategic approach in which a company expands its business operations into different stages of the production or distribution process within the same industry. This involves either forward integration or backward integration. The key difference between forward and backward integration lies in the direction of expansion within the supply chain. Forward integration moves towards the end consumer, while backward integration moves towards the source of raw materials or components. Forward integration allows companies to have more control over distribution channels, improve customer relationships, and capture a larger share of the value chain. In contrast, backward integration helps companies secure a stable supply of inputs, reduce dependency on suppliers, and potentially lower production costs. Forward integration is often associated with activities such as retailing, marketing, and after-sales services, while backward integration is associated with activities such as manufacturing, sourcing, and procurement. Both types of integration offer strategic advantages such as increased market power, cost efficiencies, and greater control over critical business processes. However, the decision to pursue forward or backward integration depends on factors such as industry dynamics, competitive landscape, and the company's core competencies and resources.

Which strategy is implemented by redefining the business, by enlarging its scope of business and substantially increasing investment in the business? Explain the major reasons for adopting this strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The strategy in question is the growth/expansion strategy.

The Growth/Expansion strategy involves redefining the business, expanding its scope, and significantly increasing investments. This dynamic and vigorous approach is synonymous with promise and success.

It entails a substantial reformulation of goals, major initiatives, and strategic moves, including investments, exploration into new products, technologies, and markets, and innovative decision-making. While promising growth, this strategy navigates the enterprise through relatively unknown and risky paths, rich with potential but also pitfalls.

Major Reasons for Adopting Growth/Expansion Strategy:

- It may become imperative when environment demands increase in pace of activity.
- Strategists may feel more satisfied with the prospects of growth from expansion; chief executives may take pride in presiding over organizations perceived to be growth-oriented.
- Expansion may lead to greater control over the market vis-a-vis competitors.
- Advantages from the experience curve and scale of operations may accrue.
- Expansion also includes intensifying, diversifying, acquiring and merging businesses.

What do you understand by Strategic Alliance? Discuss its advantages.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A strategic alliance is a relationship between two or more businesses that enables each to achieve certain strategic objectives which neither would be able to achieve on its own. The strategic partners maintain their status as independent and separate entities, share the benefits and control over the partnership, and continue to make contributions to the alliance until it is terminated.

The advantages of strategic alliance can be broadly categorised as follows:

(a) Organizational: Strategic alliance helps to learn necessary skills and obtain certain capabilities from strategic partners. Strategic partners may also help to enhance productive capacity, provide a distribution system, or extend supply chain.

(b) Economic: There can be reduction in costs and risks by distributing them across the members of the alliance. Greater economies of scale can be obtained in an alliance, as production volume can increase, causing the cost per unit to decline. The partners can also take advantage of co-specialization, creating additional value.

(c) Strategic: Rivals can join together to cooperate instead of competing. Strategic alliances may also be useful to create a competitive advantage by the pooling of resources and skills. This may also help with future business opportunities and the development of new products and technologies. Strategic alliances may also be used to get access to new technologies or to pursue joint research and development.

Health Pharma Pvt. Ltd. (HPPL) a one person company with limited liability is manufacturing generic and medicinal drugs in India.

Hygiene Laboratories Plc. (HLP) a multinational company with its strong financial position is one of the major players in pharmaceutical sector.

Individually, each company has its own core competencies. However, additional focus by the state on generic medicine with renewed regulatory requirements are posing challenges in fierce competitive environment.

Considering benefits of synergies, both the companies are considering to join hands for better growth opportunities. Earlier, they tried to go for joint venture or strategic alliance but the arrangement could not materialize.

In view of the facts given above:

(i) If HPPL and HLP join hands and make new entity named Health N Hygiene Pharma Ltd., what type of growth strategy will this strategic development be?

(ii) In case, HLP is sold out to HPPL and HLP ceased to exist, what type of growth strategy will this strategic deal be?

(iii) What are the differences between the above two identified growth strategies?

ICAI'S ANSWER

(i) If HPPL and HLP join hands and form a new entity named Health N Hygiene Pharma Ltd., this strategic development would be considered a Merger growth strategy. A merger is a combination of two or more companies to form a new entity with shared ownership and control.

(ii) If HLP is sold out to HPPL and HLP ceases to exist, this strategic deal would be categorized as an Acquisition growth strategy. An acquisition occurs when one company purchases another, resulting in the acquiring company gaining control over the acquired company's assets, operations, and intellectual property.

(iii) Many organizations in order to achieve quick growth, expand or diversify with the use of mergers and acquisitions strategies. Merger and acquisition in simple words are defined as a process of combining two or more organizations together. There is a thin line of difference between the two terms, but the impact of combination is completely different in both the cases.

Merger is considered to be a process when two or more organizations join together to expand their business operations. In such a case the deal gets finalized on friendly terms. Owners of pre-merged entities have right over the profits of new entity. In a merger two organizations combine to increase their strength and financial gains.

While, when one organization takes over the other organization and controls all its business operations, it is known as acquisition. In the process of acquisition, one financially strong organization overpowers the weaker one. Acquisitions often happen during economic recession or during declining profit margins. In this process, one that is financially stronger and bigger establishes it power. The combined operations then run under the name of the powerful entity. A deal in case of an acquisition is often done in an unfriendly manner; it is more or less a forced association.

Following are the differences between the concentric diversification and conglomerate diversifications:

Concentric Diversification	Conglomerate Diversification
Meaning: It occurs when a firm adds related products or markets.	Meaning: It occurs when a firm diversifies into areas that are unrelated to its current line of business.
Linkage: The new business is linked to the existing businesses through process, technology or marketing.	Linkage: Here no such linkages exist; the new business/product is disjointed from the existing businesses/products.
Reasons for pursuing: The most common reason for pursuing a concentric diversification is that opportunities in a firm's existing line of business are available.	Reasons for pursuing: The common reason for pursuing a conglomerate growth strategy is that opportunities in a firm's current line of business are limited or opportunities outside are highly lucrative.

The production is to be exported to the company's home market as well as to other African countries.

What is this growth strategy called? Point out the most important advantages both the companies expect from such strategy/collaboration.

ICAI'S ANSWER

GWA of Japan and TRP group of India opted for strategic alliance as their growth strategy. A strategic alliance is a relationship between two or more businesses that enables each to achieve certain strategic objectives which neither would be able to achieve on its own. Strategic alliances are often formed in the global marketplace between businesses that are based in different regions of the world.

Advantages of Strategic Alliance

Strategic alliance usually is only formed if they provide an advantage to all the parties in the alliance. These advantages can be broadly categorised as follows:

1. Organizational: Strategic alliance helps to learn necessary skills and obtain certain capabilities from strategic partners. Strategic partners may also help

Gautam and Siddhartha two brothers are the owners of a cloth manufacturing unit located in Faridabad. They are doing well and have substantial surplus funds available within the business. They have different approaches regarding corporate strategies to be followed to be more competitive and profitable in future.

Gautam is interested in acquiring another industrial unit located in Faridabad manufacturing stationery items such as permanent markers, notebooks, pencils and pencil sharpeners, envelopes and other office supplies. On the other hand, Siddhartha desires to start another unit to produce readymade garments.

Discuss the nature of corporate strategies being suggested by two brothers and risks involved in it.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Gautam wishes to diversify in a business that is not related to their existing line of product and can be termed as conglomerate diversification. He is interested in acquiring another industrial unit located in Faridabad manufacturing stationery items such as permanent markers, notebooks, pencils and pencil sharpeners, envelopes and other office supplies, which is not related to their existing product. In conglomerate diversification, the new businesses/ products are disjointed from the existing businesses/products in every way; it is a unrelated diversification. In process/ technology/ function, there is no connection between the new products and the existing ones. Conglomerate diversification has no common thread at all with the firm's present position.

On the other hand, Siddhartha seeks to move forward in the chain of existing product by adopting vertically integrated diversification/ forward integration. The cloth being manufactured by the existing processes can be used as raw material of garments manufacturing business. In such diversification, firms opt to engage in businesses that are related to the existing business of the firm. The firm remains vertically within the same process and moves forward or backward in the chain. It enters specific product/process steps with the intention of making them into new businesses for the firm. The characteristic feature of vertically integrated diversification is that here, the firm does not jump outside the vertically linked product-process chain.

Both types of diversifications have their own risks. In conglomerate diversification, there are no linkages with customer group, customer marketing functions and technology used, which is a risk. In the case of vertical integrated diversification, there is a risk of lack of continued focus on the original business.

Arvind, CEO of Stellar Electronics Ltd., decided that instead of depending only on consumer appliances, the company should enter the renewable energy equipment business to achieve long-term growth and reduce business risk. He proposed establishing a new division for solar panels and batteries. Which corporate strategy is reflected in this decision?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The decision taken by Arvind reflects the diversification strategy, which is a corporate-level strategy. Corporate level strategy is concerned with the choice of business, direction and scope of the organization as a whole. It addresses the fundamental issue of what businesses the organization should be in and how the overall business portfolio should be managed to achieve growth and stability. Diversification strategy involves entry into new products or businesses that are different from the firm's existing operations. It is adopted to achieve growth, reduce risk arising from dependence on a single business and exploit new opportunities in the environment.

In the given case, Stellar Electronics Ltd., which was earlier operating in consumer appliances, proposes to enter the renewable energy equipment business such as solar panels and batteries by creating a new division. This represents expansion into a new business area beyond its present product line with the objective of long-term growth and risk reduction. Thus, the company is broadening its business portfolio by adding a new business, which is characteristic of diversification at the corporate level. Zeon Beverages, known for its fruit juices, recently acquired a nationwide cold-storage logistics company to control the quality and speed of its product delivery. Earlier, it had set up its own fruit-processing unit to reduce dependence on third-party suppliers. The company believes this strategy strengthens its supply chain and market control. What type of strategic move is Zeon making through these acquisitions? How does this approach differ from horizontal and conglomerate diversification?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Zeon Beverages is pursuing a strategy of vertically integrated diversification, a form of concentric diversification, where the company expands into businesses that are related to its existing operations along the value chain. By setting up its own fruit-processing unit (backward integration) and acquiring a cold-storage logistics company (forward integration), Zeon is strengthening its supply chain, improving quality control and enhancing speed of delivery. This move falls under concentric diversification, where the new businesses are linked to existing ones through process, technology or marketing, providing synergistic benefits. This approach differs from:

1. Horizontal Integrated Diversification – where a firm expands by acquiring similar or complementary businesses operating at the same stage of production. For example, if Zeon had acquired another fruit juice brand, it would be horizontal diversification.

2. Conglomerate Diversification – which involves expansion into unrelated businesses with no connection in terms of product, market, or technology. For instance, if Zeon ventured into unrelated sectors like real estate or electronics, it would be conglomerate diversification. Hence, Zeon's strategy is a vertically integrated concentric diversification, aimed at enhancing operational efficiency and gaining better control over its value chain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The following are the principal points of distinction between concentric diversification and conglomerate diversification:

(i) Concentric diversification occurs when a firm adds related products or markets. On the other hand, conglomerate diversification occurs when a firm diversifies into areas that are unrelated to its current line of business.

(ii) In concentric diversification, the new business is linked to the existing businesses through process, technology or marketing. In conglomerate diversification, no such linkages exist; the new business/product is disjointed from the existing businesses/ products.

(iii) The most common reasons for pursuing concentric diversification are that opportunities in a firm's existing line of business are available. However, common reasons for pursuing a conglomerate growth strategy are that opportunities in a firm's current line of business are limited or opportunities outside are highly lucrative.

CASE SCENARIO

Easy Drinks LLP, a company in the health drink industry, found itself grappling with a severe cash crunch due to high production costs and sluggish sales amid tough competition. Led by KK Batra, the team realized that a significant overhaul of their existi ng processes and business approach was necessary to turn the tide. Taking a bold leap, they took the decision to invest all of their debt in their balance sheet into brand building. Their new strategy comprised of two key elements. First, they sought to position their brand as a leading extreme sports drink, aiming to elevate the customer's experience and perceived value. Second, they opted to outsource their production and distribution to external vendors. This move was driven by the intention to reduce operational costs significantly and channel the savings into strengthening their brand positioning. With these transformative changes in mind, the company reimagined itself as "Purple Tiger." The brand's new identity featured a distinctive logo—a roaring tiger on a bright purple can, setting it apart from its competitors in the market.

To build a brand that resonated with consumers, Easy Drinks LLP heavily invested in extreme sports sponsorships. They supported world record holders' attempts, sponsored skydiving, fishing, deep diving, paragliding, bullfights, hot air balloon races, and various other adventure sports worldwide. The vision was to capture the attention of every individual who identified with the thrill of adventure sports. This approach marked a revolutionary step for the company.

Another aspect that set Purple Tiger apart from its competitors was its packaging. While most other brands offered standard 150 ml fat cans, Purple Tiger introduced a unique 180 ml long slimmer can. This differentiation allowed the company to charge a premium for the perceived "pride" it added to the consumer's experience, a strategy they termed "Pride Premium Pricing."

However, the decision to outsource the entire operations posted its own set of risks, mainly concerning quality control and measurement. Despite this, Easy Drinks LLP carefully selected Thai Beverages, a reputable Thailand-based company, as their strategic partner to support them in this endeavour. To instill confidence and ensure a long-term relationship, Thai Beverages was offered a share in the profits. This move aimed to free up the team's focus from operational and supply chain matters, enabling them to concentrate fully on brand building.

Purple Tiger's transformation exemplifies how a change in strategy can bring about a complete shift in the outlook, vision, and mission of a company. The successful execution of their new approach demonstrates the potential for newer dimensions to emerge in the business landscape.

Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple-Choice Questions.

Write a short note on Merger and Acquisition Strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Merger and acquisition in simple words are defined as a process of combining two or more organizations together. There is a thin line of difference between the two terms but the impact of combination is completely different in both the cases.

Merger is considered to be a process when two or more companies come together to expand their business operations. In such a case the deal gets finalized on friendly terms and both the organizations share profits in the newly created entity. In a merger two organizations combine to increase their strength and financial gains along with breaking the trade barriers.

When one organization takes over the other organization and controls all its business operations, it is known as acquisitions. In this process of acquisition, one financially strong organization overpowers the weaker one. Acquisitions often happen during recession in economy or during declining profit margins. In this process, one that is financially stronger and bigger establishes it power. The combined operations then run under the name of the powerful entity. A deal in case of an acquisition is often done in an unfriendly manner, it is more or less a forced association where the powerful organization either consumes the operation or a company in loss is forced to sell its entity.

Diversification endeavours can be categorized into four broad classifications. State the basis for this classification and name the four categories. How is concentric diversification different from vertically diversification? Explain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Diversification strategy involves expansion into new businesses that are outside the current business and markets of an organisation. Based on the nature and extent of their relationship to existing businesses, diversification can be classified into four b road categories:

(i) Vertically integrated diversification

(ii) Horizontally integrated diversification

(iii) Concentric diversification

(iv) Conglomerate diversification

Concentric diversification takes place when the products are related. The new product is a spin-off from the existing facilities and products/processes. This means that in concentric diversification too, there are benefits of synergy with the current operations. However, concentric diversification differs from vertically integrated diversi fication in the nature of the linkage the new product has with the existing ones.

In vertically integrated diversification, firms opt to engage in businesses that are related to the existing business of the firm. The firm remains vertically within the same process. Sequence moves forward or backward in the chain and enters specific product/process steps with the intention of making them into new businesses for the firm. The new product falls within the firm's current process-product chain. In concentric diversification, there is a departure from this vertical linkage, a new related product is added to the existing business. The new product is only connected in a loop-like manner at one or more points in the firm's existing process/technology/product chain.

Explain the term Merger and Acquisition as a growth strategy. Differentiate between both of them. State the situations in which such strategies are considered by any organization.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Acquisition or merger with an existing concern is an instant means of achieving expansion. It is an attractive and tempting proposition in the sense that it circumvents the time, risks and skills involved in screening internal growth opportunities, seizing them and building up the necessary resource base required to materialise growth.

Apart from the urge to grow, acquisitions and mergers are resorted to for purposes of achieving a measure of synergy between the parent and the acquired enterprises. Synergy may result from such bases as physical facilities, technical and managerial skills, distribution channels, general administration, research and development and so on.

Many organizations in order to achieve quick growth, expand or diversify with the use of mergers and acquisitions strategies. What are the advantages of a strategic alliance?

ICAI'S ANSWER

A strategic alliance is a relationship between two or more businesses that enables each to achieve certain strategic objectives which neither would be able to achieve on its own. The strategic partners maintain their status as independent and separate entities, share the benefits and control over the partnership, and continue to make contributions to the alliance until it is terminated. The advantages of strategic alliance can be broadly categorised as follows:

(a) Organizational: Strategic alliance helps to learn necessary skills and obtain certain capabilities from strategic partners. Strategic partners may also help to enhance productive capacity, provide a distribution system, or extend supply chain.

(b) Economic: There can be reduction in costs and risks by distributing them across the members of the alliance. Greater economies of scale can be obtained in an alliance, as production volume can increase, causing the cost per unit to decline.

(c) Strategic: Rivals can join together to cooperate instead of compete. Strategic alliances may also be useful to create a competitive advantage by the pooling of resources and skills. This may also help with future business opportunities and the development of new products and technologies. Strategic alliances may also be used to get access to new technologies or to pursue joint research and development.

(d) Political: Sometimes strategic alliances are formed with a local foreign business to gain entry into a foreign market either because of local prejudices or legal barriers to entry.

Strategic alliances are formed if they provide an advantage to all the parties in the alliance. Do you agree? Explain in brief the advantages of a strategic alliance.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic alliances are formed if they provide an advantage to all the parties in the alliance. These advantages can be broadly categorised as follows:

(i) Organizational: Strategic alliances may be formed to learn necessary skills and obtain certain capabilities from the strategic partner. Strategic partners may also help to enhance productive capacity, provide a distribution system, or extend supply chain. A strategic partner may provide a good or service that complements each other, thereby creating a synergy. If one partner is relatively new or untried in a certain industry, having a strategic partner who is well-known and respected will help add legitimacy and creditability to the venture.

(ii) Economic: Alliances can reduce costs and risks by distributing them across the members of the alliance. Partners can obtain greater economies of scale in an alliance, as production volume increase, causing the cost per unit to decline. Finally, partners can take advantage of co-specialization, where specializations are bundled together, creating additional value.

(iii) Strategic: Organizations may join to cooperate instead of compete. Alliances may also create vertical integration where partners are part of supply chain. Strategic alliances may also be useful to create a competitive advantage by the pooling of resources and skills. This may also help with future business opportunities and the development of new products and technologies. Strategic alliances may also be used to get access to new technologies or to pursue joint research and development.

(iv) Political: Sometimes there is need to form a strategic alliance with a local foreign business to gain entry into a foreign market either because of local prejudices or legal barriers to entry. Forming strategic alliances with politically-influential partners may also help improve overall influence and position.

Advantages of Strategic Alliance

1. Organisational Advantage: The alliance enables Jeff Inc. to leverage Desi Group's manufacturing capabilities and production facilities, while Desi Group gains access to Jeff Inc.'s technological expertise and global quality standards. This facilitates learning and capability enhancement for both partners.

2. Economic Advantage: By sharing production facilities, investment and operational costs, both companies can reduce costs and business risks. Higher production volumes for exports also help achieve economies of scale, resulting in lower per-unit production cost.

3. Strategic Advantage: The collaboration allows both companies to pool their resources and competencies, thereby strengthening their competitive position in international markets. It also provides opportunities for joint product development and technology advancement.

4. Political Advantage: Collaborating with an established Indian manufacturer enables Jeff Inc. to benefit from local market knowledge, regulatory support and ease of operations, while Desi Group enhances its international presence through association with a reputed global brand.

Thus, the collaboration between Jeff Inc. and Desi Group represents a Strategic Alliance, enabling both organisations to achieve common strategic objectives by combining their complementary strengths while remaining independent entities.

A leading smartphone manufacturer has partnered with a reputed software firm to jointly develop a next-generation AI-enabled operating system. Both companies maintain their independent operations but collaborate closely on product design, development, and marketing. The partnership aims to leverage shared resources, complementary expertise and expanded market access for mutual benefit. Identify and explain the form of cooperative strategy being used in this scenario.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The form of cooperative strategy in this scenario is a Strategic Alliance. A strategic alliance is a relationship between two or more businesses that enables each to achieve certain strategic objectives which neither would be able to achieve on its own. The strategic partners remain independent entities, share the benefits and control of the partnership and contribute resources until the alliance is terminated.

In this case, the smartphone manufacturer brings hardware design expertise, manufacturing capacity and an established distribution network, while the software firm contributes AI capabilities, software development skills and technological innovation. By collaborating on the AI-enabled operating system, both companies benefit from:

- Organizational advantages – Learning new skills, combining complementary strengths and enhancing credibility in the market.
- Economic advantages – Sharing costs and risks of development, achieving economies of scale and improving efficiency.
- Strategic advantages – Pooling resources to accelerate innovation, create a competitive advantage and potentially enter new markets.

Differentiate between Concentric diversification and Conglomerate diversification.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The following are the principal points of distinction between concentric diversification and conglomerate diversification:

(i) Concentric diversification occurs when a firm adds related products or markets. On the other hand, conglomerate diversification occurs when a firm diversifies into areas that are unrelated to its current line of business.

(ii) In concentric diversification, the new business is linked to the existing businesses through process, technology or marketing. In conglomerate diversification, no such linkages exist; the new business/product is disjointed from the existing businesses/ products.

(iii) The most common reasons for pursuing concentric diversification are that opportunities in a firm's existing line of business are available. However, common reasons for pursuing a conglomerate growth strategy are that opportunities in a firm's current line of business are limited or opportunities outside are highly lucrative.

CASE SCENARIO

Founded with a dream to bring the world's finest spices to kitchens worldwide, Rachini Group has evolved into a diversified conglomerate, spanning industries from spices to car dealerships and real estate. This case study delves into the journey of Rachini Group.

Rachini Group's clear objective from its inception was to become a leading player in the spice trade industry. They aimed to source, package, and distribute the highest quality spices to homes and businesses globally. This unwavering focus on quality and customer satisfaction allowed them to establish themselves as a trusted brand, defining their path to success. The company, under the strict stewardship of Mangat Singh, emphasized quality control, adherence to core values, and a disciplined approach to business. While this management style limited creativity within middle management, it ensured consistency and quality throughout the organization, especially in their core spice business.

Recognizing the potential for growth and value addition, Rachini Group expanded by investing in acquiring spice farms and processing facilities, ensuring a robust supply chain. This allowed them to control quality and costs, creating a significant competitive advantage. As a result of their expansion and diversification, Rachini Group began generating positive cash flows. These financial gains provided the necessary resources for further expansion and allowed the company to venture beyond its spice business.

In their quest for expansion, Rachini Group forged strategic partnerships and alliances with influential politicians and royal families in Arabia. These connections provided valuable insights, eased market entry, and facilitated regulatory approvals, giving the company a competitive edge. The group diversified into other sectors like car dealerships and real estate, seeking to tap into lucrative markets and reduce dependency on a single industry.

Despite their success, Rachini Group faced backlash from social groups who believed that the concentration of wealth in the hands of a few was dangerous for society. They were accused of worsening income inequality. This criticism prompted the company to reevaluate its approach and consider the broader impact of its business activities. In response, the family-owned business initiated a philanthropic arm, focusing on improving the living conditions, education, and healthcare in the communities they operated. This philanthropic endeavor aimed to balance their business success with social responsibility, nurturing a more positive image and addressing the criticisms they faced.

Rachini Group continues to thrive with a remarkable compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 12%. Their diversified business portfolio, including car dealerships and real estate, now constitutes 40% of their total group revenue. The company remains committed to its spice trade roots while exploring new opportunities. Their plan to go public in 2026 is a testament to their ambition and determination to remain a key player in the global business landscape.

Rachini Group's remarkable evolution serves as a compelling case study in the world of business, showcasing the power of clear objectives, and adaptability in the face of social challenges. As they move towards their IPO in 2026, they continue to be a fascinating story of business success with a commitment to the greater good.

Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple-Choice Questions.

NovaTech Pvt. Ltd. is a well-established educational technology (EdTech) company in the India. The company has been performing well in the online learning industry. The management of NovaTech Pvt. Ltd. has now decided to expand its business by launching a luxury skincare brand named "GlowNova." Identify and explain the growth strategy adopted by NovaTech Pvt. Ltd.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Currently, NovaTech Pvt. Ltd. operates in the educational technology industry, offering digital learning solutions. However, its management has decided to expand into an entirely different sector by launching GlowNova, a luxury skincare brand. Since there is no connection between their existing EdTech business and the new skincare venture in terms of customer groups, customer needs, or technologies used, NovaTech Pvt. Ltd. has opted for conglomerate diversification.

In conglomerate diversification, a company expands into a completely unrelated industry where its new products or services have no direct link to its existing business. There is no overlap in technology, market, or product functions. This type of diversification helps companies spread risk, enter new markets, and explore new revenue streams.

NovaTech Pvt. Ltd.'s decision to launch a skincare brand while operating in the EdTech sector demonstrates a strategic move toward unrelated diversification, allowing the company to tap into an entirely different consumer market.

'Innovation leads to unnecessary expenses that do not give as many returns.' Do you agree with the statement? Give reasons in support of your answer.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The statement "Innovation leads to unnecessary expenses that do not give as many returns" is often debated, but evidence strongly suggests that innovation is crucial for long-term business growth and success. I disagree with the statement for several reasons:

Innovation offers the following for a business to grow long term:

- Helps to solve complex problems: A business strives to find opportunities in existing problems of society, and it does so through planned innovation in areas of expertise. This guided innovation helps solve complex problems by developing customer centric sustainable solutions.
- Increases productivity: Innovation leads to simplification and in most cases automation of existing tasks. Companies are willing to spend millions on increasing their productivity. Innovation, by automating repetitive tasks and simplifying the long chain of processes, adds to productivity of teams and thereby the organization as a whole.
- Gives competitive advantage: Being ahead of competition is a need and businesses spend majority of their strategic time building solutions to achieve this advantage. The faster a business innovates, the farther it goes from its competitor's reach. Innovative products need less marketing as they aim to provide added satisfaction to consumers, thus creating a competitive advantage. Innovation not only helps retain its existing customers but helps acquire new ones with ease too.

Leatherite Ltd. was started as a leather company to manufacture footwear. Currently, they are in the manufacturing of footwears for males and females. The top management desires to expand the business in leather manufacturing goods. To expand they decided to purchase more machines to manufacture leather bags for males and females. Identify and explain the strategy opted by the top management of Leatherite Ltd.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Leatherite Ltd. is currently manufacturing footwears for males and females and its top management has decided to expand its business by manufacturing leather bags for males and females. Both the products are similar in nature within the same industry. The strategic diversification that the top management of Leatherite Ltd. has opted for is concentric in nature. They were in business manufacturing leather footwear and now they will manufacture leather bags as well. They will be able to use existing infrastructure and distribution channels.

Concentric diversification amounts to related diversification.

In concentric diversification, the new business is linked to the existing businesses through process, technology or marketing. The new product is a spin-off from the existing facilities and products/processes. This means that in concentric diversification too, there are benefits of synergy with the current operations.

Strategic alliances are formed if they provide an advantage to all the parties in the alliance. Do you agree? Explain in brief the advantages of a strategic alliance.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic alliances are formed if they provide an advantage to all the parties in the alliance. These advantages can be broadly categorised as follows:

(i) Organizational: Strategic alliances may be formed to learn necessary skills and obtain certain capabilities from the strategic partner. Strategic partners may also help to enhance productive capacity, provide a distribution system, or extend supply chain. A strategic partner may provide a good or service that complements each other, thereby creating a synergy. If one partner is relatively new or untried in a certain industry, having a strategic partner who is well-known and respected will help add legitimacy and creditability to the venture.

(ii) Economic: Alliances can reduce costs and risks by distributing them across the members of the alliance. Partners can obtain greater economies of scale in an alliance, as production volume increases, causing the cost per unit to decline. Finally, partners can take advantage of co-specialization, where specializations are bundled together, creating additional value.

(iii) Strategic: Organizations may join to cooperate instead of competing. Alliances may also create vertical integration where partners are part of the supply chain. Strategic alliances may also be useful to create a competitive advantage by the pooling of resources and skills. This may also help with future business opportunities and the development of new products and technologies. Strategic alliances may also be used to get access to new technologies or to pursue joint research and development.

(iv) Political: Sometimes there is need to form a strategic alliance with a local foreign business to gain entry into a foreign market either because of local prejudices or legal barriers to entry. Forming strategic alliances with politically influential partners may also help improve overall influence and position.

TechNova, a leading software development firm known for its cutting-edge operating systems, is developing a groundbreaking new platform. ElectroWave, an emerging player in the electronics and hardware industry, specializes in manufacturing advanced devices. TechNova and ElectroWave have decided to join forces to design innovative laptops and smartphones, aiming to tap into new markets and broaden their business horizons. What kind of external growth strategy is being considered by TechNova and ElectroWave?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The collaboration between TechNova, a software development firm, and ElectroWave, an electronics and hardware manufacturing company, represents a co-generic merger. This type of external growth strategy involves the merger of companies from related but non-competing industries, allowing them to leverage complementary strengths and diversify their product offerings.

TechNova specializes in creating cutting-edge software, while ElectroWave focuses on manufacturing advanced electronic devices. By joining forces, they can combine their expertise to design innovative laptops and smartphones, creating products that neither company could have developed as effectively on their own. This strategic partnership allows them to enter new markets, enhance their competitive advantage, and explore synergies between software and hardware.

The co-generic merger provides significant opportunities for both companies to capitalize on shared technologies, streamline their operations, and expand their customer base. It is a strategic move that enables them to diversify while maintaining a strong focus on their core competencies, ultimately helping them to grow and compete more effectively in the global market.

CASE SCENARIO

One Earth Limited (OEL) operates as a diversified conglomerate with involvement in various sectors including FMCG, stationery, apparel, heavy engineering, and cement industries. Benefitting from a substantial free reserve of Rs. 75,000 crores, OEL has established a robust brand reputation, largely attributed to its dominant market positions in multiple sectors.

In the cement industry, OEL has maintained its industry leadership for the past two decades. The cement division's recent performance has been notably strong. A significant development in the industry landscape took place when two competitors, Raksha Products Limited and Strongman Cement Limited – initially ranked third and fourth in market share respectively – merged to form a new entity, Unnati Cement Ltd (UCL). As a result, UCL now secures the second position in terms of market share.

Amidst this backdrop, the Chairman of OEL convened a comprehensive meeting involving the Board, divisional heads, marketing leadership, and the Group CFO. The meeting's objectives encompassed devising concrete strategies for the cement division, exploring avenues for broader corporate expansion, and determining an interim dividend strategy in celebration of OEL's golden jubilee anniversary.

Mr. Hrishikesh Raj, the CEO of the cement division, articulated the industry's lag in modernization when compared to global standards. He highlighted the immense potential within emerging product categories such as high-strength Portland Pozzolana Cement (PPC), ready-mix products, and cement blocks. Anticipating a swift consumer attraction to these innovations, he proposed a modernization initiative demanding an investment of approximately Rs. 5,000 crores. This transformation is predicted to yield a 22% reduction in overhead costs post-modernization, along with a 10% reduction in wastage.

Analyzing the financial landscape of competitors, the CFO presented insights indicating that other players are unlikely to undertake expansion or upgrades for the next 7-8 years. In response, the Board greenlit the proposed modernization effort and earmarked an additional Rs. 1,000 crores to fortify the distribution channels.

Another proposal discussed during the meeting centered on OEL's diversification into the home appliances sector. The Board granted approval for this strategic expansion, allocating Rs. 6,500 crores to facilitate entry into this new market. Additionally, the Board endorsed the distribution of an interim dividend amounting to Rs. 50 per share as part of the celebrations marking OEL's golden jubilee year.

Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple-Choice Questions which are as follows:

CASE SCENARIO

In the wake of increasing incomes among salaried individuals and a surge in economic consumption, Anant Khanna, a 23-year-old graduate from IIT Mumbai, identified a lucrative market opportunity. He launched a digital credit payback platform named Money Mox, targeting the growing second-generation demographic.

Since its inception last year, the company has swiftly garnered a user base of approximately two million active customers. The availability of disruptive technology from earlier FinTech startups facilitated the establishment of the platform. Money Mox's concept is straightforward: create an exclusive community of high-income, high-spending individuals and incentivize their purchases through credit and debit card rewards.

The company recently made headlines, attracting the interest of global investors. Following this, early investor Josh Kattings met with the team and advised them not to merely mimic the approach of Batuya, a key competitor with a distinct business model, but rather to learn, enhance, and refine the process for customers.

Surprisingly, Josh also proposed a collaboration between Money Mox and Batuya for enhanced market penetration. However, Anant and his team hesitated, as they were dealing with their own infrastructure issues and were more inclined towards outperforming the competition rather than forming alliances at this stage.

Last month, the company publicly disclosed its revenue projections, which caught the attention of established players in the banking sector. CBZ Bank, at the forefront of this interest, extended an offer to purchase Money Mox for 50 crores, under a 100% equity arrangement. Anant and his team are yet to respond to this substantial offer from the well-established bank, underscoring how unique ideas are valued in developing economies like India.

The production is to be exported to the company's home market as well as to other European countries.

What is this growth strategy called? Point out the most important advantages both the companies expect from such strategy/collaboration.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Jeff Inc. of USA and Desi group of India opted for strategic alliance as their growth strategy. A strategic alliance is a relationship between two or more businesses that enables each to achieve certain strategic objectives which neither would be able to achieve on its own. Strategic alliances are often formed in the global marketplace between businesses that are based in different regions of the world.

Advantages of Strategic Alliance

Strategic alliance usually is only formed if they provide an advantage to all the parties in the alliance. These advantages can be broadly categorised as follows:

1. Organizational: Strategic alliance helps to learn necessary skills and obtain certain capabilities from strategic partners. Strategic partners may also help to enhance productive capacity, provide a distribution system, or extend supply chain. Having a strategic partner who is well-known and respected also helps add legitimacy and creditability to a new venture.

2. Economic: There can be reduction in costs and risks by distributing them across the members of the alliance. Greater economies of scale can be obtained in an alliance, as production volume can increase, causing the cost per unit to decline. Finally, partners can take advantage of co - specialization, creating additional value, such as when a leading computer manufacturer bundles its desktop with a leading monitor manufacturer's monitor.

3. Strategic: Rivals can join together to cooperate instead of competing with each other. Vertical integration can be created where partners are part of supply chain. Strategic alliances may also be useful to create a competitive advantage by the pooling of resources and skills. This may also help with future business opportunities and the development of new products and te chnologies. Strategic alliances may also be used to get access to new technologies or to pursue joint research and development.

4. Political: Sometimes strategic alliances are formed with a local foreign business to gain entry into a foreign market either because of local prejudices or legal barriers to entry. Forming strategic alliances with politically influential partners may also help improve your own influence and position.

ABC Ltd. intends to grow its business. Its top management argues that its 'Corporate Strategy' will ensure the growth of the firm. Do you agree with the top management's argument? Give reasons.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yes, agreeing with the top management's argument. Corporate strategy is basically the growth design of the firm; it spells out the growth objective-the direction, pace and timing of the firm's growth. It also spells out the strategy for achieving the growth. Corporate strategy ensures the growth of the firm because of the following arguments:

- It ensures the correct alignment of the firm with its environment. It also serves as the design for filling the strategic planning gap.
- It gives importance to combination, sequence, timing, direction and depth of various moves and action initiatives taken by managers to handle environmental uncertainties and complexities.
- It helps build the relevant competitive advantages for the firm. Masterminding and working out the right fit between the firm and its external environment.

- It is to harness the opportunities available in the environment, countering the threats embedded therein.

They decided to start a premium sports drink named JynX for athletes. Identify and explain the growth strategy adopted by Jynklo Ltd.?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Currently Jynklo Ltd. is performing in the children gaming industry. But now its management has decided to expand their business by starting a premium sports drink named JynX for athletes. As there are no linkages in both products with respect to customer groups, customer functions, or the technologies being used, so Jynklo Ltd. have opted Conglomerate diversification.

Jynklo Ltd. diversify in a business that is not related to their existing line of product and can be termed as conglomerate diversification. In conglomerate diversification, the new businesses/ products are disjointed from the existing businesses/products in every way; it is a unrelated diversification. In

Diversification endeavours can be categorized into four broad classifications. State the basis for this classification and name the four categories. How is concentric diversification different from vertically diversification? Explain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Diversification strategy involves expansion into new businesses that are outside the current business and markets of an organisation. Based on the nature and extent of their relationship to existing businesses, diversification can be classified into four broad categories:

(i) Vertically integrated diversification

(ii) Horizontally integrated diversification

(iii) Concentric diversification

(iv) Conglomerate diversification

Concentric diversification takes place when the products are related. The new product is a spin-off from the existing facilities and products/processes. This means that in concentric diversification too, there are benefits of synergy with the current operations. However, concentric diversification differs from vertically integrated diversification in the nature of the linkage the new product has with the existing ones.

In vertically integrated diversification, firms opt to engage in businesses that are related to the existing business of the firm. The firm remains vertically within the same process. Sequence moves forward or backward in the chain and enters specific product/process steps with the intention of making them into new businesses for the firm. The new product falls within the firm's current process-product chain. In concentric diversification, there is a departure from this vertical linkage, a new related product is added to the existing business. The new product is only connected in a loop-like manner at one or more points in the firm's existing process/technology/product chain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

FlyBee is a notebook and diary brand. But to grow further, FlyBee decided to take up competition with Gecko in pens segment and thereby launched, FlyPens. FlyBee that is hitherto not into producing pens starts producing them and other similar products is following concentric diversification which is basically related diversification.

In this form of diversification, the new business is linked to the existing businesses through existing systems such as processes, technology or marketing. The new product is a spin-off from the existing facilities and products/processes. There are benefits of synergy with the current operations. The most common reasons for pursuing a concentric diversification are that opportunities in existing line of business are available.

CASE SCENARIO

In a recent board meeting, the Chairman of Inclusive Heal Pharma Ltd, (IHPL) a major pharmaceutical company in India, proposed reassigning around 100 employees and lay off of another 275. The chairman proposed to cut jobs throughout the country under a res tructure of the pharmaceutical business. Some of the employees who will be taken off from pharmaceutical business will be redeployed on a new project for entry into wellness segment that is increasingly becoming lucrative. The company has been looking for growth opportunities for a couple of years. The proposal came after failed takeover of another company Rosy Cheek Health Ltd. (RCHL), a prominent manufacturer of various nutritional supplements that include proteins, vitamins and minerals. IHPL tried hard to acquire RCHL and raised its bid three times and finally offered Rs 450 crores in form of cash of Rs 250 crores and balance in shares. The offer was found to be unattractive by RCHL.

IHPL wanted to expand and have a separate product line to include he alth and wellness products in its portfolio to create two distinct business groups. With the entry into new segment there will be need to explain the business undertaken by IHPL in a new form as there will be difference with respect to the customer needs and target markets. The Chairman said that the organisational changes underpin pursuit for growth that remains top priority for the organisation.

The Chairman informed the board that the proposed new organisation will result in a reduction in middle management roles by around fifteen per cent and reduction in junior management roles by ten per cent. It is proposed to redesign workflows and processes both within IHPL and its interactions with suppliers, hospitals and other associate organisations. Improvements in organisational reporting structures and use of technology will make many middle level positions redundant and lead to reduction in the jobs. It will not only reduce the salary costs but bring overall efficiencies. New enlarged team can be created later at the time of launch of wellness products.

What are the advantages of a strategic alliance?

ICAI'S ANSWER

A strategic alliance is a relationship between two or more businesses that enables each to achieve certain strategic objectives which neither would be able to achieve on its own. The strategic partners maintain their status as independent and separate entities, share the benefits and control over the partnership, and continue to make contributions to the alliance until it is terminated. The advantages of strategic alliance can be broadly categorised as follows:

(a) Organizational: Strategic alliance helps to learn necessary skills and obtain certain capabilities from strategic partners. Strategic partners may also help to enhance productive capacity, provide a distribution system, or extend supply chain.

(b) Economic: There can be reduction in costs and risks by distributing them across the members of the alliance. Greater economies of scale can be obtained in an alliance, as production volume can increase, causing the cost per unit to decline.

Aero Mind Bridge Technologies Ltd (AMBTL) is a software development company work as a solution provider to airlines industry. The company was established more than a decade ago by Mr. Pranshu Gupta having experience of working in United States of America (USA). His entrepreneurial desires brought him back to India to promote Aero Mind Bridge Technologies Ltd (AMBTL). The company started its operations with a meagre capital of ' 10 lakhs with limited workforce. Currently, it enjoys a valuation of more than ' 50 crores. Almost everybody acknowledged the competency of AMBTL in developing customised software for the airlines industry.

The high growth of the company was mainly on account of the heavy inflows of the funds in the airlines industry from various big business houses that have diversified into airlines industry. Currently, these business houses were in the manufacturing of FMCG, textiles, packaging etc. and having good expertise and uniqueness in these industries.

However, AMBTL saw stagnation in last three years. The order position was shrinking day by day. The margins were also reducing. Last year was particularly bad for the AMBTL and its annual sales reduced by 20 % for the first time since its inception.

Most of the business houses that had entered in the airlines industry had less knowledge and experience in the industry. However, their desire to diversify and seeing new opportunity in the airlines industry prompted them to invest heavily into the industry.

However, things did not turn out to be as expected. The tough competition between several players, reduction in the fare by railways and high prices of aviation fuel created problems for the industry. The sector was not able to generate reasonable profits thus resulting difficulty in maintaining operations. They were in need for hard to come by capital. Lately, the airlines industry is witnessing some consolidation with companies planning for mergers or even contemplating closures.

The general global recession also resulted in the reduction of travel expenditure of corporates resulting in decrease in the order position of AMBTL.

Write short note on expansion through acquisitions and mergers.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Acquisitions and mergers are basically combination strategies. Some organizations prefer to grow through mergers. Merger is considered to be a process when two or more companies come together to expand their business operations. In such a case the deal gets finalized on friendly terms and both the organizations share profits in the newly created entity. In a merger , two organizations combine to increase their strength and financial gains along with breaking the trade barriers.

When one organization takes over the other organization and controls all its business operations, it is known as acquisition. In this process of acquisition, one financially strong organization overpowers the weaker one. Acquisitions often happen during recession in economy or during declining profit margins. In this process, one that is financially stronger and bigger establishes it s power. The combined operations then run under the name of the powerful entity. A deal in case of an acquisition is often done in an unfriendly manner, it is more or less a forced association where the powerful organization either consumes the operation or a company in loss is forced to sell its entity.

Leatherite Ltd., was started as a leather company to manufacture footwear. Currently, they are in the manufacturing of footwears for males and females. The top management desires to expand the business in the leather manufacturing goods. To expand they decided to purchase more machines to manufacture leather bags for males and females.

Identify and explain the strategy opted by the top management of Leatherite Ltd.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Leatherite Ltd. is currently manufacturing footwears for males and females and its top management has decided to expand its business by manufacturing leather bags for males and females. Both the products are similar in nature within the same industry. The strategic diversification that the top management of Leatherite Ltd. has opted is concentric in nature. They were in business of manufacturing leather footwears and now they will manufacture leather bags as well. They will be able to use existing infrastructure and distribution channel. Concentric diversification amounts to related diversification.

In concentric diversification, the new business is linked to the existing businesses through process, technology or marketing. The new product is a spin-off from the existing facilities and products/processes. This means that in concentric diversification too, there are benefits of synergy with the current operations.

A well-established MM Company is manufacturing tubeless tyre as one of its major products for quite some time. The product has reached at the maturity stage of the product life cycle. Company is aware about the competitive scenario and fast change in technology. Cost benefit analysis indicates that it would be better to modernise its plant and machinery so as to improve its efficiency and productivity. The basic idea is to remain competitive in the dynamic and volatile business world and at the same time having an objective to preserve their market share. Suggest the specific corporate strategy to be adopted by the MM Company in the given situation. Also state the reasons why a company should adopt such strategy in general. Justify your opinion about identified strategy in a case of start-up venture.

ICAI'S ANSWER

MM Company should adopt a Stability Strategy. A stability strategy is pursued when a firm continues in the same business and aims to maintain its market position through incremental improvements in efficiency and operations. In the given case, the company's product has reached the maturity stage of the product life cycle, and the company wants to modernise its plant and machinery to improve efficiency and productivity while preserving market share in a dynamic business environment. Reasons for Adopting Stability Strategy

1. A product has reached the maturity stage of the product life cycle.

2. The staff feels comfortable with the status quo as it involves less changes and less risks.

3. It is opted when the environment in which an organisation is operating is relatively stable.

4. It is adopted where expansion may be perceived as threatening.

5. After rapid expansion, a firm may want to stabilise and consolidate itself.

Applicability in Case of Start-up Venture: Stability strategy is generally not suitable for start-ups because startups are in the early stages of ideation and development where speed, agility and expansion are important. Stability strategy is more meaningful for mature businesses operating at full capacity rather than emerging ventures.

What is meant by corporate level strategies? Identify and explain the basic features of corporate level strategies being represented by each of the following decisions:

(i) The company decided to expand its profit-making units of packaged food division into the international market and closing down the loss-making units.

(ii) The company decided to sell-out its commercial real estate division entirely as it is incurring heavy losses due to intense competition.

(iii) The company has decided to maintain the current operations of the home appliances division which is maintaining steady sales and strong brand loyalty with no major investments.

(iv) The company decided to make high investments in a rapidly growing online learning platform division to take greater control over the market.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Corporate level strategies are the strategies formulated at the top management level which define the overall direction and scope of the organization. These strategies deal with decisions relating to stability, expansion, retrenchment and combination of businesses.

(i) Combination Strategy: The company is simultaneously expanding its profitable packaged food business into international markets while closing down loss-making units. Thus, it is adopting a Combination Strategy involving both expansion and retrenchment strategies.

(ii) Retrenchment Strategy: The decision to sell out the commercial real estate division due to heavy losses represents Retrenchment Strategy. Under this strategy, the firm retrenches or drops loss making businesses through sell out or liquidation to improve overall performance.

(iii) Stability Strategy: The decision to continue current operations of the home appliances division with steady sales and strong brand loyalty represents Stability Strategy. Under this strategy, the firm continues with the same business and maintains the existing level of effort without major investments.

(iv) Expansion/Growth Strategy: The decision to make high investments in a rapidly growing online learning platform to gain greater market control represents Expansion/Growth Strategy. This strategy involves substantial investments and business growth to achieve greater market control and competitive advantage.

Next Tech Solutions, an IT services firm, is suffering from declining client retention, rising operational costs, and outdated service offerings. Employee morale is low, and the firm's reputation for innovation has faded. Due to uncompetitive product and services, continuous losses, negative cash flow from business have alarmed investors. The board chooses not to wind up the operations but to rejuvenate the organization through effective leadership. They appointed Mr. Moksha a young and visionary executive to initiate strategic changes. What corporate strategy should Moksha adopt, and what measures should he take to implement this strategy effectively and ensure long-term sustainability?

ICAI'S ANSWER

In the given case, Next Tech Solutions is facing continuous losses, declining client retention, outdated service offerings, low employee morale and negative cash flows. However, since the Board has decided not to wind up the business and has appointed a young and visionary leader, the most appropriate corporate strategy is Turnaround Strategy. A Turnaround Strategy is adopted when an organisation is sick but viable, and management believes that through corrective actions and effective leadership, the firm can regain profitability, competitiveness and long-term sustainability. Stages in the Action Plan for Turnaround Strategy

1. Stage One – Assessment of Current Problems: The first step is to diagnose the root causes of decline such as uncompetitive products, poor cash flow, rising costs and internal inefficiencies, and assess the extent of damage.

2. Stage Two – Situation Analysis and Strategic Planning: The firm should evaluate its chances of survival and develop a strategic plan focusing on improving competitiveness, employee morale and operational efficiency.

3. Stage Three – Implementing an Emergency Action Plan: Immediate steps are taken to stabilise the business, including cost cutting, improving cash flows, raising funds and addressing short-term operational issues.

4. Stage Four – Restructuring the Business: This stage involves restructuring core operations and finances, improving efficiency and repositioning the firm for recovery and growth.

5. Stage Five – Returning to Normal: The organisation gradually moves towards profitability by introducing new services, improving customer relationships, strengthening innovation and building long-term sustainability.

Thus, by adopting a Turnaround Strategy and systematically implementing these stages, Mr. Moksha can rejuvenate Next Tech Solutions and restore stakeholder confidence.

You are the CFO of a multinational corporation that has been facing declining profitability in one of its business units for the past three years. It has been struggling with negative cash flows and intense competition. Significant investment would be needed for technological upgrades. You are not interested in investing in restructuring and revitalizing. A more promising investment opportunity is available elsewhere. As CFO, what step would you take in response to this situation? How would you justify your decision?

ICAI'S ANSWER

As CFO, the appropriate step would be to adopt a Divestment Strategy for the business unit.

Divestment strategy involves the sale or liquidation of a portion of business, a major division, profit centre or SBU. It is usually adopted when a turnaround has been attempted but has proved unsuccessful or when it is obvious that divestment is the only answer. The decision is further justified because:

- Persistent negative cash flows from this unit are creating financial strain.
- Intensity of competition makes survival difficult.
- Technological up gradation is not feasible for the company at this stage.
- A better alternative investment opportunity is available elsewhere making it preferable to release resources from the loss-making unit.

Thus, adopting Divestment Strategy will allow the company to stop financial losses, free resources and reallocate them to more promising opportunities, thereby ensuring long-term value creation.

Symergy Ltd. is manufacturing a product since year 2010. The company was doing well till year 2022. After that its market share started declining. Accumulated losses started mounting and in turn carried a persistent negative impact on its cash flow. As a result morale of the employees was not up to mark. The Board of Directors (BoD) of the company thought it proper to continue in business by placing emphasis on improvement in internal efficiency. In view of the same, the BoD is evolving a workable action plan with intent to ensure a radical change in direction in strategy which includes revamping in top management. Which retrenchment strategy company should adopt in the given situation? Also state the stages in the action plan for the strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In the given situation, the suitable retrenchment strategy for Symergy Ltd. is the Turnaround Strategy. This strategy is designed to reverse the company's decline and restore it to profitability, particularly when the company is facing challenges such as declining market share, negative cash flows, and low employee morale. Stages in the Action Plan for Turnaround Strategy:

- Stage One - Assessment of Current Problems: The first step is to assess and diagnose the root causes of the company's decline, such as uncompetitive products, poor cash flow, or internal inefficiencies. This stage involves determining the extent of the damage caused by these problems.

- Stage Two - Analyze the Situation and Develop a Strategic Plan: Evaluate the chances of the company's survival and develop a strategic plan that outlines the corrective actions to be taken. This includes identifying appropriate strategies to address internal inefficiencies, improve competitiveness, and enhance employee morale.
- Stage Three - Implementing an Emergency Action Plan: If the situation is critical, an immediate action plan must be executed to stabilize the business. This may involve cutting costs, ensuring positive cash flow, raising necessary funds, and addressing short-term operational issues.
- Stage Four - Restructuring the Business: Focus on restructuring the company's core business operations, especially if they have been significantly affected. This stage involves efforts to improve efficiency, restructure finances, and position the company for long-term recovery and growth.
- Stage Five - Returning to Normal: In the final stage, the company should begin showing signs of profitability and improving financial performance. Strategic efforts such as introducing new products, improving customer service, and forming alliances should be emphasized to restore market share and build long-term sustainability. By following these stages, Symergy Ltd. can develop a comprehensive turnaround plan to regain its financial stability, improve operational efficiency, and rebuild its competitive position in the market.

Start-ups rarely aim for stability strategy. While agreeing with the statement or otherwise, support your point of view by briefly stating as to when the stability strategy is meaningful. State the major reasons for considering stability strategy as one of the corporate strategies by a company.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Agree with the given statement. Start-ups rarely aim for a stability strategy because they are in the early stages of ideation and development, where speed and agility are critical. Stability strategy is more relevant for businesses that have reached maturity, where maintaining current operations and market share becomes a priority. Start-ups, however, focus on rapid growth and market penetration, and stability is usually considered when a business has expanded to full capacity. A stability strategy is meaningful in the following scenarios:

- When a firm continues serving the same markets with the same products and services.

- Firms whose products are in the maturity stage of the product life cycle or who have a substantial market share may opt for stability to retain their position.
- Stability helps consolidate gains after rapid expansion, optimize returns on committed resources, and enhance functional efficiencies.

Major reasons for choosing a stability strategy include:

- Maturity of products in the life cycle.
- Comfort of staff with fewer changes and risks.
- Stable external environment.
- A need to consolidate after rapid growth or expansion.
- Where it is not advisable to expand as it may be perceived as threatening.

A company started its operation in 2015 with Product Alpha. In early 2021, with intent to have its better presence in the market, the company diversifies by acquiring a company with product Beta. After sometime, it was observed that product Beta is not faring well. Aggressive competition was therein market for the product. It was also revealed that though customers are not price sensitive, but product was not keeping pace with the fast changing unique features as expected by its customers.

Company has tried one of the retrenchment strategies by putting efforts to improve its internal efficiency, but could not get desired results. In the situation, company is of a considered view to remain and grow in product alpha and to decouple with product Beta from its portfolio.

As a strategist, suggest the retrenchment strategy to be adopted by the company. Also delineate reasons why a company should adopt such strategy?

ICAI'S ANSWER

As per the facts of the case, company had tried to improve its internal efficiency. In other words, had tried turnaround strategy but could not get the desired results.

Company does not want to go for complete close down of business. Rather it wants to continue and grow in its original business i.e. product Alpha.

As a strategist, it is advisable that the company should adopt divestment strategy. In the given situation where the business of product Beta is not faring well and became unprofitable and unviable due to aggressive competition in the market, the best option for the company is to divest the product Beta which is loss-making business.

Retrenchment may be done either internally or externally. Turnaround strategy is adopted in case of internal retrenchment where emphasis is laid on improving internal efficiency of the organization, while divestment strategy is adopted when a business turns unprofitable and unviable due to some external factors. In view of the above, the company should go for divestment strategy.

A divestment strategy may be adopted due to various reasons:

1. A business that had been acquired proves to be a mismatch and cannot be integrated within the company.

2. Persistent negative cash flows from a particular business create financial problems for the whole company, creating the need for divestment of that business.

3. Severity of competition and the inability of a firm to cope with it may cause it to divest.

4. It is not possible for the business to do Technological up-gradation that is required for the business to survive, a preferable option would be to divest.

5. A better alternative may be available for investment, causing a firm to divest a part of its unprofitable business.

It involves organisations to pursue established and tested objectives, continue on the chosen path, maintain operational efficiency and so on. A stability strategy is pursued when a firm continues to serve in the same or similar markets and deals in same products and services. In stability strategy, few functional changes are made in the products or markets, however, it is not a 'do nothing' strategy. This strategy is typical for mature business organizations. Some small organizations also frequently use stability as a strategic focus to maintain comfortable market or profit position.

Major reasons for Stability strategy are:

- A product has reached the maturity stage of the product life cycle.
- The staff feels comfortable with the status quo as it involves less changes and less risks.
- It is opted when the environment in which an organisation is operating is relatively stable.
- Where it is not advisable to expand as it may be perceived as threatening.

- After rapid expansion, a firm might want to stabilize and consolidate itself.

"There are certain conditions or indicators which point out that a turnaround is needed if the company has to survive". Discuss.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Rising competition, business cycles and economic volatility have created a climate where no business can take viability for granted. Turnaround strategy is a highly targeted effort to return an organization to profitability and increase positive cash flows to a sufficient level. Organizations that have faced a significant crisis that has negatively affected operations requires turnaround strategy.

Turnaround strategy is used when both threats and weaknesses adversely affect the health of an organization so much that its basic survival is a question. When organization is facing both internal and external pressures making things difficult then it has to find something which is entirely new, innovative and different. Being organization's first objective is to survive and then grow in the market; turnaround strategy is used when organization's survival is under threat. Once turnaround is successful the organization may turn to focus on growth.

Conditions for turnaround strategies: When firms are losing their grips over market, profits due to several internal and external factors, and if they have to survive under the competitive environment, they have to identify danger signals as early as possible and undertake rectification steps immediately. These are certain conditions or indicators which point out that a turnaround is needed if the company has to survive. These danger signals are:

- Persistent negative cash flow from business.
- Uncompetitive products or services.
- Declining market share.
- Deterioration in physical facilities.
- Over-staffing, high turnover of employees, and low morale.
- Mismanagement.

X Pvt. Ltd. had recently ventured into the business of co-working spaces when the global pandemic struck.. This has resulted in the business line becoming unprofitable and unviable, and a failure of the existing strategy. However, the other businesses of X Pvt. Ltd. are relatively less affected by the pandemic as compared to the recent co-working spaces. Suggest a strategy for X Pvt. Ltd. with reasons to justify your answer.

ICAI'S ANSWER

It is advisable that divestment strategy should be adopted by X Pvt. Ltd.

In the given situation where the business of co-working spaces became unprofitable and unviable due to Global pandemic, the best option for the company is to divest the loss making business.

Retrenchment may be done either internally or externally. Turnaround strategy is adopted in case of internal retrenchment where emphasis is laid on improving internal efficiency of the organization, while divestment strategy is adopted when a business turns unprofitable and unviable due to some external factors. In view of the above, the company should go for divestment strategy.

Further, divestment helps address issues like:

1. Persistent cash flows from loss making segment could affect other profit-making segments, which is the case in the given scenario.

2. Inability to cope from the losses, which again is uncertain due to pandemic.

3. Better investment opportunity, which could be the case if X Pvt. Ltd. can invest the money it generates from divestment.

Briefly describe the meaning of divestment and liquidation strategy and establish difference between the two.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Divestment strategy involves the sale or liquidation of a portion of business, or a major division, profit centre or SBU. Divestment is usually a part of rehabilitation or restructuring plan and is adopted when a turnaround has been attempted but has proved to be unsuccessful.

Liquidation strategy is a retrenchment strategy considered the most extreme and unattractive strategy, which involves closing down a firm and selling its assets.

Difference between Divestment strategy and Liquidation strategy:

Basis of Difference

Meaning

Divestment Strategy

Divestment strategy involves sale or liquidation of a portion of business.

Liquidation Strategy

Liquidation strategy involves closing down a firm and selling its business.

Basis of Difference

Policy option

Divestment Strategy

Divestment is usually a part of rehabilitation or restructuring plan and is adopted when a turnaround has been attempted but has proved to be unsuccessful. Option of a turnaround may even be ignored if it is obvious that divestment is the only answer.

Liquidation Strategy

Liquidation becomes only option in case of severe and critical conditions where either turnaround or divestment are not seen as solution or have been attempted but failed.

Basis of Difference

Purpose

Divestment Strategy

Efforts are made for survival of the organization.

Liquidation Strategy

Liquidation as a form of retrenchment strategy is unattractive and considered as the last resort.

Basis of Difference

Consequences

Divestment Strategy

Survival of organization helps in retaining personnel, at least to some extent.

Liquidation Strategy

There is loss of employment and opportunities with stigma of failure.

The physical facilities are deteriorating and employees have low morale. At the board meeting, the board members decided that they should continue the organization and adopt such measures that the company functions properly. The board has decided to hire young executive Shayamli for improving the functions of the organization. What corporate strategy should Shayamli adopt for this company and what steps to be taken to implement the corporate strategy adopted by Shayamli?

ICAI'S ANSWER

XYZ Company is facing continuous losses, decline in sales and product market share, persistent negative cash flow, uncompetitive products, declining market share, deterioration in physical facilities, low morale of employees. In such a scenario, Shayamli may choose turnaround strategy as this strategy attempts to reverse the process of decline and bring improvement in organizational health. This is also important as Board has decided to continue the company and adopt measures for its proper functioning.

For success, Shayamli needs to focus on the short and long-term financing needs as well as on strategic issues. During the turnaround, the "product mix" may be changed, requiring the organization to do some repositioning. A workable action plan for turnaround would involve:

XYZ Ltd. is a multi-product company, suffering from continuous losses since last few years and has accumulated heavy losses which have eroded its net worth.

What strategic option is available to the management of this sick company? Advise with reasons.

ICAI'S ANSWER

XYZ Ltd. is a sick company with accumulated losses that have eroded its net worth. The multi-product company may analyse its various products to take decisions on the viability of each. The company may consider retrenchment strategy. Retrenchment becomes necessary for coping with hostile and adverse situations in the environment and when any other strategy is likely to be suicidal.

Retrenchment strategy is adopted because of continuous losses and unviability and stability can be ensured by reallocation of resources from unprofitable to profitable businesses.

Retrenchment strategy is followed when an organization substantially reduces the scope of its activity. This is done through an attempt to find out the problem areas and diagnose the causes of the problems. Next, steps are taken to solve the problems. These steps result in different kinds of retrenchment strategies as follows:

Turnaround strategy: If the organization chooses to transform itself into a leaner structure and focuses on ways and means to reverse the process of decline, it adopts a turnaround strategy. It may try to reduce costs, eliminate unprofitable outputs, generate revenue, improve coordination, better control, and so on.

Divestment Strategy: Divestment strategy involves the sale or liquidation of a portion of business, or a major division, profit centre or SBU. Divestment is usually a part of rehabilitation or restructuring plan and is adopted when a turnaround has been attempted but has proved to be unsuccessful.

Liquidation Strategy: In the retrenchment strategy, the most extreme and unattractive is liquidation strategy. It involves closing down a firm and selling its assets. It is considered as the last resort because it leads to serious consequences such as loss of employment for workers and other employees, termination of opportunities where a firm could pursue any future activities, and the stigma of failure.

The management of multiproduct sick company manufacturing various items need to understand pros and cons of each strategic option. The decision will depend upon the specific circumstances of each product and management goals of the company.

ReInnovate Electronics Ltd., a company engaged in the manufacture of consumer electronic appliances since 2010, had been performing well until 2022. However, thereafter its market share began to decline steadily. The company started incurring accumulated losses which adversely affected its cash flow position. Consequently, employee morale also deteriorated. The Board of Directors (BoD) of the company decided to continue its operations by focusing on improving internal efficiency. To achieve this, the BoD is formulating a practical action plan aimed at bringing about a radical change in strategic direction including a revamp of the top management team. Which strategy should the company adopt in this situation? Also, outline the stages involved in the action plan for implementing this strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In the given situation, the suitable retrenchment strategy for ReInnovate Electronics Ltd. is the Turnaround Strategy. This strategy is designed to reverse the company's decline and restore it to profitability, particularly when the company is facing challenges such as declining market share, negative cash flows, and low employee morale.

Stages in the Action Plan for Turnaround Strategy:

- Stage One - Assessment of Current Problems: The first step is to assess and diagnose the root causes of the company's decline, such as uncompetitive products, poor cash flow or internal inefficiencies. This stage involves determining the extent of the damage caused by these problems.
- Stage Two - Analyze the Situation and Develop a Strategic Plan: Evaluate the chances of the company's survival and develop a strategic plan that outlines the corrective actions to be taken. This includes identifying appropriate strategies to address internal inefficiencies, improving competitiveness and enhancing employee morale.
- Stage Three - Implementing an Emergency Action Plan: If the situation is critical, an immediate action plan must be implemented to stabilize the business. This may involve cutting costs, ensuring positive cash flow, raising necessary funds and addressing short-term operational issues.
- Stage Four - Restructuring the Business: Focus on restructuring the company's core business operations, especially if they have been significantly affected. This stage involves efforts to improve efficiency, restructure finances and position the company for long-term recovery and growth.

- Stage Five - Returning to Normal: In the final stage, the company should begin showing signs of profitability and improving financial performance. Strategic efforts such as introducing new products, improving customer service and forming alliances should be emphasized to restore market share and build long-term sustainability. By following these stages, ReInnovate Electronics Ltd. can develop a comprehensive turnaround plan to regain financial stability, improve operational efficiency and rebuild its competitive position in the market.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In today's competitive and volatile business environment, no organization can assume sustained viability. A turnaround strategy is a focused effort aimed at restoring an organization's profitability and ensuring survival when both internal weaknesses and external threats endanger its existence.

Turnaround becomes necessary when a company faces a significant crisis that severely affects its operations and performance. It is typically adopted when survival is the immediate goal, before growth can be pursued. There are several indicators or conditions that signal the need for a turnaround strategy:

- Persistent negative cash flows from operations
- Uncompetitive products or services
- Declining market share
- Deterioration in physical facilities
- Over-staffing, high employee turnover, and low morale
- Mismanagement Early identification of these danger signals and immediate corrective action is essential for ensuring the company's survival and eventual recovery.

Pizza Galleria was India's first pizza delivery chain enjoying monopoly for several years. However, after the entry of Modino and Uncle Jack it is struggling to compete. Both Modino and Uncle Jack have opened several eateries and priced the product aggressively. In the last four years the chain has suffered significant losses. The chain wishes to know whether they should go for a turnaround strategy. List out components of action plan for turnaround strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Pizza Chain may choose to have turnaround strategy if there are:

- Persistent negative cash flow from business.

- Uncompetitive products or services.
- Declining market share.
- Deterioration in physical facilities.
- Over-staffing, high turnover of employees, and low morale.
- Mismanagement. For turnaround strategies to be successful, it is imperative to focus on the short and long-term financing needs as well as on strategic issues. The chain may attempt to leverage the potential Indian market by engaging a new logistics partner. It may bring innovation in food items, as well as quality and improvements in the overall dine-in and delivery experience. During the turnaround, the "product mix" may be changed, requiring the organization to do some repositioning.

A workable action plan for turnaround would involve: Stage One – Assessment of current problems: The first step is to assess the current problems and get to the root causes and the extent of damage the problem has caused. Stage Two – Analyze the situation and develop a strategic plan: Before making any major changes; determine the chances of the business's survival. Identify appropriate strategies and develop a preliminary action plan. Stage Three – Implementing an emergency action plan: If the organization is in a critical stage, an appropriate action plan must be developed to stop the bleeding and enable the organization to survive. A positive operating cash flow must be established as quickly as possible and enough funds to implement the turnaround strategies must be raised. Stage Four – Restructuring the business: The financial state of the organization's core business is particularly important. If the core business is irreparably damaged, then the outlook for the entire organization may be bleak. Efforts to be made to position the organization for rapid improvement. Stage Five – Returning to normal: In the final stage of turnaround strategy process, the organization should begin to show signs of profitability, return on investments and enhancing economic value-added. Emphasis is placed on a number of strategic efforts such as carefully adding new products and improving customer service, creating alliances with other organizations, increasing the market share, etc.

Justify the statement "Stability strategy is opposite of Expansion strategy".

ICAI'S ANSWER

Stability Strategies, as the name suggests, are intended to safeguard the existing interests and strengths of business. It involves organisations pursuing established and tested objectives, continue on the chosen path, maintaining operational efficiency and so on. A stability strategy is pursued when a firm continues to serve in the same or similar markets and deals in the same products and services. In stability strategy, few functional changes are made in the products or markets, however, it is not a 'do nothing' strategy. This strategy is typical for mature business organizations. Some small organizations also frequently use stability as a strategic focus to maintain comfortable market or profit position.

On the other hand, expansion strategy is an aggressive strategy as it involves redefining the business by adding the scope of business substantially, increasing the efforts of the current business. In this sense, it becomes the opposite to stability strategy. Expansion is a promising and popular strategy that tends to be equated with dynamism, vigor, promise and success. Expansion also includes diversifying, acquiring and merging businesses. This strategy may take the enterprise along relatively unknown and risky paths, full of promises and pitfalls.

One of the important goals of a business enterprise is stability - to safeguard its existing interests and strengths, to pursue well established and tested objectives, to continue in the chosen business path, to maintain operational efficiency on a sustain ed basis, to consolidate the commanding position already reached, and to optimise returns on the resources committed in the business. A stability strategy is pursued by a firm when:

- It continues to serve in the same or similar markets and deals in same or similar products and services.
- The strategic decisions focus on incremental improvement of functional performance. Major reasons for stability strategy are as follows:
- A product has reached the maturity stage of the product life cycle.
- It is less risky as it involves less changes and the staff feel comfortable with things as they are.
- The environment faced is relatively stable.
- Expansion may be perceived as being threatening.
- Consolidation is sought through stabilizing after a period of rapid expansion.

CASE SCENARIO

In July 2014, Fresh Air Hospitality and Resorts launched a major project called 'Fit in Future' after being in losses for three consecutive years. According to analysis by senior management many customers were not returning and repeat sales of rooms were low. The costs were also high with a lot of wastage in kitchen. If the losses were allowed to continue the survival of the organisation was doubtful.

'Fit in Future' project was organisation-wide, employee driven initiative that focused in reversing the trend and find ways to find out how the organisation can survive. Focus was to provide high-quality services while finding new ways of delivery to improve customer satisfaction and reduce costs. The idea was to create a conducive organisational culture and work climate. At the time, Shailja Mehta joined the organisation as the new Resident Manager. She brought with her considerable experience in improving the quality of services in restaurants, banquet sale and room reservations. She immediately set about spending two months talking to staff on the front line followed by a series of meetings, where discussions were held about bringing a guest-first approach. Some of the staff members expressed frustration that their suggestions on improving services were often not heard making them demotivated. The new manager noted their concerns. Over time, she offered enthusiasm and inspired staff to exert them for the good of the organization.

As an outcome of the project, it was decided that both in internal as well as external interactions, customers will be called guests and treated accordingly. There was general agreement that reducing wastages and improving the quality of services shall be chief priority from top to bottom. It was decided that the team leaders shall always work together with front-line staff for speedy decisions. Focussed training programmes were organised to train the front-line staff to remain well-groomed and courteous to guests at all times. Accordingly, a new system was put in place from January 2015. As a result of the efforts, the satisfaction level of guests improved, and their loyalty reflected in form of increase in repeat sales over next two years.

After two years, while the organisation was able to make some profits, they were still low considering the capital employed. Since its inception in 1910, the family business of Indian ethnic wear firm Shanti Prasad & Sons, run by Mr. Mukesh Gupta and his three sons has seen major transformation in supply chain, product development and management. The inheritance over generations hasn't been easy, as it was subject to family brawls, but the company stood strong to its core principles.

Since 2011, major foreign brands have been eyeing the segment with world class designers opening up their boutiques in plush areas around the country. JJM, a French design house, recently branded its Indian wear with leading film personalities, to attract masses. This damaged existing supply chains, attracted new age buyers and has been profitable from the very beginning.

The three sons reach out to you for management consultancy, to help them meet the competition, if not beat it. You study the business inside out and come up with three options.

First, to exit Indian Market, and start exporting their designs to European markets. This would ensure bigger revenue and forex gains, and also the distribution chains were well built there.

Second, to become the major manufacturer of JMM and other big foreign brands. This would ensure they stay relevant in the market as all the promotional spend would be taken care of by JMM and the volumes they would rope in would actually mean growth for Shanti Prasad & Sons too.

Third, to sell their designs to the global brands with patent protection. This would ensure a perpetual flow of revenue and a new market altogether, with global business exposure. The family after considering your proposals, knowing the intricacies of business, and its environment, decided to blend options two and three. The success or failure could only be gauged in three quarters, when they sit down for an internal post implementation review.

Racers Ltd. manufactures bicycles. Until recently it has adopted a differentiation strategy, offering high quality bicycles which Racers Ltd. sells at a high profit margin.

In recent years, Racers Ltd. has entered a period of decline due to the market becoming flooded with cheaper, high quality bicycles from abroad, where labour costs are lower. Racers Ltd. has therefore decided to adjust its strategy and adopt a focus approach, targeting its bicycles towards professional athletes. This will allow Racers Ltd. to continue earning high margins, though the size of its potential market will likely fall. Identify and explain the need of adopting this strategy by Racers Ltd. to manage decline?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Racers Ltd. has adopted Turnaround strategy. This involves Racers Ltd. repositioning itself in the market in an attempt to once again gain competitive advantage.

Turnaround is needed when an enterprise's performance deteriorates to a point that it needs a radical change of direction in strategy, and possibly in structure and culture as well. It is a highly targeted effort to return an organization to profitability and increase positive cash flows to a sufficient level. It is used when both threats and weaknesses adversely affect the health of an organization so much that its basic survival is difficult. The overall goal of turnaround strategy is to return an underperforming or distressed company to normalcy in terms of acceptable levels of profitability, solvency, liquidity and cash flow. To achieve its objectives, turnaround strategy must reverse causes of distress, resolve the financial crisis, achieve a rapid improvement in financial performance, regain stakeholder support, and overcome internal constraints and unfavourable industry characteristics.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Stability Strategies, as name suggests, are intended to safeguard the existing interests and strengths of business. It involves organisations to pursue established and tested objectives, continue on the chosen path, maintain operational efficiency and so o n. A stability strategy is pursued when a firm continues to serve in the same or similar markets and deals in same products and services. ICAI'S ANSWER

Divestment strategy involves the sale or liquidation of a portion of business, or a major division, profit centre or SBU. For a multiple product company, divestment could be a part of rehabilitating or restructuring plan called turnaround.

- A divestment strategy may be adopted due to various reasons:
- When a turnaround has been attempted but has proved to be unsuccessful.
- A business that had been acquired proves to be a mismatch and cannot be integrated within the company.
- Persistent negative cash flows from a particular business create financial problems for the whole company.
- Severity of competition and the inability of a firm to cope with it.
- Technological upgradation is required if the business is to survive but where it is not possible for the firm to invest in it.
- A better alternative may be available for investment.

Pizza Galleria was India's first pizza delivery chain enjoying monopoly for several years. However, after entry of Modino and Uncle Jack it is struggling to compete. Both Modino and Uncle Jack have opened several eateries and priced the product aggressively. In last four years the chain has suffered significant losses. The chain wishes to know whether they should go for turnaround strategy. List out components of action plan for turnaround strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Pizza Chain may choose to have turnaround strategy if there are:

- Persistent negative cash flow from business.
- Uncompetitive products or services.
- Declining market share.
- Deterioration in physical facilities.
- Over-staffing, high turnover of employees, and low morale.
- Mismanagement.

For turnaround strategies to be successful, it is imperative to focus on the short and long-term financing needs as well as on strategic issues. The chain may attempt to leverage the potential Indian market by engaging a new logistics partner. It may bring innovation in food items, as well as quality and improvements in the overall dine-in and delivery experience. During the turnaround, the "product mix" may be changed, requiring the organization to do some repositioning.

A workable action plan for turnaround would involve:

Stage One – Assessment of current problems: The first step is to assess the current problems and get to the root causes and the extent of damage the problem has caused. Stage Two – Analyze the situation and develop a strategic plan: Before making any major changes; determine the chances of the business's survival. Identify appropriate strategies and develop a preliminary action plan.

Stage Three – Implementing an emergency action plan: If the organization is in a critical stage, an appropriate action plan must be developed to stop the bleeding and enable the organization to survive. A positive operating cash flow must be established as quickly as possible and enough funds to implement the turnaround strategies must be raised. Stage Four – Restructuring the business: The financial state of the organization's core business is particularly important. If the core business is irreparably damaged, then the outlook for the entire organization may be bleak. Efforts to be made to position the organization for rapid improvement.

Stage Five – Returning to normal: In the final stage of turnaround strategy process, the organization should begin to show signs of profitability, return on investments and enhancing economic value-added. Emphasis is placed on a number of strategic efforts such as carefully adding new products and improving customer service, creating alliances with other organizations, increasing the market share, etc.

What is stability strategy? What are the reasons to pursue stability strategy?

ICAI'S ANSWER

One of the important goals of a business enterprise is stability - to safeguard its existing interests and strengths, to pursue well established and tested objectives, to continue in the chosen business path, to maintain operational efficiency on a sustained basis, to consolidate the commanding position already reached, and to optimise returns on the resources committed in the business. A stability strategy is pursued by a firm when:

- It continues to serve in the same or similar markets and deals in same or similar products and services.

- The strategic decisions focus on incremental improvement of functional performance. Major reasons for stability strategy are as follows:
- A product has reached the maturity stage of the product life cycle.
- It is less risky as it involves less changes and the staff feels comfortable with things as they are.
- The environment faced is relatively stable.
- Expansion may be perceived as being threatening.
- Consolidation is sought through stabilizing after a period of rapid expansion.

The company is facing cash crunch and has not been able to pay the salaries to its employees in the current month.

Suggest a grand strategy that can be opted by Soft Cloth Ltd.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Soft Cloth Ltd. is facing internal as well as external challenges. The external environment is in economic recession and the organization is facing cash crunch. The company needs to work on retrenchment / turnaround strategy. The strategy is suitable in case of issues such as:

- Persistent negative cash flow.
- Uncompetitive products or services
- Declining market share
- Deterioration in physical facilities
- Overstaffing, high turnover of employees, and low morale
- Mismanagement

The company may consider to substantially reduce the scope of its activity. This is done through an attempt to find out the problem areas and diagnose the causes of the problems. Next, steps are taken to solve the problems.

These steps result in different kinds of retrenchment strategies. If the organization chooses to focus on ways and means to reverse the process of decline, it adopts at turnaround strategy. If it cuts off the loss-making units, divisions, or SBUs, curtails its product line, or reduces the functions performed, it adopts a divestment strategy. If none of these actions work, then it may choose to abandon the activities totally, resulting in a liquidation strategy.

"There are certain conditions or indicators which point out that a turnaround is needed if the company has to survive". Discuss.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Rising competition, business cycles and economic volatility have created a climate where no business can take viability for granted. Turnaround strategy is a highly targeted effort to return an organization to profitability and increase positive cash flow to a sufficient level. Organizations that have faced a significant crisis that has negatively affected operations require turnaround strategy.

Turnaround strategy is used when both threats and weaknesses adversely affect the health of an organization so much that its basic survival is a question. When organization is facing both internal and external pressures making things difficult, then it has to find something which is entirely new, innovative and different. Being organization's first objective is to survive and then grow in the market; turnaround strategy is used when organization's survival is under threat. Once turnaround is successful the organization may focus on growth.

Conditions for turnaround strategies: When firms are losing their grips over market, profits are due to several internal and external factors, and if they have to survive in the competitive environment, they have to identify danger signals as early as possible and undertake rectification steps immediately. These are certain conditions or indicators which point out that a turnaround is needed if the company has to survive. These danger signals are:

- Persistent negative cash flow from business.
- Uncompetitive products or services.
- Declining market share.
- Deterioration in physical facilities.
- Over-staffing, high turnover of employees, and low morale.
- Mismanagement.

ZephyrFit Pvt. Ltd., a startup founded by three young business graduates, launched a fitness app offering diverse wellness content, including regional formats like Kerala Ayurveda, Punjabi workouts and local diet plans. Initially popular, the company later discovered that certain regional segments incurred high costs but had low user engagement. To improve profitability, the leadership sold the rights to this underperforming content and halted further development in these areas. Instead, they focused on widely accessed and cost-effective offerings. Identify and explain the type of corporate strategy adopted by the leadership of ZephyrFit Pvt. Ltd. in this situation.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The corporate strategy adopted by ZephyrFit Pvt. Ltd. is a Divestment Strategy, which involves the sale or liquidation of a portion of business, or a major division, profit centre or strategic business unit (SBU). In this case, the company observed that certain regional wellness content, such as Kerala Ayurveda and Punjabi workouts, involved high costs and received low user engagement, making them financially unviable. As part of its restructuring plan, ZephyrFit decided to sell the rights to this content and halt further development in those areas.

A divestment strategy may be adopted when a business faces persistent negative cash flows, severity of competition, or when there is a better alternative for investment. These conditions are clearly evident in the case, as the company shifted focus to more popular and cost-effective wellness content.

The characteristics of divestment strategy also highlight that such a move should be seen as an integral part of corporate strategy and not with stigma, especially when the goal is to restore overall business viability. Thus, the decision by ZephyrFit aligns with the principles and rationale of a divestment strategy.

Redefinition of business is involved in both "Expansion" and "Retrenchment" strategy, however, method involved in their execution is completely different. Explain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Expansion strategy is implemented by redefining the business by adding to the scope of business substantially increasing the efforts of the current business. On the other hand, Retrenchment strategy involves redefinition of business by divesting a major product line or market.

Expansion is a promising and popular strategy that tends to be equated with dynamism, vigour, promise and success. Retrenchment or retreat becomes necessary or expedient for coping with particularly hostile and adverse situations in the environment and when any other strategy is likely to be suicidal.

Expansion may take the enterprise along relatively unknown and risky paths, full of promises and pitfalls. Retrenchment involves regrouping and recouping of the resources.

ICAI'S ANSWER

XYZ Ltd. is a sick company with accumulated losses that have eroded its net worth. The multi-product company may analyse its various products to take decisions on the viability of each. The company may consider a retrenchment strategy. Retrenchment becomes necessary for coping with hostile and adverse situations in the environment and when any other strategy is likely to be suicidal.

Retrenchment strategy is adopted because of continuous losses and unviability and stability can be ensured by reallocation of resources from unprofitable to profitable businesses.

Retrenchment strategy is followed when an organization substantially reduces the scope of its activity. This is done through an attempt to find out the problem areas and diagnose the causes of the pr oblems. Next, steps are taken to solve the problems. These steps result in different kinds of retrenchment strategies as follows:

Turnaround strategy: If the organization chooses to transform itself into a leaner structure and focuses on ways and means to reverse the process of decline, it adopts a turnaround strategy. It may try to reduce costs, eliminate unprofitable outputs, generate revenue, improve coordination, better control, and so on.

Divestment Strategy: Divestment strategy involves the sale or liquidation of a portion of business, or a major division, profit centre or SBU. Divestment is usually a part of a rehabilitation or restructuring plan and is adopted when a turnaround has been attempted but has proved to be unsuccessful.

Liquidation Strategy: In the retrenchment strategy, the most extreme and unattractive is liquidation strategy. It involves closing down a firm and selling its assets. It is considered as the last resort because it leads to serious consequences such as loss of employment for workers and other employees, termination of opportunities where a firm could pursue any future activities, and the stigma of failure.

The management of multiproduct sick company manufacturing various items need to understand pros and cons of each strategic option. The decision will depend upon the specific circumstances of each product and the management goals of the company.

Differentiate between divestment and liquidation strategy.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Divestment Strategy	Liquidation Strategy
Divestment strategy involves the sale or liquidation of a portion of business, or a major division, profit center or SBU.	It involves closing down a firm and selling its assets.
Divestment is usually a part of rehabilitation or restructuring plan and is adopted when a turnaround has been attempted but has proved to be unsuccessful. Option of a turnaround may even be ignored if it is obvious that divestment is the only answer.	Liquidation becomes only option in case of severe and critical conditions where either turnaround and divestment are not seen as solution or have been attempted but failed.
Efforts are made for the survival of organization.	Liquidation as a form of retrenchment strategy is considered as the most extreme and unattractive.
Survival of organization helps in retaining personnel, at least to some extent.	There is loss of employment with stigma of failure.

Explain the 'product market growth matrix' as propagated by Igor Ansoff as a device for identifying growth opportunities for the future.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The Ansoff's Product Market Growth Matrix, developed by Igor Ansoff, is a strategic tool that helps businesses identify growth opportunities by analyzing the interplay between products and markets. It offers four distinct strategies based on whether the products and markets are existing or new. These strategies are:

1. Market Penetration: Focuses on selling existing products in existing markets. This involves increasing market share by enhancing sales through advertising, promotions, competitive pricing, or encouraging higher usage among current customers.

2. Market Development: Entails selling existing products in new markets. This could involve exploring new geographical regions, utilizing alternative distribution channels, or creating new market segments.

3. Product Development: Involves introducing new or modified products into existing markets. This strategy often requires innovation and developing products that meet current market needs.

4. Diversification: Refers to marketing new products in new markets. It is a high-risk strategy as the business ventures into unfamiliar products and markets.

As market dynamics evolve, companies may transition between these strategies to adapt and sustain growth. The matrix provides a structured framework for businesses to align their growth strategies with their capabilities and market conditions.

675 RTP Sep 2026 Case scenario · Q1(i) to Q1(v)

CASE SCENARIO

Green Harvest Organics (GHO), a mid-sized agricultural company based in California, specializes in producing organic fruit and vegetables for local markets. The company's mission is to promote sustainable farming while delivering fresh, organic produce to its customers. While GHO has been profitable, they aim to expand their market presence and strengthen their competitive position in the organic food industry. To align its internal structure with its growth goals, GHO's leadership applied the McKinsey 7S Model. They identified gaps in their shared values and organizational vision, which previously focused solely on local markets & competition. Their structure and systems are also being upgraded to support larger-scale operations, while staff are undergoing training to embrace a customer-centric approach. All seven elements of the McKinsey 7S Model were aligned to support organizational growth. To expand its market share, GHO introduced loyalty programmes to encourage repeat purchases among existing customers and launched promotional campaigns to attract consumers who previously purchased conventional produce. These initiatives aim to strengthen customer retention, attract more buyers within existing markets, and enhance GHO's competitive position without expanding into new markets or spending money on introducing new products. The company’s growth strategy also involves establishing a chain of branded farm-to-table cafes. GHO plans to connect directly with consumers and increase its control over the distribution process. This move will allow GHO to capture additional value while strengthening its brand image. As part of their marketing efforts, GHO created subscription boxes and guided its efforts towards educating customers about off-season produce. GHO ensured consistent demand throughout the year. This strategy also aligns with their sustainability goals by reducing food waste. To remain cost-competitive while maintaining high quality, GHO balanced premium-quality organic produce with efficient production methods, ensuring their products remain affordable for middle-income households. Advanced agricultural technology, like precision irrigation and eco-friendly pest control, has been critical in managing the costs and creating value-based offerings. Now, GHO faces crucial decisions about how to scale operations while staying true to its core values of sustainability and quality. Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple Choice Questions.

Q1(i)

Green Harvest Organics adopted a market penetration strategy by introducing loyalty programmes and promotional campaigns within its existing markets. What is the primary objective of this strategy?

- A Introducing new products into existing markets
- B Increasing market share by selling existing products in existing markets

- D Diversifying into unrelated businesses

Q1(ii)

Green Harvest Organics plans to establish branded farm-to-table cafés to directly serve consumers. Which growth strategy is being adopted?

- A Backward Integration
- B Horizontal Integration
- C Vertical Forward Integration
- D Market Development

Green Harvest Organics combines premium-quality organic produce with efficient production methods to offer affordable prices. Which competitive strategy does this represent?

- A Cost Leadership Strategy
- B Differentiation Strategy
- C Best-Cost Provider Strategy

D Focus Strategy

Q1(iv)

Which of the following strategic initiatives best demonstrates alignment between GHO's mission of promoting sustainable farming and its long-term vision of expanding its market presence?

A Launching branded farm-to-table cafés while continuing sustainable farming practices.

B Increasing promotional discounts without improving operational capabilities.

C Diversifying into unrelated businesses to maximise short-term profits.

D Outsourcing production to suppliers with lower environmental standards.

Q1(v)

How does the application of the McKinsey 7S Model help Green Harvest Organics achieve its expansion objectives?

The ADL matrix has derived its name from Arthur D. Little which is a portfolio analysis method based on product life cycle. The approach forms a two-dimensional matrix based on stage of industry maturity and the firm's competitive position, environmental assessment and business strength assessment. The role of ADL matrix is to assess the competitive position of a firm based on an assessment of the following criteria:

- Dominant: This is a comparatively rare position and in many cases is attributable either to a monopoly or a strong and protected technological leadership.
- Strong: By virtue of this position, the firm has a considerable degree of freedom over its choice of strategies and is often able to act without its market position being unduly threatened by its competitors.
- Favourable: This position, which generally comes about when the industry is fragmented and no one competitor stand out clearly, results in the market leaders a reasonable degree of freedom.
- Tenable: Although the firms within this category are able to perform satisfactorily and can justify staying in the industry, they are generally vulnerable in the face of increased competition from stronger and more proactive companies in the market.
- Weak: The performance of firms in this category is generally unsatisfactory although the opportunities for improvement do exist.

Ansoff's Product Market Growth Matrix, developed by Igor Ansoff, is a strategic tool that helps businesses identify growth opportunities by analyzing the interplay between products and markets.

GreenHarvest Foods, a well-established organic food company in the domestic market, is planning to expand globally. As part of its international strategy, the company is introducing region-specific organic products by adapting ingredients, flavours and packaging to suit local consumer preferences in different countries. Through this approach, GreenHarvest Foods aims to cater to diverse markets and strengthen its global footprint. Which expansion strategy from Ansoff's Product-Market Growth Matrix best aligns with GreenHarvest Foods' approach?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The strategy adopted by GreenHarvest Foods is Diversification. Diversification refers to a growth strategy where a company introduces new products in new markets. In the given case, GreenHarvest Foods is entering international markets (new markets) and simultaneously offering region-specific organic products (new products) tailored to local tastes and preferences.

This indicates that the company is not only expanding geographically but also modifying and innovating its product offerings to suit different customer segments across countries.

Diversification is considered the most risky strategy in Ansoff's Product-Market Growth Matrix as it involves operating in unfamiliar markets and dealing with new customer preferences, regulatory environments, and competitive dynamics. However, it also offers high growth potential by creating new revenue streams and reducing dependence on existing markets. Thus, GreenHarvest Foods' approach clearly reflects a diversification strategy.

The ADL matrix has derived its name from Arthur D. Little which is a portfolio analysis method based on product life cycle. The approach forms a two-dimensional matrix based on stage of industry maturity and the firm's competitive position, environmental assessment and business strength assessment. The role of ADL matrix is to assess the competitive position of a firm based on an assessment of the following criteria:

- Dominant: This is a comparatively rare position and in many cases is attributable either to a monopoly or a strong and protected technological leadership.
- Strong: By virtue of this position, the firm has a considerable degree of freedom over its choice of strategies and is often able to act without its market position being unduly threatened by its competitors.
- Favourable: This position, which generally comes about when the industry is fragmented and no one competitor stands out clearly, results in the market leaders having a reasonable degree of freedom.
- Tenable: Although the firms within this category are able to perform satisfactorily and can justify staying in the industry, they are generally vulnerable in the face of increased competition from stronger and more proactive companies in the market.

- Weak: The performance of firms in this category is generally unsatisfactory although the opportunities for improvement do exist.

Sky chemical industry intends to grow its business. Advise the company on the available options using Ansoff's product market growth matrix.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Ansoff's product market growth matrix (proposed by Igor Ansoff) is a useful tool that helps businesses decide their product and market growth strategy. With the use of this matrix, a business can get a fair idea about how its growth depends upon its markets in new or existing products in both new and existing markets.

The Ansoff's product market growth matrix is as follows:

Ansoff's Product Market Growth Matrix

Sky Chemical Industry can adopt market penetration, product development, market development or diversification simultaneously for its different products.

Market penetration refers to a growth strategy where the business focuses on selling existing products into existing markets. It is achieved by making more sales for present customers without changing products in any major way.

Market development refers to a growth strategy where the business seeks to sell its existing products into new markets. It is a strategy for company growth by identifying and developing new markets for the existing products of the company.

Product development refers to a growth strategy where business aims to introduce new products into existing markets. It is a strategy for company growth by offering modified or new products to current markets.

Diversification refers to a growth strategy where a business markets new products in new markets. It is a strategy by starting up or acquiring businesses outside the company's current products and markets.

As market conditions change overtime, a company may shift product-market growth strategies. For example, when its present market is fully saturated a company may have no choice other than to pursue new market.

ABC Fashion, a prominent brand in the domestic market, is now venturing into the international arena. As part of its global expansion strategy, the company is introducing a variety of products tailored to meet the unique tastes and preferences of customers in different regions. By customizing its offerings for each market, ABC Fashion aims to capture a broader audience and establish a strong international presence. Which expansion strategy from Ansoff's Product-Market Growth Matrix best aligns with ABC Fashion's approach?

ICAI'S ANSWER

ABC Fashion's expansion into international markets, offering different products tailored to the unique preferences of various customer segments, aligns with the diversification strategy in Ansoff's Product-Market Growth Matrix. This strategy involves introducing new products to new markets, which represents the highest level of risk and reward in the matrix.

By entering international markets, ABC Fashion is stepping into unfamiliar territories where it must navigate different cultural preferences, market dynamics, and consumer behaviours. The decision to offer a variety of products that cater to the specific needs and tastes of each region demonstrates the company's commitment to localizing its offerings, which is a hallmark of diversification.

This strategy is particularly beneficial for companies like ABC Fashion that seek to maximize their growth potential by not only expanding their geographical footprint but also by innovating and adapting their product lines. It allows the company to tap into new revenue streams and diversify its business risk by not relying solely on its domestic market. However, it also requires significant market research, investment, and adaptation to different regulatory environments.

In summary, ABC Fashion's approach reflects a strategic diversification, enabling the brand to establish a strong international presence while meeting the diverse needs of global customers.

FreshDelight, renowned for its organic fruit juices, aims to expand its market presence by identifying emerging markets in countries where organic products are gaining popularity. To achieve this, FreshDelight launches targeted marketing campaigns and partners with local distributors to introduce its juices to these new regions. This strategy involves adapting product packaging and marketing messages to align with local preferences and regulations. By entering these new markets, FreshDelight hopes to increase its customer base and drive sales growth. What strategy is FreshDelight using to expand its market presence?

ICAI'S ANSWER

FreshDelight is employing a market development strategy to expand its market presence. This approach involves introducing their existing organic fruit juices to new markets, specifically targeting countries where the demand for organic products is on the rise. To achieve this, FreshDelight is launching targeted marketing campaigns and partnering with local distributors to effectively introduce their products to these new regions. Additionally, they are adapting their product packaging and marketing messages to align with local preferences and regulations, ensuring their

Organic Beverages has been manufacturing various soft drinks for over a decade. It has developed a sugar free beverage to cater to the needs of specific customers by spending heavily on research and development for this product. In addition, a lot of money was spent on marketing (branded as 'Say no to Sugar') and in obtaining licence for it. In a span of five months, company has gained a major share in the market for this new product and it is growing rapidly. Profitability of this product is also better. In order to take the advantage of best opportunity for expansion, it has to make heavy investment to maintain their position in current and new market. Classify 'Say no to Sugar' product in the most related category in the two dimensional growth share matrix as per Boston Consulting Group. Explain the strategies which can be pursued post identification and classification of products in such matrix. Also state the limitations of this technique as one of the strategic options.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The 'Say No to Sugar' product by Organic Beverages can be classified as a Star in the BCG Growth-Share Matrix. This classification is due to the product's rapid market growth and the company's strong market share achieved within a short span of five months. Additionally, the product requires heavy investment to maintain its market position and expand further, which aligns with the characteristics of a Star. Strategies Post-Identification: After identifying the 'Say No to Sugar' product as a Star, the following strategies can be pursued:

1. Build Strategy: Increase market share through sustained investments in marketing, distribution, and product development. This ensures the product remains competitive and capitalizes on its growth potential.

2. Hold Strategy: Focus on maintaining the current market share and profitability by optimizing resources and sustaining brand reputation.

3. Harvest Strategy: This strategy is not suitable for Stars as it prioritizes short-term cash flow over long-term growth, which contradicts the objectives for a Star.

4. Divest Strategy: Selling or liquidating the product is unsuitable here, as Stars represent the best opportunities for expansion.

Limitations of BCG Matrix:

1. Complexity and Cost: The matrix can be difficult, time-consuming, and costly to implement.

2. Subjectivity: Defining SBUs and measuring market share or growth can be challenging and subjective.

3. Focus on Present: It emphasizes current business scenarios but provides limited guidance for future strategic planning.

4. Overemphasis on Growth: This may lead to unwise investments in high-growth markets or premature divestment of established products.

Thus, while the BCG matrix provides a simplified framework for portfolio analysis, it should be used alongside other strategic tools for balanced decision-making.

EcoBuild Materials Ltd. manufactures specialised construction materials. One of its business divisions has been evaluated using the GE Stop-Light Matrix. The analysis indicates that the division possesses medium business strength but operates in an industry with low market attractiveness. The management is reviewing the future course of action for this division. Identify the colour zone in which this business falls under the GE Stop-Light Matrix. What strategic action should the company adopt for this division? Give reasons for your answer.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The business division falls in the Yellow Zone (Selective Growth/Earnings Zone) of the GE Stop-Light Matrix. In the GE Stop-Light Matrix, a business with medium business strength operating in a low market attractiveness industry is placed in the Yellow Zone. Businesses in this zone require selective investment and careful evaluation rather than aggressive expansion. The appropriate strategic action is to selectively invest only if the division has the potential to improve its competitive position or generate satisfactory returns. If the prospects for improvement are limited and the business is unlikely to create long-term value, the company should harvest the business by maximising short-term cash flows or divest it to redeploy resources to more attractive business units. Thus, the division belongs to the Yellow Zone, where the strategy is selective investment, with harvesting or divestment considered if future growth prospects remain weak.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In the BCG growth-share matrix portfolio of investments are represented in two-dimensional space. The vertical axis represents market growth rate, and the horizontal axis represents relative market share. The strategic implications for various business types under BCG in the corporate portfolio are: Stars are products or businesses that are growing rapidly and are the best opportunity for expansion. Cash Cows are low-growth, high market share businesses or products. They generate cash and have low costs. They are established, successful, and need less investment to maintain their market share. A strategic alternative advocated for cash cows is Harvest. Question Marks are low market share businesses in high-growth markets. A strategic option for them is Hold for which they need heavy investments. Question marks if left unattended are capable of becoming cash traps. Dogs are low-growth, low-share businesses and products. The relevant strategy is Divest. Dogs may generate InnovaTech, a technology company with a range of business units, is assessing its investment opportunities. To allocate resources effectively, InnovaTech uses a matrix that evaluates each business unit based on two key factors: industry attractiveness and business unit strength. For example, the AI solutions division, positioned in a highly attractive industry with a strong competitive edge, receives a "go ahead" for further investment. In contrast, its legacy software division, operating in a less attractive industry with a weaker position, receives a "be careful" rating, suggesting limited investment. Identify and explain which analytical tool InnovaTech is using for this evaluation.

ICAI'S ANSWER

InnovaTech is using the GE Matrix, a strategic tool designed to assess the resource allocation needs of different business units based on two factors: industry attractiveness and business unit strength. This matrix is a nine-cell grid that helps companies prioritize investments by categorizing units into "grow," "hold," or "harvest" zones, depending on their positions within the matrix. For InnovaTech, the AI solutions division, which operates in a highly attractive industry with a strong competitive position, falls into the “grow” category, meriting further investment. Meanwhile, the legacy software division operates in a less attractive industry with weaker positioning, likely placing it in the “harvest” or “hold” category, where investments are minimized. The GE Matrix enables companies like InnovaTech to systematically evaluate each business unit’s potential, optimize resource allocation, and focus on divisions that align with long-term growth and profitability goals.

XYZ Corporation is a multinational conglomerate operating in various industries. They have a diverse portfolio of businesses, including a leading consumer electronics division, a growing e-commerce platform, a mature industrial machinery division, and a newly established software development unit. Which division of XYZ Corporation would most likely be classified as a "Star" in the BCG Growth-Share Matrix?

ICAI’S ANSWER

In the BCG Growth-Share Matrix, divisions or business units are classified into four categories: Stars, Cash Cows, Question Marks, and Dogs. These classifications are based on a combination of market share and market growth rate. A "Star" in the BCG Matrix represents a business unit with a high market share in a high-growth market. In the scenario, the newly established software development unit would be classified as a "Star." The software development unit is described as "newly established," suggesting that it is operating in a high-growth market. Additionally, the potential for high market share can be inferred if the unit is strategically positioned to become a leader in the software development industry. Stars typically require significant investment to fuel their growth, but they have the potential to become future Cash Cows as the market matures. Therefore, the software development unit's high growth potential and the opportunity to capture a substantial market share align with the characteristics of a BCG Matrix "Star."

ABC Corporation is a conglomerate with a diverse portfolio of businesses. One of its businesses is a well-established division in a mature and stable market. The division has maintained a high market share over the years but is experiencing slow growth due to market saturation. The management team is contemplating the best course of action for this division. How should ABC Corporation approach this division according to the BCG growth-share matrix, and what would be the rationale behind it?

ICAI'S ANSWER

According to the BCG growth-share matrix, the division in a mature and stable market falls into the "Cash Cows" category. "Cash Cows" are low-growth, high market share businesses that generate cash with low costs. The recommended approach for ABC Corporation would be to adopt the "Hold" strategy. This means the company should preserve the market share of the division and continue generating cash with low costs. Since the market is mature and growth opportunities are limited, the division's focus should be on maintaining profitability and using the generated cash to support other high-potential businesses within the conglomerate. By holding onto the "Cash Cow" division, ABC can leverage its stability and cash flow to invest strategically in other areas of the business for future growth and innovation.

CASE SCENARIO

InnovateCo, a $4 billion multinational company headquartered in London, operates as a diversified conglomerate, with its primary business segments in consumer electronics, home appliances, and electric vehicles (EVs). Known for its relentless focus on cost efficiency and innovation, InnovateCo faces a unique challenge: balancing its portfolio of business units while optimizing its internal processes to enhance profitability.

At the core of InnovateCo's strategy is its reliance on the BCG Matrix to classify its business units. The consumer electronics division, with a market share of 25% in a growing industry, is classified as a "Star." On the other hand, its home appliances unit—a mature market segment with steady cash flow but low growth potential—is considered a "Cash Cow," generating $500 million annually in profits. However, InnovateCo's leadership recognizes contradictions when using the ADL Matrix alongside the BCG Matrix. For example, while the EV division is seen as a "Question Mark" under BCG (due to low current market share), it is labeled as "Dominant" under ADL due to its strong industry position and technological leadership. This mismatch has led the management to reconsider resource allocation decisions.

Public perception of InnovateCo's brand plays a crucial role in its success. Using Mendelow's Matrix, the company has identified media outlets and advocacy groups as high-power, high-interest stakeholders, prompting the development of a robust PR strategy. For example, InnovateCo recently launched a sustainability report that highlights its commitment to reducing its carbon footprint by 40% by 2030, earning positive coverage in influential publications.

Internally, InnovateCo has adopted a lean functional structure to improve communication and decision-making. With this approach, cross-departmental coordination between R&D, marketing, and supply chain teams has accelerated product development cycles by 20%. The lean structure also reduces bureaucracy, ensuring quicker responses to market changes.

In terms of competitive positioning, InnovateCo follows a cost leadership strategy with a twist. Leveraging its significant bargaining power with suppliers, the company achieves economies of scale while maintaining high-quality standards. For example, by negotiating bulk raw material purchases, InnovateCo cut production costs for its EV batteries by 15%, allowing it to offer competitive pricing without sacrificing profitability.

Lastly, InnovateCo has fully embraced e-commerce as its primary distribution channel. Its online platform generated $1.2 billion in revenue last year, driven by AI-powered recommendations and a seamless user experience. This channel not only reduces intermediary costs but also provides InnovateCo with direct access to valuable consumer data, enhancing its ability to personalize offerings.

With a focus on streamlining operations, leveraging digital platforms, and refining its strategic frameworks, InnovateCo aims to increase profitability by 12% annually. However, challenges like reconciling strategic contradictions and Organic Beverages has been manufacturing various soft drinks for over a decade. It has developed a sugar free beverage to cater to the needs of specific customers by spending heavily on research and development for this product. In addition, a lot of money was spent on marketing (branded as 'Say no to Sugar') and on obtaining licence for it. In a span of five months, company has gained a major share of the market for this new product, and it is growing rapidly. Profitability of this product is also better. In order to take advantage of best opportunity for expansion, it has to make heavy investment to maintain its position in current and new market.

Classify 'Say no to Sugar' product in the most related category in the two-dimensional growth share matrix as per Boston Consulting Group. Explain the strategies which can be pursued post identification and classification of products in such matrix. Also state the limitations of this technique as one of the strategic options.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The 'Say No to Sugar' product by Organic Beverages can be classified as a Star in the BCG Growth-Share Matrix. This classification is due to the product's rapid market growth and the company's strong market share achieved within a short span of five months. Additionally, the product requires heavy investment to maintain its market position and expand further, which aligns with the characteristics of a Star.

Strategies Post-Identification: After identifying the 'Say No to Sugar' product as a Star, the following strategies can be pursued:

1. Build Strategy: Increase market share through sustained investments in marketing, distribution, and product development. This ensures the product remains competitive and capitalizes on its growth potential.

2. Hold Strategy: Focus on maintaining the current market share and profitability by optimizing resources and sustaining brand reputation.

3. Harvest Strategy: This strategy is not suitable for Stars as it prioritizes short-term cash flow over long-term growth, which contradicts the objectives for a Star.

4. Divest Strategy: Selling or liquidating the product is unsuitable here, as Stars represent the best opportunities for expansion.

Limitations of BCG Matrix:

1. Complexity and Cost: The matrix can be difficult, time-consuming, and costly to implement.

2. Subjectivity: Defining SBUs and measuring market share or growth can be challenging and subjective.

3. Focus on Present: It emphasizes current business scenarios but provides limited guidance for future strategic planning.

4. Overemphasis on Growth: This may lead to unwise investments in high-growth markets or premature divestment of established products.

Thus, while the BCG matrix provides a simplified framework for portfolio analysis, it should be used alongside other strategic tools for balanced decision-making.

CASE SCENARIO

Trepsico Trito Company is one of the most famous brands in food and beverages industry in the world. It has seventeen food and beverage brands worth more than 100 crores. Trepsico Trito, Crisppy Chips (subsidiary), Tasty Chips (acquisition), Tangy (joint venture), Twisters (acquisition), and Threshold drink are just some of the household names that Trepsico Trito Company manages.

Trepsico Trito's mission is to provide consumers around the world with delicious, affordable, convenient and complementary foods and beverages from wholesome breakfasts to healthy and fun daytime snacks and beverages to evening treats. Convenient F&B defines Trepsico Trito's business. Trepsico Trito's vision is articulated as achieving business and financial success while leaving a positive imprint on society – delivering what it calls Performance with Purpose. For example, Trepsico Trito India's Agri program presently benefits over 24,000 farmers across 14 states through various Agri and sourcing initiatives. All the potato used in Crisppy Chips and Tasty Chips is grown in India and sourced from Indian farmers. Through its 360-degree farmer connect initiatives for potato cultivation, Trepsico Trito provides training and seed support, advanced plant protection programs, and assured buy-back with reasonable returns. Besides backward integration with farmers it has invested in cold storages along its supply chain. Since 2009 it has been Water Positive by conserving, utilising and managing this important resource in a sustainable manner.

The company is geographically diverse too. Trepsico Trito operates all around the world-only 50 per cent of its sales come from the United States and Canada.

Given this breadth of business and market scope, Trepsico Trito faces a variety of strategic scenarios: capitalizing on scale advantage in its core brand where it is a global leader; building businesses in fast-developing and unpredictable markets, categories, and products more so on account of shifts in consumer behaviour such as a greater focus on healthy living away from its “star” carbonated beverages and “cash cow” fried snacks businesses; the need for greater experimentation and innovation, for example in new flavours of chips to create and capitalize on newer sources of growth.

It is not inconceivable that Trepsico Trito’s different businesses at different times go through different stages of strategy thus necessitating a portfolio approach to strategy formulation with reference to market /business growth and market share such as BCG Matrix. While it competes fiercely with Chilled drink in different countries, it proactively fosters strategic partnerships with quick service restaurants and multiplex players.

Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple Choice Questions which are as follows:

Which of the following statements are 'correct' and which are 'incorrect'? Give reasons, in brief, for your answer:

(i) "B" in BCG Matrix stands for balance.

(ii) A core competence is a unique strength of an organization which may not be shared by others.

ICAI'S ANSWER

(i) Incorrect: The acronym BCG stands for Boston Consulting Group, an organization that developed a matrix to portray an organizational corporate portfolio of investment. This matrix depicts growth of business and the business share enjoyed by an organization. The matri x is also known for its cow and dog metaphors and is popularly used for resource allocation in a diversified company.

(ii) Correct: A core competence is a unique strength of an organization which may not be shared by others. If business is organized on the basis of core competence, it is likely to generate competitive advantage. A core competence provides potential access to a wide variety of markets. Core competencies should be such that it is difficult for competitors to imitate them.

"Strategic uncertainty refers to the unpredictability of future events and circumstances that can impact an organization's strategy and goals." In the light of this statement, discuss how an organization can deal with or manage such uncertainty.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic uncertainty refers to the unpredictability of future events and circumstances that may affect an organization's strategy and goals. It may arise due to changes in market conditions, technology, competition, regulations and other external environmental factors. An organization can deal with strategic uncertainty in the following ways:

1. Flexibility: Organizations should build flexibility into their strategies so that they can quickly adapt to environmental changes and respond effectively to uncertainties.

2. Diversification: Diversifying product portfolio, markets and customer base helps reduce dependence on a single business area and minimizes the impact of uncertainty.

3. Monitoring and Scenario Planning: Organizations should continuously monitor key indicators of change and undertake scenario planning to understand how different future situations may affect strategies and business operations.

4. Building Resilience: Firms should strengthen operational processes, improve financial flexibility and enhance risk management capabilities to withstand uncertain situations effectively.

5. Collaboration and Partnerships: Strategic alliances and collaborations with suppliers, customers and other organizations help in sharing resources, reducing risk and accessing new markets and technologies.

Thus, organizations can manage strategic uncertainty through flexibility, diversification, resilience, monitoring and collaboration to remain competitive and sustainable in a dynamic environment.

Explain how organizations can effectively manage strategic uncertainties in a rapidly changing business environment.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In managing strategic uncertainties in a rapidly changing business environment, organizations need to adopt proactive strategies to navigate unpredictability effectively. Here are several key approaches: Flexibility: Organizations should build flexibility into their strategies to enable quick adaptation to change in the environment. Diversification: Diversifying the organization's product portfolio, markets, and customer base can help reduce the impact of strategic uncertainty.

Monitoring and Scenario Planning: Regularly monitoring key indicators of change and conducting scenario planning exercises can help organizations anticipate and prepare for different future scenarios. Building Resilience: Investing in building internal resilience is essential for weathering uncertainty. This includes strengthening operational processes, increasing financial flexibility, and improving risk management capabilities. Collaboration and Partnerships: Collaborating with other organizations, suppliers, customers, and partners can provide access to additional resources, expertise, and market opportunities. Strategic partnerships enable organizations to pool resources, share risk, and leverage each other's strengths to navigate uncertainty more effectively.

Strategic planning is an important constituent of strategic management. In the light of the same explain the meaning of strategic planning. Also outline the characteristics of strategic planning.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yes, strategic planning is an important constituent of strategic management. It is a process of determining organizational strategy. It gives directions to the organization and involves making decisions and allocating resources to pursue the strategy. It is the formal blueprint of future course of an organization.

Strategic plans are made by the senior management for the entire organization after taking into account the organization strength and weaknesses in the light of opportunities and threats in the external environment. They involve acquisition and allocation of resources for the attainment of organizational objectives.

Strategic planning deals with one or more of three key questions:

- What are we doing?
- For whom do we do it?
- How to improve and excel?

Following are the characteristics of strategic planning:

- Strategic planning shapes the organisation and its resources.
- Strategic planning assesses the impact of environmental variables.
- Strategic planning takes a holistic view of the organisation.
- Strategic planning develops overall objectives and strategies.
- Strategic planning is concerned with the long-term success of the organisation.
- Strategic planning is a senior management responsibility.

XYZ Ltd. is an automobile company that offers diversified products for all customer segments. Due to COVID-19, the changes took place in the economy forced the company to change its strategy. Being the CEO of the company, what stages will you follow for developing and executing the new strategy?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Today, India has become the outsourcing hub for many of the global automobile manufacturers. The auto industry comprises of four segments which are passenger vehicles, commercial vehicles, three wheelers and two wheelers. XYZ Ltd. is an automobile company that offers diversified products for all customer segments. The company has already in existence, so it has its own vision, mission and a strategy to execute for achieving its vision. While developing and executing the strategy, XYZ Ltd. might have followed the five-stage managerial process as given below:

1. Developing a strategic vision.
2. Environmental and organisational analysis.
3. Formulation of strategy.
4. Implementing and executing the strategy.
5. Strategic evaluation and control.

But due to COVID-19, the automobile industry has faced the lockdown situation. Changes in the economy forced the XYZ Ltd. to change its existing strategy and prepare the new strategy. The changes in the environmental forces due to COVID-19 requires XYZ Ltd. to make modifications in their existing strategies and bring out new strategies. For initiating strategic change, three steps can be followed by the CEO of the company which are as under:

(i) Recognize the need for change: This is the first step to diagnose facets of the corporate culture that are strategy supportive or not. This has already identified by the XYZ Ltd.

(ii) Create a shared vision to manage change: Objectives and vision of both individuals and organization should coincide. The CEO of XYZ Ltd. need to constantly and consistently communicate the vision not only to inform but also to overcome resistance.

(iii) Institutionalize the change: Creating and sustaining a different attitude towards change is essential to ensure that the XYZ Ltd. does not slip back into old ways of thinking or doing things. All these changes should be set up as a practice to be followed by the company and be able to transfer from one level to another as a well settled practice.

738 EXAM Old P7 May 2022 Q9(a) 5 marks old scheme

"Strategy formulation and strategy implementation are intertwined and linked with each other." Elucidate this statement with suitable arguments.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The strategy formulation and strategy implementation are intertwined and linked with each other. Two types of linkages exist between these two phases of strategic management. The forward linkages deal with the impact of strategy formulation on strategy implementation while the backward linkages are concerned with the impact in the opposite direction.

Forward Linkages: The different elements in strategy formulation starting with objective setting through environmental and organizational appraisal, strategic alternatives and choice to the strategic plan determine the course that an organization adopts for itself. With the formulation of new strategies, or reformulation of existing strategies, many changes have to be affected within the organization. For instance, the organizational structure has to undergo a change in the light of the requirements of the modified or new strategy. The style of leadership has to be adapted to the needs of the modified or new strategies. In this way, the formulation of strategies has forward linkages with their implementation.

Backward Linkages: Just as implementation is determined by the formulation of strategies, the formulation process is also affected by factors related with implementation. While dealing with strategic choice, remember that past strategic actions also determine the choice of strategy. Organizations tend to adopt those strategies which can be implemented with the help of the present structure of resources combined with some additional efforts. Such incremental changes, over a period of time, take the organization from where it is to where it wishes to be.

It is to be noted that while strategy formulation is primarily an entrepreneurial activity, based on strategic decision-making, the implementation of strategy is mainly an administrative task based on strategic as well as operational decision-making.

Describe the principal aspects of strategy-execution process, which are included in most situations.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Implementation or execution is an operations-oriented, activity aimed at shaping the performance of core business activities in a strategy-supportive manner. In most situations, strategy-execution process includes the following principal aspects:

- Developing budgets that steer ample resources into those activities that are critical to strategic success.
- Staffing the organization with the needed skills and expertise, consciously building and strengthening strategy-supportive competencies and competitive capabilities, and organizing the work effort.
- Ensuring that policies and operating procedures facilitate rather than impede effective execution.
- Using the best-known practices to perform core business activities and pushing for continuous improvement.
- Installing information and operating systems that enable company personnel to better carry out their strategic roles day in and day out.
- Motivating people to pursue the target objectives energetically.
- Creating culture and climate conducive to successful strategy implementation and execution.

- Exerting the internal leadership needed to drive implementation forward and keep improving strategy execution.

Explain how organizations can effectively manage strategic uncertainties in a rapidly changing business environment.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In managing strategic uncertainties in a rapidly changing business environment, organizations need to adopt proactive strategies to navigate unpredictability effectively. Following are the several key approaches: Flexibility: Organizations should build flexibility into their strategies to enable quick adaptation to change in the environment. Diversification: Diversifying the organization's product portfolio, markets, and customer base can help reduce the impact of strategic uncertainty. Monitoring and Scenario Planning: Regularly monitoring key indicators of change and conducting scenario planning exercises can help organizations anticipate and prepare for different future scenarios. Building Resilience: Investing in building internal resilience is essential for weathering uncertainty. This includes strengthening operational processes, increasing financial flexibility, and improving risk management capabilities. Collaboration and Partnerships: Collaborating with other organizations, suppliers, customers, and partners can provide access to additional resources, expertise, and market opportunities. Strategic partnerships enable organizations to pool resources, share risk, and leverage each other's strengths to navigate uncertainty more effectively.

Merako Appliances recently automated its assembly line to produce kitchen gadgets faster and at lower cost, improving operational efficiency. However, customer feedback shows that the new products don't meet market needs, leading to declining sales. This has sparked an internal debate on balancing efficiency (doing things right) with effectiveness (doing the right things). How should Merako balance efficiency and effectiveness to achieve sustainable success? Also, describe the four possible situations a business can face when comparing levels of efficiency and effectiveness.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Merako Appliances has improved operational efficiency by automating its assembly line. However, declining sales due to products not meeting customer needs indicate a lack of effectiveness. This highlights the importance of balancing doing things right (efficiency) with doing the right things (effectiveness). To achieve sustainable success, Merako must align its operations with customer preferences through sound strategy formulation (effectiveness), followed by efficient strategy implementation. Four Possible Situations Based on Efficiency and Effectiveness:

1. Efficient and Effective (Thrive): Ideal scenario. The firm does the right things and does them well. Merako should aim for this by aligning products with customer needs while maintaining efficiency.

2. Efficient but Ineffective (Die Slowly): Merako's current state. Operations are streamlined, but customer needs are unmet, risking decline without strategic correction.

3. Inefficient but Effective (Survive): Right strategy but poor execution. The firm may survive but must improve efficiency to sustain.

4. Inefficient and Ineffective (Die Quickly): Neither aligned with customer needs nor operationally sound. Leads to rapid failure unless overhauled.

Operational Management	Strategic Formulation: Effective	Strategic Formulation: Ineffective
Efficient	1 — Thrive	2 — Die Slowly
Inefficient	3 — Survive	4 — Die Quickly

Principal combinations of efficiency and effectiveness

Merako must integrate customer feedback into strategic planning and ensure both efficient execution and effective direction to gain long-term competitiveness.

ABC Ltd. is a shoe manufacturing company. The strategic manager of ABC ltd. is Ms. Suman. Ms. Suman hired the best designers she could find online for her ethnic shoe brand but later she found that the designers were better at leather designs. Identify and explain linkage in the given situation as she had to change her strategy basis the actual resources she had?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The strategy formulation and strategy implementation are intertwined and linked with each other. Two types of linkages exist between these two phases of strategic management. The forward linkages deal with the impact of strategy formulation on strategy implementation while the backward linkages are concerned with the impact in the opposite direction.

In the given situation Ms. Suman has to follow Backward Linkages as she had to change her strategy basis the actual resources she had. While dealing with strategic choice, remember that past strategic actions also determine the choice of strategy. Organizations tend to adopt those strategies which can be implemented with the help of the present structure of resources combined with some additional efforts. Such incremental changes, over a period of time, take the organization from where it is to where it wishes to be.

With the help of a model explain strategic managem ent process.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The strategic management process can best be studied and applied using a model. Identifying an organization's vision, mission, goals and objectives, is the starting point for strategic management process. The strategic management process is dynamic and continuous. A change in any one of the major components in the model can necessitate a change in any or all of the other components. Therefore, strategy formulation, implementation, and evaluation activities should be performed on a continual basis, not just at the end of the year or semi-annually.

Formulating, implementing, and evaluating strategies are the major components of the strategic management that are represented in the following model:

Environmental Analysis
Develop Vision, Mission and Objectives	Generate, Analyse and select Strategies	Implement Strategies	Strategic Evaluation and Control
Organisation Appraisal
Analysis		Implementation	Evaluation

The strategic management process is not as cleanly divided and neatly performed in practice. Strategists do not go through the process in lockstep fashion. Generally, there is give-and-take among hierarchical levels of an organization. Many organizations conduct formal meetings semi-annually to discuss and update the firm's vision/mission, opportunities/threats, strengths/weaknesses, strategies, objectives, policies, and performance. Creativity from participants is encouraged in meeting. Good communication and feedback are needed throughout the strategic management process.

HQ is a service company? Two years back the company hired a reputed management consultant to formulate its strategy. The consultant recommended an aggressive expansion plan. Now in an internal review meeting the company finds that many of the suggestions are not even fully considered.

Which part of strategic management process is missing in HQ?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategy implementation is missing in HQ. Implementation is the managerial exercise of putting a chosen strategy into action. It deals with the managerial exercise of supervising the ongoing pursuit of strategy, making it work, improving the competence with which it is executed and showing measurable progress in ac hieving the targeted results.

Strategic implementation is concerned with translating a strategic decision into action, which presupposes that the decision itself (i.e., the strategic choice) was made with some thought being given to feasibility and acceptability. The allocation of resources to new courses of action will need to be undertaken, and there may be a need for adapting the organization's structure to handle new activities as well as training personnel and devising appropriate systems.

It is crucial to realize the difference between the formulation and implementation because they both require very different skills. Also, a company will be successful only when the strategy formulation is sound and implementation is excellent.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Although inextricably linked, strategy implementation is fundamentally different from strategy formulation. Summarized are the key distinctions between strategy formulation and strategy implementation:

Strategy Formulation Vs. Strategy Implementation

Strategy Formulation	Strategy Implementation
Strategy Formulation includes planning and decision-making involved in developing organization's strategic goals and plans.	Strategy Implementation involves all those means related to executing strategic plans.
In short, Strategy Formulation is placing the forces before the action.	In short, Strategy Implementation is managing forces during the action.
An entrepreneurial activity based on strategic decision-making.	An administrative task based on strategic and operational decisions.
Emphasizes on effectiveness.	Emphasizes on efficiency.

Strategy Formulation	Strategy Implementation
Primarily an intellectual and rational process.	Primarily an operational process.
Requires co-ordination among few individuals at the top level.	Requires co-ordination among many individuals at the middle and lower levels.
Requires a great deal of initiative, logical skills, conceptual intuitive and analytical skills.	Requires specific motivational and leadership traits.

Explain the concept of forward and backward linkages between strategy formulation and implementation in strategic management, using relevant examples. How do these linkages impact the overall strategic decision-making process of an organization?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The concept of forward and backward linkages between strategy formulation and implementation in strategic management highlights the interconnected nature of these two phases and their impact on the overall strategic decision-making process of an organization.

Forward Linkages: Forward linkages refer to the impact of strategy formulation on strategy implementation. When an organization formulates a new strategy or revises an existing one, it sets the direction for the organization's future actions. For example, if a company decides to expand its product line to target a new market segment, this decision will require changes in the organization's structure, resources allocation, and possibly its leadership style. These changes are necessary to align the organization's operations with the new strategic direction. Thus, the formulation of strategies has forward linkages with their implementation, as it sets the stage for how the strategy will be executed.

Backward Linkages: Backward linkages, on the other hand, refer to the impact of implementation on strategy formulation. As an organization implements its strategies, it gains valuable insights and feedback from the implementation process. This feedback can influence future strategic decisions. For example, if a company faces unexpected challenges or discovers new opportunities during the implementation of a strategy, it may need to reevaluate its strategic choices. Similarly, past strategic actions and their outcomes can also influence the formulation of future strategies. Over time, these incremental changes in strategy and implementation take the organization from its current state to where it aims to be, reflecting the dynamic nature of strategic management.

In conclusion, the forward and backward linkages between strategy formulation and implementation highlight the iterative and interconnected nature of strategic management. By understanding and leveraging these linkages, organizations can enhance their strategic decision-making process and improve their overall performance.

To enhance operations, productivity, quality and work routines, the Board introduces new technologies and operating procedures to ensure continuous improvement and efficient workflow with operator feedback and performance evaluation. The management faces initial backlash from the employees to adopt these new techniques as they are a bit hesitant and scared of change. To cater to their concerns, the management introduces various awareness sessions, capacity building programs and exercises to handhold the operators during this transition while effectively communicating the need for change for future resilience and long-term benefits. Post these training sessions, the new techniques and procedures are gradually implemented in a phase-wise integration with constant support for seamless adoption by the employees in a moderated manner to accept. Finally, the management takes steps to stabilize these new work methods through revised policies, performance measures, and reward systems to ensure that employees do not revert to old practices. Identify the model being applied by Eagle Manufacturing Ltd. in the above case. Explain the different phases of the process for moving the organization from the present to the future. Is this a one-time Process/ application?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The model being applied by Eagle Manufacturing Ltd. is Kurt Lewin's Three Phase Model of Change comprising Unfreezing, Changing and Refreezing. It reflects strategic change undertaken to improve organizational efficiency, productivity and competitiveness. Phases of Kurt Lewin's Change Model

(a) Unfreezing the Situation: Unfreezing means making employees aware of the need for change and preparing them to accept it by breaking old attitudes, rigid routines and existing work practices. In the given case, employees initially resisted the new technologies and procedures. Therefore, management conducted awareness sessions, capacity building programmes and communication exercises to explain the need and long-term benefits of change.

(b) Changing to the New Situation: In this stage, new behaviour patterns, systems and procedures are introduced after employees recognize the need for change. In the given case, new technologies and operating procedures were gradually implemented through phase wise integration with continuous support, guidance and feedback mechanisms for employees.

(c) Refreezing: Refreezing occurs when the new behaviour becomes a permanent way of organizational life and employees do not revert to old practices. In the given case, revised policies, performance measures and reward systems were introduced to stabilize the new work methods and institutionalise the changed practices successfully.

Is it a One-Time Process? No, it is not a one-time process. Change is a continuous and cyclical process due to dynamic business environment, technological changes and competition. Therefore, organizations continuously undergo the stages of unfreezing, changing and refreezing.

Explain the pointers for navigating change during digital transformation.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Any organisation may find the work of digital transformation challenging and overwhelming. To ensure that a digital transition is effective, change management is essential. Here are some pointers for navigating change during the digital transformation:

1. Specify the digital transformation's aims and objectives: What is the intended outcome? What are the precise objectives that must be accomplished? It will be easier to make sure that everyone is on the same page and pursuing the same aims if everyone has a clear grasp of the goals.

2. Always, always, always communicate: It might be challenging for people to accept change and adjust to it. Ensure that you routinely and honestly discuss the objectives of the digital transformation and how they will affect stakeholders, including employees, clients, and other parties.

3. Be ready for resistance: Even when a change is for the better, it can be challenging for people to embrace it. Have a strategy in place for dealing with any resistance that may arise.

4. Implement changes gradually: Changes should ideally be implemented gradually rather than all at once. In order to avoid overwhelming individuals with too much change at once, this will give people time to become used to the new way of doing things.

5. Offer assistance and training: Workers will need guidance in the new procedures, software applications, etc.

In conclusion, effective completion of the massive project known as digital transformation depends on meticulous planning and change management. Digital transformation efforts are more likely to fail without change management. Organizations can successfully integrate a new digital system by planning for and managing the changes that must take place. Any project involving digital transformation must include it.

Changes in environmental forces often require businesses to make modifications in their existing strategies. In view of the same explain the areas to be focused while considering concept of strategic change.

Also explain the steps to initiate strategic change process.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The changes in the environmental forces often require businesses to make modifications in their existing strategies and bring out new strategies. Strategic change is a complex process that involves a corporate strategy focused on new markets, products, services and new ways of doing business.

For initiating strategic change, three steps can be identified as under:

(i) Recognize the need for change: The first step is to diagnose facets of the corporate culture that are strategy supportive or not. The idea is to determine where the lacuna lies and scope for change exists.

(ii) Create a shared vision to manage change: Objectives and vision of both individuals and organization should coincide. Senior managers need to constantly and consistently communicate the vision not only to inform but also to overcome resistance.

(iii) Institutionalize the change: Creating and sustaining a different attitude towards change is essential to ensure that the firm does not slip back into old ways of thinking or doing things. All these changes should be set up as a practice to be followed by the organization and be able to transfer from one level to another as a well settled practice.

Write a short note on strategic change and explain the process of strategic change.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The changes in the environmental forces often require businesses to make modifications in their existing strategies and bring out new strategies. Strategic change is a complex process that involves a corporate strategy focused on new markets, products, services and new ways of doing business.

Three steps for initiating strategic change are:

(i) Recognise the need for change – The first step is to diagnose the which facets of the present corporate culture are strategy supportive and which are not.

(ii) Create a shared vision to manage change – Objectives of both individuals and organisation should coincide. There should be no conflict between them. This is possible only if the management and the organisation members follow a shared vision.

(iii) Institutionalise the change – This is an action stage which requires the implementation of the changed strategy. Creating and sustaining a different attitude towards change is essential to ensure that the firm does not slip back into old ways of doing things.

Kurt Lewin proposed three stages of the change process for moving the organisation from the present to the future.

(i) Unfreezing the situation – The process of unfreezing makes the individuals or organisations aware of the necessity for change and prepares them for it. The change should not come as a surprise to the members of the organisation. Sudden and unannounced change would be socially destructive and morale lowering,

(ii) Changing to new situation – once unfreezing is complete and members of the organisation recognize the need for change, then their behaviour patterns need to be redefined as:

i. Compliance – enforcing reward and punishment strategy for good or bad behaviour

ii. Identification – members are psychologically impressed to identify themselves with some given role models whose behaviour they would like to adopt.

iii. Internalisation - involves some internal changing of the individual's thought process. They are given the freedom to learn and adopt new behaviour.

(iii) Refreezing – occurs when the new behaviour becomes a normal way of life. The new behaviour must replace the former behaviour completely for successful and permanent change. This can be achieved by continuously reinforcing the newly acquired behaviour.

Change process is not a one-time application but a continuous process due to dynamism and ever-changing environment.

FinEdge Services Ltd., a financial consulting firm, initiated a digital transformation programme to modernise its services. The management defined clear digital objectives, assessed existing manual processes and capability gaps, prepared a phased digital roadmap and implemented new technologies and work practices across all levels of the organization. Which concept of strategy implementation is reflected?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The situation reflects digital transformation supported by change management, an aspect of strategy implementation.

Digital transformation refers to the use of digital technologies to develop new or improved business processes, services or operating models. Such transformation requires planned organizational change, which is enabled through change management. Change management in the digital transition consists of four essential elements:

1. Defining the goals and objectives of the transformation

2. Assessing the current state of the organization and identifying gaps

3. Creating a roadmap for change that outlines the steps needed to reach the desired state

4. Implementing and managing the change at every level of the organization In the given case, FinEdge defined digital objectives, assessed manual processes and capability gaps, created a phased roadmap and implemented new technologies and practices across all levels. These actions correspond to all four elements of digital transformation change management. Hence, the concept reflected is digital transformation through change management in strategy implementation.

BrightWave Solutions, a small and medium-sized company in the renewable energy sector, wants to adopt the latest digital technologies to improve its operational processes and product offerings. The company aims to gain a competitive edge in the rapidly evolving renewable energy market through digital transformation. BrightWave Solutions also seeks to manage continuous changes effectively while transforming its management practices and workflows. Identify the strategy required for successful digital transformation. Also, state the most preferred practices that the company should follow.

ICAI'S ANSWER

To enable successful digital transformation, the appropriate strategy for BrightWave Solutions is a Change Management Strategy. This strategy ensures that the organizational, procedural and cultural changes associated with adopting new digital technologies are effectively managed. Following are the five best practices for managing change in small and medium-sized businesses:

1. Begin at the top: Change should be initiated and driven by unified, focused leadership. A committed top management can create and promote a culture that inspires the organization to embrace change.

2. Ensure that the change is both necessary and desired: Before initiating digital transformation, decision-makers must understand its necessity and long-term impact. Without a proper strategy, introducing too much change too quickly can be counterproductive.

3. Reduce disruption: It is essential to minimize employee disruption during transformation. This can be done by:

- Communicating changes early.
- Equipping employees with tools and training.
- Empowering change agents like project managers.
- Involving IT teams proactively.
- Creating an environment conducive to change.

4. Encourage communication: Promote open and continuous two-way communication. This ensures that employees feel heard and involved and that concerns are addressed timely. Effective communication also promotes innovation and collaboration across departments.

5. Recognize that change is the norm, not the exception: Businesses must treat change as a continuous process, not a one-time project. Being change ready helps the organization to adapt, sustain performance and stay aligned with evolving customer expectations. By following these practices, BrightWave Solutions can successfully manage its digital transformation, improve operational efficiency, enhance product offerings and maintain a competitive edge in the renewable energy industry.

Why is change management crucial during digital transformation, and what are some key strategies for navigating change effectively?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Change management is essential during digital transformation to ensure the success of the process.

Here are some key strategies to navigate change effectively:

- Specify the digital transformation's aims and objectives: Clearly defining the intended outcomes and objectives helps ensure everyone is aligned and working towards the same goals.
- Always communicate: Regular and transparent communication is crucial to help people understand the goals of digital transformation and how it will impact various stakeholders, including employees, clients, and other parties.
- Be ready for resistance: Change, even if beneficial, can be met with resistance. Having a strategy in place to address resistance is important for overcoming challenges and ensuring a smooth transition.
- Implement changes gradually: Instead of making all changes at once, gradual implementation allows individuals to adapt to new ways of doing things without feeling overwhelmed by too much change simultaneously.
- Offer assistance and training: Providing support, guidance, and training for employees is crucial as they navigate new procedures, software applications, and other aspects of digital transformation. In conclusion, meticulous planning and effective change management are vital for the successful completion of digital transformation projects. Without proper change management, these efforts are more likely to fail, Glassware Ltd. is about to go through a significant restructuring. The strategic change involves moving from a decentralized to a centralized structure. This will help Glassware avoid duplication of support activities and lower its costs.

The management have held the first staff briefing in which they went to great lengths to explain that the change was necessary to equip the company to face future competitive challenges. Identify and explain the current stage of Glassware Ltd. from the Lewin's three-stage model of change?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Glassware Ltd. is currently in the 'unfreezing' stage, where management is attempting to explain the need for change in an attempt to maximize buy-in by employees and reduce the amount of resistance.

Unfreezing the situation: The process of unfreezing simply makes the individuals aware of the necessity for change and prepares them for such a change. Lewin proposes that the changes should not come as a surprise to the members of the organization. Sudden and unannounced change would be socially destructive and morale lowering. The management must pave the way for the change by first "unfreezing the situation", so that members would be willing and ready to accept the change.

Unfreezing is the process of breaking down the old attitudes and behaviours, customs and traditions so that they start with a clean slate. This can be achieved by making announcements, holding meetings and promoting the new ideas throughout the organization.

H.C. Kellman has proposed three methods for reassigning new patterns of behaviour. These are compliance, identification and internalisation.

- Compliance: It is achieved by strictly enforcing the reward and punishment strategy for good or bad behaviour. Fear of punishment, actual punishment or actual reward seems to change behaviour for the better.
- Identification: Identification occurs when members are psychologically impressed upon to identify themselves with some given role models whose behaviour the y would like to adopt and try to become like them.
- Internalization: Internalization involves some internal changing of the individual's thought processes in order to adjust to a new environment. They have given freedom to learn and adopt new behaviour in order to succeed in the new set of circumstances.

ICAI'S ANSWER

To ensure a successful digital transformation, Nexora Innovations should adopt the following change management strategies:

1. Begin at the Top: Leadership must demonstrate commitment, clearly communicate the benefits of the change, and promotes a culture that embraces transformation.

2. Ensure the Change is Necessary and Desired: The company should explain the long-term benefits of the cloud-based system and address employees' concerns about job security.

3. Reduce Disruption:

- Communicate the transition early and set expectations.
- Provide proper training and resources to help employees adapt.
- Empower change agents (team leaders, project managers) to guide employees through the process.

4. Encourage Communication: Establish open feedback channels where employees can voice concerns and seek assistance. Regular updates will keep everyone aligned with the transformation goals.

5. Recognize Change as a Continuous Process: Instead of a one-time project, digital transformation should be seen as an ongoing adaptation where employees are encouraged to develop a mindset of continuous learning and improvement.

Strategic change is a complex process that involves a corporate strategy focused on new markets, products, services and new ways of doing business. Unless companies embrace change, they are likely to freeze and unless companies prepare to deal with sudden, unpredictable, discontinuous, and radical change, they are likely to be extinct.

Three steps for initiating strategic change are:

(i) Recognise the need for change – The first step is to diagnose the which facets of the present corporate culture are strategy supportive and which are not.

(ii) Create a shared vision to manage change – Objectives of both individuals and organisation should coincide. There should be no conflict between them. This is possible only if the management and the organisation members follow a shared vision.

(iii) Institutionalise the change – This is an action stage which requires the implementation of the changed strategy. Creating and sustaining a different attitude towards change is essential to ensure that the firm does not slip back into old ways of doing things.

Imagine you are a consultant advising a small manufacturing company embarking on a digital transformation journey. The company's leadership is concerned about managing the change effectively. Using the best practices for managing change in small and medium-sized businesses, outline a strategy to help the company navigate this transformation successfully.

ICAI'S ANSWER

To help the small manufacturing company navigate its digital transformation successfully, we would recommend the following strategy:

1. Begin at the top: The leadership team should be united and committed to the digital transformation. They should communicate a clear vision for the future of the company and lead by example.

2. Ensure that the change is necessary and desired: Before implementing any changes, the company should assess its current state and identify areas where digital transformation can add value. It's important to involve employees in this process to ensure their buy-in.

3. Reduce disruption: Employee perceptions of change can vary, so it's important to minimize disruption. This can be done by communicating early and often about the changes, providing training and support for employees, and empowering change agents within the organization.

4. Encourage communication: Create channels for employees to ask questions and provide feedback. Encourage collaboration between departments to share ideas and innovations. Effective communication can help alleviate fears and keep everyone aligned.

5. Recognize that change is the norm: Digital transformation is not a one-time project but an ongoing process. The company should be prepared to adapt to new technologies and market conditions continuously.

By following these best practices, the small manufacturing company can successfully navigate its digital transformation and position itself for future growth and success.

Dr. Raman has been running a nursing home for about twenty two years now, and has gained enormous name for his benevolence in Balram district of Chhattisgarh. Recently, his daughter, Dr. Radhika completed her medicine degree from the United States of America and returned to her hometown to be a part of her father's practice. She has been given the baton to promote modern medicine and retain the local skilled youth in their practice. However, their nursing home's skilled youth has been more inclined to E-Commerce employment opportunities. Dr. Radhika has taken it as a challenge to imbibe the very essence of service in them, by being employed as nurses and caretakers of the ill. This shall be very crucial in growing the practice as desired. Which of the following phases of Kurt Lewin's Model of Change will be most challenging for Dr. Radhika to strategically positioning her father's nursing home?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Kurt Lewin's Model of Change proposes three phases of change process to make the change lasting.

They are Compliance, Identification and Internalization.

For Dr. Radhika, Compliance and Identification will not a big challenge, as her father has been one of the most sort after personalities serving the ill in their district. And her return from the USA to serve her country, especially her district, will help the workforce identify her as a role model and there would actually be no need for compliance, i.e. Reward and Punishment for bringing about a change.

However, the new lucrative E-Commerce employment opportunities will have to be fought through Internalization, i.e. internal changing of the individual's thought process, to give them freedom to learn and succeed. Thus, Internalization will be the most challenging phase.

Define strategic change. Explain the various stages/phases of change process as propounded by Kurt Lewin.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The changes in the environmental forces often require businesses to make modifications in their existing strategies and bring out new strategies. Strategic change is a complex process and it involves a corporate strategy focused on new markets, products, services and new ways of doing business.

To make the change lasting, Kurt Lewin proposed three phases of the change process for moving the organization from the present to the future. These stages are unfreezing, changing and refreezing.

(i) Unfreezing the situation: The process of unfreezing simply makes the individuals or organizations aware of the necessity for change and prepares them for such a change. Lewin proposes that the changes should not come as a surprise to the members of the organization. Sudden and unannounced change would be socially destructive and morale lowering. The management must pave the way for the change by first "unfreezing the situation", so that members would be willing and ready to accept the change.

(ii) Changing to New situation: Once the unfreezing process has been completed and the members of the organization recognise the need for change and have been fully prepared to accept such change, their behaviour patterns need to be redefined. H.C. Kellman has proposed three methods for reassigning new patterns of behaviour. These are compliance, identification and internalisation.

(iii) Refreezing: Refreezing occurs when the new behaviour becomes a normal way of life. The new behaviour must replace the former behaviour completely for successful and permanent change to take place. In order for the new behaviour to become permanent, it must be continuously reinforced so that this new acquired behaviour does not diminish or extinguish.

What is Corporate culture? Where does it come from?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Corporate culture refers to a company's values, beliefs, business principles, traditions, ways of operating and internal work environment. Every organisation has a unique culture shaped by its philosophy, history, values, rituals, work climate and ingrained ways of doing things. Corporate culture exerts a powerful influence on the behaviour of managers and employees and guides how decisions are made and work is carried out. Where Does Corporate Culture Come From? Corporate culture is shaped and manifested through the following sources:

1. Values and Business Principles of Management: The values, ethical standards and business principles that management preaches and practices strongly influence organisational culture.

2. Organisational History and Traditions: Past experiences, successes, failures, traditions, stories and legends repeated within the organisation help embed cultural values.

3. Leadership Behaviour and Supervisory Practices: The leadership style, attitudes and behaviour of managers shape employee conduct and work practices.

4. Stakeholder Relationships: Dealings with employees, unions, shareholders, vendors and the community influence beliefs and behavioural norms.

5. Formal and Informal Systems: Policies, procedures, reward systems, communication patterns, peer pressure and organisational politics together define and reinforce culture.

Thus, corporate culture emerges over time from multiple sociological forces operating at different levels of the organisation and acts as a guiding force for employee behaviour, strategy execution and organisational performance.

ABC group of companies has five projects at different geographical locations. Each project is managed by a dedicated project manager. A Chief Executive Officer (CEO) is supported by a team of subject matter experts (SMEs) in each function at corporate level of the company. As an accepted practice, the authority and communication flow vertically and horizontally in the company. There are five common functions i.e. finance, human resource, operations, marketing and information technology facilitating each project. Each functional manager is having administrative relationship with respective project manager and functional relationship with related SME with a clear mutual understanding of his or her roles and responsibilities. Identify and explain the organizational structure best suited in the above scenario. State the advantages and disadvantages of the above structure.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The organizational structure best suited for the ABC group of companies is the Matrix Structure. The Matrix Structure integrates functional and project-based frameworks, enabling vertical communication between functional managers and teams, and horizontal communication with project managers. Functional managers oversee domains and report to SMEs, while project managers handle project execution. This structure ensures resource sharing, role clarity, collaboration, and alignment with organizational objectives. Advantages of the Matrix Structure:

1. Resource Optimization: Efficient utilization of resources across multiple projects.

2. Flexibility: Shutting down a project is accomplished relatively easily because it quickly adapts to changes in project needs or external environments.

3. Enhanced Communication: Encourages collaboration and knowledge sharing across projects and functions through many channels of communication.

4. Clear Goals: Project objectives are clear. Project managers focus on achieving specific project objectives.

Disadvantages of the Matrix Structure:

1. Complexity: Dual reporting relationships can lead to confusion and conflict between project and functional managers.

2. High Coordination Costs: It results in higher overhead cost and requires significant planning and communication efforts.

3. Power Struggles: Potential for conflicts over resource allocation and priorities.

M/s. MTS Ltd, is one of the mobile telephone service providers in India. It has its own mobile network, towers and distribution channels. It operates through its team of network operation, technicians, marketing, sales and after sales services. Currently all the team members are on its roll. Company knows that market is densely competitive. The environment is quite unstable and likely to remain so. Customer's taste and preferences are changing very fast. There is a strong need for innovation and quick response. While eliminating in-house business functions, company is considering outsourcing major activities and focusing on its core competencies. In the given situation identify the organizational structure suitable for the company. Also outline the merits and demerits in going for the identified structure.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The suitable organizational structure for MTS Ltd is the Network Organizational Structure. A company with such a structure is often called a Virtual Organization.

Merits of the Network Structure:

1. Flexibility and Adaptability: The structure allows for rapid technological changes and shifting competition patterns. This enables the company to adapt quickly to the unstable environment and changing customer preferences.

2. Focus on Core Competencies: The company can concentrate on its distinctive competencies while outsourcing non-core functions to specialized firms, which can perform them more efficiently.

3. Cost Efficiency: Through subcontracting and outsourcing, MTS Ltd can reduce the costs associated with maintaining in-house teams.

4. Decentralized Operations: The network structure scatters business functions across various geographical locations, reducing the need for a large central headquarters and ensuring responsiveness in different regions.

Demerits of the Network Structure:

1. Loss of Synergies: Contracting out functions may prevent MTS Ltd from discovering synergies that could emerge from combining internal activities.

2. Over-Specialization Risk: By focusing on only a few functions, the company may risk choosing the wrong functions, leading to a loss of competitiveness.

3. Stress and Learning Challenges: The flatter structure and increased need for personal interactions may create stress for employees, especially those who lack the confidence for active participation in organization-sponsored learning programs.

BOYA Ltd. is a venture in the market present for a decade. Till, 2023, it was working on the values and vision of its founder while operating in limited area of operations. Growth opportunities exist for BOYA Ltd. Considering the changing environment, company is interested to leverage new skills in marketing, technology, product development and financial management. As a known fact, modifying one aspect might have a ripple effect on other elements. The company wants to understand various hard and soft elements interrelated with each other in the company and having a bearing on effective operational results. As a strategist, you intend to prepare a questionnaire based on both types of elements by analyzing the organizational design. The response to the same will help in finding an answer to ensure effectiveness through the interaction of such elements. Briefly discuss the strategic model you will use in the given situation. State the limitations of the model as well.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In addressing the strategic needs of BOYA Ltd., the McKinsey 7S Model is an effective tool to consider. This model focuses on the interaction of hard and soft elements within an organization, suggesting that modifying one aspect might have a ripple effect on the other elements to maintain an effective balance. The McKinsey 7S Model helps analyze the company's organizational design to achieve effectiveness through these interactions. The model categorizes the elements into 'hard' and 'soft' components: The Hard elements are directly controlled by the management. The following elements are the hard elements in an organization.

- Strategy: the direction of the organization, a blueprint to build on a core competency and achieve competitive advantage to drive margins and lead the industry.
- Structure: depending on the availability of resources and the degree of centralisation or decentralization that the management desires, it choses from the available alternatives of organizational structures.

- Systems: the development of daily tasks, operations and teams to execute the goals and objectives in the most efficient and effective manner.

The Soft elements are difficult to define as they are more governed by culture. But these soft elements are equally important in determining an organization's success as well as growth in the industry. The following are the soft elements in this model.

- Shared Values: The core values which get reflected within the organizational culture or influence the code of ethics of the management.
- Style: This depicts the leadership style and how it influences the strategic decisions of the organisation. It also revolves around people motivation and organizational delivery of goals.
- Staff: The talent pool of the organisation.
- Skills: The core competencies or the key skills of the employees play a vital role in defining the organizational success.

While the McKinsey 7S Model provides a structured approach to analysing organizational effectiveness, it has certain limitations:

- It ignores the importance of the external environment and depicts only the most crucial elements within the organization.

- The model does not clearly explain the concept of organizational effectiveness or performance.
- The model is considered to be more static and less flexible for decision making.
- It is generally criticized for missing out the real gaps in conceptualization and execution of strategy.

By applying the McKinsey 7S Model, BOYA Ltd. can gain a comprehensive understanding of how different elements within the organization interact and influence overall performance. The insights gathered from the questionnaire can guide strategic decisions to enhance growth and operational effectiveness.

Write short note on Strategic Business Unit (SBU).

ICAI'S ANSWER

SBU is a part of a large business organization that is treated separately for strategic management purposes. It is separate part of large business serving product markets with readily identifiable competitors. It is created by adding another level of management in a divisional structure after the divisions have been grouped under a divisional top management authority based on the common strategic interests.

Very large organizations, particularly those running into several products, or operating at distant geographical locations that are extremely diverse in terms of environmental factors, can be better managed by creating strategic business units. SBU structure becomes imperative in an organization with increase in number, size and diversity.

The three most important characteristics of a SBU are:

- It is a single business or a collection of related businesses which offer scope for independent planning and which might feasibly standalone from the rest of the organization.
- It has its own set of competitors.
- It has a manager who has responsibility for strategic planning and profit performance, and who has control of profit-influencing factors.

Benefits of SBUs:

1. Establishing coordination between divisions having common strategic interest.

2. Facilitate strategic management and control.

3. Determine accountability at the level of distinct business units.

4. Allow strategic planning to be done at the most relevant level within the total enterprise.

5. Make the task of strategic review by top executives more objective and more effective.

6. Help to allocate resources to areas with better opportunities.

Thus, an SBU structure with its set of advantages would be most suitable for the company with the given diverse businesses having separate identifiable competitors, but a common organizational goal.

Due to reoccurrence of various variants of Corona virus, LMN Ltd. is facing unstable environment and it has started unbundling and disintegrating its activities. It also started relying on outside vendors for performing these activities. Identify the organisation structure LMN Ltd. is shifting to. Under what circumstances this structure becomes useful?

ICAI'S ANSWER

LMN Ltd. is shifting into network structure. It is a newer and somewhat more radical organisational design. The network structure could be termed a "non-structure" as it virtually eliminates in-house business functions and outsource many of them. An organization organized in this manner is often called a virtual organization because it is composed of a series of project groups or collaborations linked by constantly changing non-hierarchical, cobweb-like networks.

The network structure becomes most useful when the environment of a firm is unstable and is expected to remain so. Under such conditions, there is usually a strong need for innovation and quick response. Instead of having salaried employees, it may contract with people for a specific project or length of time. Long-term contracts with suppliers and distributors replace services that the company could provide for itself through vertical integration. The network structure provides organization with increased flexibility and adaptability to cope with rapid technological change and shifting pattern of international trade and competition.

The top corporate officer shall delegate responsibility for day-to-day operations and business unit strategy to the concerned managers.

Identify the organization structure that CDE Ltd. has planned to implement. Discuss any four attributes and the benefits the firm may derive by using this organization structure.

ICAI'S ANSWER

CDE Ltd. has planned to implement Strategic Business Unit (SBU) structure. Very large organisations, particularly those running into several products, or operating at distant geographical locations that are extremely diverse in terms of environmental factors, can be better managed by creating strategic business units. SBU structure becomes imperative in an organisation with increase in number, size and diversity.

The attributes of an SBU and the benefits a firm may derive by using the SBU Structure are as follows:

- A scientific method of grouping the businesses of a multi – business corporation which helps the firm in strategic planning.
- An improvement over the territorial grouping of businesses and strategic planning based on territorial units.
- Strategic planning for SBU is distinct from rest of businesses. Products/ businesses within an SBU receive same strategic planning treatment and priorities.
- Each SBU will have its own distinct set of competitors and its own distinct strategy.
- The CEO of SBU will be responsible for strategic planning for SBU and its profit performance.

- Products/businesses that are related from the stand point of function are assembled together as a distinct SBU.
- Unrelated products/ businesses in any group are separated into separate SBUs.
- Grouping the businesses on SBU lines helps in strategic planning by removing the vagueness and confusion.
- Each SBU is a separate business and will be distinct from one another on the basis of mission, objectives etc.

It seems impractical for the company to provide separate strategic planning treatment to each one of its product or businesses. As a strategic manager, suggest the type of structure best suitable for Moonlight Private Limited and state its benefits.

ICAI'S ANSWER

It is advisable for Moonlight Private Limited to follow the strategic business unit (SBU) structure.

Moonlight Private Limited has a multi-product and multi-business structure where, each of these businesses has its own set of competitors. In the given case, Strategic Business Unit (SBU) structure would best suit the interests of the company.

816 EXAM Old P7 Jan 2021 Q10(b) OR 5 marks old scheme

Elucidate:

Matrix Structure

ICAI'S ANSWER

In matrix structure, functional and product forms are combined simultaneously at the same level of the organization. Employees have two superiors, a product / project manager and a functional manager. The "home" department - that is, engineering, manufacturing, or marketing - is usually functional and is reasonably permanent. People from these functional units are often assigned temporarily to one or more product units or projects.

The product units / projects are usually temporary and act like divisions in that they are differentiated on a product-market basis. The matrix structure may be very appropriate when organizations conclude that neither functional nor divisional forms, even when combined with horizontal linking mechanisms like strategic business units, are right for the implementation of their strategies. Matrix structure was developed to combine the stability of the functional structure with flexibility of the product form. It is very useful when the external environment (especially its technological and market aspects) is very complex and changeable.

A matrix structure is most complex of all designs because it depends upon both vertical and horizontal flows of authority and communication. It may result in higher overhead costs due to more management positions.

The matrix structure is often found in an organization when the following three conditions exist:

1. Ideas need to be cross-fertilized across projects or products;

2. Resources are scarce; and

3. Abilities to process information and to make decisions need to be improved.

Draw 'Divisional Structure' with the help of a diagram. Also, give advantages and disadvantages of this structure in brief.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Divisional structure is that organizational structure which is based on extensive delegation of authority and built on division basis. The divisional structure can be organized in one of the four ways: by geographic area, by product or service, by customer, or by process. With a divisional structure, functional activities are performed both centrally and in each division separately.

Advantages of divisional structure

- Accountability is clear: Divisional managers can be held responsible for sales and profit levels. Because a divisional structure is based on extensive delegation of authority, managers and employees can easily see the results of their good or bad performances and thus their morale is high.
- Other advantages: It creates career development opportunities for managers, allows local control of local situations, leads to a competitive climate within an organization, and allows new businesses and products to be added easily.

Disadvantages of divisional structure

- Higher cost: Owing to following reasons: (i). requires qualified functional specialist at different divisions and needed centrally (at headquarters); (ii). It requires an elaborate, headquarters –driven control system.

- Conflicts between divisional managers: Certain regions, products, or customers may sometimes receive special treatment, and it may be difficult to maintain consistent, company-wide practices.

Describe corporate culture. Elaborate the statement "Culture is a strength that can also be a weakness".

ICAI'S ANSWER

Corporate culture refers to a company's values, beliefs, business principles, traditions, way of operating and internal work environment. Every corporation has a culture that exerts powerful influences on the behaviour of managers.

Culture as a strength – Culture can facilitate communication, decision making and control and create cooperation and commitment. An organisation's culture could be strong and cohesive when it conducts its business according to clear and explicit set of principles and values. The management devotes considerable time in communicating values & principles to employees and sharing them widely across the organisation.

Culture as a weakness – can obstruct the smooth implementation of strategy by creating resistance to change. An organisation's culture can be characterised as weak when many sub cultures exist, few values and behavioural norms are shared and traditions are rare. In such organisations, employees do not have a sense of commitment, loyalty and a sense of identity.

Which of the following statements are 'correct' and which are 'incorrect'? Give reasons, in brief, for your answer:

Corporate culture is always identical in all the business organizations.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Incorrect: Every company has its own organisational culture. Each has its own business philosophy and principles, its own ways of approaching to the problems and making decisions, its own work climate, work ethics, etc. Therefore, corporate culture is not identical in all organisations. Organisations over a period of time inherit and percolate down its own specific work ethos and approaches.

Write a short note on Matrix Structure.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In matrix structure, functional and product forms are combined simultaneously at the same level of the organization. Employees have two superiors, a product/project manager and a functional manager. The "home" department - that is, engineering, manufacturing, or marketing - is usually functional and is reasonably permanent. People from these functional units are often assigned temporarily to one or more product units or projects. The product units / projects are usually temporary and act like divisions in that they are differentiated on a product-market basis. The matrix structure may be very appropriate when organizations conclude that neither functional nor divisional forms, even when combined with horizontal linking mechanisms like strategic business units, are right for the implementation of their strategies. Matrix structure was developed to combine the stability of the functional structure with flexibility of the product form. It is very useful when the external environment (especially its technological and market aspects) is very complex and changeable. A matrix structure is most complex of all designs because it depends upon both vertical and horizontal flows of authority and communication. It may result in higher overhead costs due to more management positions. The matrix structure is often found in an organization when the following three conditions exist:

1. Ideas need to be cross-fertilized across projects or products;

2. Resources are scarce; and

3. Abilities to process information and to make decisions need to be improved.

GloWare Ltd., an apparel manufacturer, has been in the market for over a decade. Until 2023, it operated on the founding principles of its CEO, focusing on a limited regional market. With new growth opportunities arising, GloWare is now interested in developing new competencies in areas such as digital marketing, product innovation, sustainable materials, and financial management. Recognizing that changing one area may impact others, the company wants a comprehensive understanding of the interconnected elements that contribute to its operational effectiveness. As a strategist, you are tasked with creating a questionnaire to analyze both the "hard" and "soft" elements of the organization. This assessment will enable GloWare to understand the factors that influence its effectiveness and to strategically align its structure, skills, and culture with its growth ambitions.

ICAI'S ANSWER

In addressing the strategic needs of GloWare Ltd., the McKinsey 7-S Model serves as a valuable tool. This model examines how various "hard" and "soft" elements within the organization interact, with the understanding that modifying one aspect can create a ripple effect on other elements, helping to maintain a balanced and effective organizational structure. By analyzing these elements, GloWare can gain insights into its organizational design and make strategic adjustments to improve performance. The McKinsey 7-S Model categorizes elements into hard and soft components: Hard Elements (directly managed by the company):

1. Strategy: The organization's direction and competitive approach, designed to leverage core competencies and achieve industry leadership.

2. Structure: The chosen organizational setup, shaped by resource availability and the degree of centralization or decentralization desired by management.

3. Systems: The daily operations, processes, and teams that execute objectives in an efficient and effective manner. Soft Elements (influenced by organizational culture and more challenging to define):

1. Shared Values: Core beliefs that shape the culture and ethical code within the organization.

2. Style: Leadership style and its impact on decision-making, employee motivation, and goal delivery.

3. Staff: The talent pool and workforce capabilities.

4. Skills: The key competencies of employees that contribute to organizational success. While the McKinsey 7-S Model provides a structured approach to analyzing organizational effectiveness, it has certain limitations:

1. Limited Focus on External Environment: The model focuses only on internal elements, potentially overlooking external factors impacting the organization.

2. Undefined Organizational Effectiveness: It does not clearly explain how to measure or achieve organizational effectiveness.

3. Static Nature: The model is considered more static and may lack flexibility in dynamic decision-making situations.

4. Potential Gaps in Strategy Execution: It may not fully capture gaps between strategy development and execution. By applying the McKinsey 7-S Model, GloWare Ltd. can gain a comprehensive understanding of the interconnected elements within its organization and how they impact overall performance. Insights gathered from a questionnaire based on this model can inform strategic decisions, allowing GloWare to enhance growth, operational efficiency, and competitiveness in a changing market.

A Mumbai-based conglomerate, PQR Ltd., has announced a major restructuring of its business operations. The company has decided to split its business into four separate units: Manufacturing, Retail, Services, and Technology. Each unit will operate as a separate business, with delegated responsibility for day-to-day operations and strategy to the respective unit managers. Identify the organization structure that PQR Ltd. has planned to implement. Discuss any four attributes and the benefits the firm may derive by using this organization structure.

ICAI'S ANSWER

PQR Ltd. has planned to implement the Strategic Business Unit (SBU) structure. Very large organisations, particularly those running into several products, or operating at distant geographical locations that are extremely diverse in terms of environmental factors, can be better managed by creating strategic business units. SBU structure becomes imperative in an organisation with increase in number, size and diversity. The attributes of an SBU and the benefits a firm may derive by using the SBU Structure are as follows:

- A scientific method of grouping the businesses of a multi – business corporation which helps the firm in strategic planning.
- An improvement over the territorial grouping of businesses and strategic planning based on territorial units.
- Strategic planning for SBU is distinct from rest of businesses. Products/ businesses within an SBU receive same strategic planning treatment and priorities.
- Each SBU will have its own distinct set of competitors and its own distinct strategy.
- The CEO of SBU will be responsible for strategic planning for SBU and its profit performance.
- Products/businesses that are related from the standpoint of function are assembled together as a distinct SBU.
- Unrelated products/ businesses in any group are separated into separate SBUs.
- Grouping the businesses on SBU lines helps in strategic planning by removing the vagueness and confusion.
- Each SBU is a separate business and will be distinct from one another on the basis of mission, objectives etc.

Simultaneously, York Investors leverages cutting-edge technology to streamline its operations and improve overall efficiency. The investment in communication systems ensures seamless collaboration and information flow across various departments. Identify and explain the model used by York Investors to achieve its strategic objectives.

ICAI'S ANSWER

York Investors is employing the McKinsey 7S Model to achieve its strategic objectives. The model focuses on seven interdependent elements within an organization, categorized into "Hard Ss" and "Soft Ss." In this case:

- Strategy (Hard S): Investing in training programs and technology aligns with the strategic objective of enhancing workforce skills and operational efficiency.
- Structure (Hard S): The investment suggests a structural alignment to support the strategic initiatives, indicating a deliberate organization of resources.
- Systems (Hard S): The use of cutting-edge technology and communication systems reflects a commitment to optimizing daily tasks and improving overall efficiency, addressing the system component of the model.
- Shared Values (Soft S): The emphasis on comprehensive training initiatives indicates a commitment to shared values, reflecting a focus on developing a skilled and capable workforce.
- Style (Soft S): The leadership style is implied in the strategic decision to invest in technology and training for workforce development and operational efficiency.

- Staff (Soft S): The commitment to enhancing skills and capabilities reflects a focus on the talent pool within the organization.
- Skills (Soft S): The strategic investment in training programs directly addresses the development of key skills within the workforce.

Changing problem cultures is very difficult because of deeply held values and habits. It takes concerted management action over a period of time to replace an unhealthy culture with a healthy culture or to root out certain unwanted cultural obstacles and instil ones that are more strategy-supportive.

- The first step is to diagnose which facets of the present culture are strategy supportive and which are not.
- Then, managers have to talk openly and forthrightly to all concerned about those aspects of the culture that have to be changed.
- The talk has to be followed swiftly by visible, aggressive actions to modify the culture-actions that everyone will understand are intended to establish a new culture more in tune with the strategy.

The menu of culture-changing actions includes revising policies and procedures, altering incentive compensation, recruiting and hiring new managers and employees, replacing key executives, communication on need and benefit to employees and so on.

'A strategy-supportive culture promotes good strategy execution.' - Explain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strong cultures promote good strategy execution when there's fit and hurt execution when there's negligible fit. A culture grounded in values, practices, and behavioral norms that match what is needed for good strategy execution helps energize people throughout the organization to do their jobs in a strategy-supportive manner. A culture built around such business principles as listening to customers, encouraging employees to take pride in their work, and giving employees a high degree of decision-making responsibility. This is very conducive to successful execution of a strategy of delivering superior customer service.

A work environment where the culture matches the conditions for good strategy execution provides a system of informal rules and peer pressure regarding how to conduct business internally and how to go about doing one's job.

A strong strategy-supportive culture makes employees feel genuinely better about their jobs and work environment and the merits of what the company is trying to accomplish. Employees are stimulated to take on the challenge of realizing the organizational vision, do their jobs competently and with enthusiasm, and collaborate with others.

"Samar Electronics Limited" is engaged in manufacturing and sale of consumer electronic goods globally. The company is rated 'best' in "customer satisfaction survey' for 5 years in a row. The spread of the current pandemic has affected the internal and external environment of the company adversely. Such adverse impact has negatively impacted the revenue of the company. In order to survive and· retain the

What type of organisational structure is the company transitioning into? List the·basic features of this new structure and the disadvantages that the company may face in future in this new structural arrangement.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Samar Electronics Limited transitioning into network structure. It is a newer and somewhat more radical organisational design. Its essential features are as follows:

1. It is termed as "non-structure" as it eliminates in house functions and outsources many of them.

2. An organisation organised in this manner is often called "virtual organisation" because it is composed of a series of project groups or collaborations linked by constantly changing nonhierarchical, cob-web like structures.

3. Network structures become most useful when the environment of a firm is unstable and is expected to remain so. Under such conditions, there is usually a strong need for innovation and quick response.

4. Instead of having salaried employees, it may contract with people for a specific project or length of time.

5. Long term contracts with suppliers and distributors replace services that company could provide for itself.

However, network structure does have following disadvantages that the company may face in future:

1. The availability of numerous potential partners can be a source of trouble.

2. Co-ordination among the functioning of business partners is perhaps, the biggest problem for the management in the networking structure.

3. Employees may lack the level of confidence necessary to participate actively in organisation sponsored learning experiences.

Multidivisional or M-form structure was developed in the 1920s, in response to coordination-and control-related problems in large firms. Functional departments often had difficulty dealing with distinct product lines and markets, especially in coordinating conflicting priorities among the products. Costs were not allocated to individual products, so it was not possible to assess an individual product's profit contribution. Loss of control meant that optimal allocation of firm resources between products was difficult (if not impossible). Discuss the concept of Hourglass Structure

Information technology and communications have significantly altered the functioning of organizations. The role played by middle management is diminishing as the tasks performed by them are increasingly being replaced by the technological tools. Hourglass organization structure consists of three layers with constricted middle layer. The structure has a short and narrow middle-management level. Information technology links the top and bottom levels in the organization taking away many tasks that are performed by the middle level managers. A shrunken middle layer coordinates diverse lower level activities. Contrary to traditional middle level managers who are often specialist, the managers in the hourglass structure are generalists and perform wide variety of tasks. They would be handling cross-functional issues emanating such as those from marketing, finance or production.

Hourglass structure has obvious benefit of reduced costs. It also helps in enhancing responsiveness by simplifying decision making. Decision making authority is shifted close to the source of information so that it is faster.

State with reasons which of the following statements are correct/incorrect: Strategies may require changes in organizational structure.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Correct: Strategies may require changes in structure as the structure dictates how resources will be allocated. Structure should be designed to facilitate the strategic pursuit of a firm and, therefore, should follow strategy. Without a strategy or reasons for being, companies find it difficult to design an effective structure.

Write short notes on the following: Importance of corporate culture.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A culture where creativity, embracing change, and challenging the status quo are pervasive is very conducive to successful execution of a product innovation and technological leadership strategy. A culture built around such business principles as listening to customers, encouraging employees to take pride in their work, and giving employees a high degree of decision-making responsibility is very conducive to successful execution of a strategy of delivering superior customer service. A strong strategy-supportive culture nurtures and motivates people to do their jobs in ways conducive to effective strategy execution; it provides structure, standards, and a value system in which to operate; and it promotes strong employee identification with the company's vision, performance targets, and strategy. All this makes employees feel genuinely better about their jobs and work environment and the merits of what the company is trying to accomplish. Employees are stimulated to take on the challenge of realizing the company's vision, do their jobs competently and with enthusiasm, and collaborate with others as needed to bring the strategy to success.

Davis and Lawrence have proposed three distinct phases to develop matrix structure. Explain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

For development of matrix structure; Davis and Lawrence have proposed three distinct phases:

- Cross-functional task forces: Temporary cross-functional task forces are initially used when a new product line is being introduced. A project manager is in charge as the key horizontal link.
- Product/brand management: If the cross-functional task forces become more permanent, the project manager becomes a product or brand manager a nd a second phase begins. In this arrangement, function is still the primary organizational structure, but product or brand managers act as the integrators of semi-permanent products or brands.
- Mature matrix: The third and final phase of matrix development involves a true dual-authority structure. Both the functional and product structures are permanent. All employees are connected to both a vertical functional superior and a horizontal product manager.

Briefly answer the following questions: Explain the concept of Network structure.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Network structure is a newer and somewhat more radical organizational design. The network structure could be termed as 'non-structure' as it virtually eliminates in-house business functions and outsource many of them. A corporation organized in this manner is a virtual organization because it is composed of a series of project groups or collaborations linked by constantly changing non-hierarchical, cobweb-like networks.

CASE SCENARIO

Blue Horizon Travel (BHT), a boutique travel agency based in Singapore, has carved a niche by offering curated luxury travel experiences. However, with the rise of online travel aggregators and changing consumer behavior post-pandemic, BHT's growth has stagnated. To stay competitive, the management is rethinking its organizational structure and strategy while ensuring alignment with its core values and vision.

At the heart of its transformation is the company's emphasis on values. By prioritizing sustainability, cultural immersion and personalized service, BHT seeks to redefine tourism for modern travelers. Its vision is to become the top travel agency for sustainable luxury tourism in Southeast Asia by 2030. To support this vision, BHT is transitioning to a network organizational structure. This new model decentralizes decision-making and encourages collaboration between in-house experts, freelance travel consultants, and local tour operators. This structure enables BHT to respond quickly to customer needs while leveraging diverse expertise.

Additionally, BHT has integrated an hourglass organizational structure within its operations. While the management layer is lean, significant investment is made in customer-facing staff and the technology backbone. This ensures a seamless experience for clients while maintaining operational efficiency. Moreover, inbound logistics is now a critical value chain activity for BHT. By forming partnerships with sustainable transportation providers and local eco-friendly accommodation partners, the company enhances its competitive advantage. These efforts align with customer expectations and reinforce BHT's sustainability-driven brand.

To monitor its progress, BHT employs premise control, regularly assessing market trends and reviews internal performance metrics. This allows the company to make proactive adjustments to its strategies and ensure alignment with its long-term goals.

Lastly, BHT's leadership has identified key success factors critical to its success: exceptional customer service, strong local partnerships, and the integration of cutting-edge travel technology. With these in place, BHT aims to thrive in a competitive and rapidly evolving industry.

Based on the above Case Scenario, answer the Multiple-Choice Questions.

A Mumbai-based conglomerate, PQR Ltd., has announced a major restructuring of its business operations. The company has decided to split its business into four separate units: Manufacturing, Retail, Services, and Technology. Each unit will operate as a separate business, with delegated responsibility for day-to-day operations and strategy to the respective unit managers. Identify the organization structure that PQR Ltd. has planned to implement. Discuss any four attributes and the benefits the firm may derive by using this organization structure.

ICAI'S ANSWER

PQR Ltd. has planned to implement the Strategic Business Unit (SBU) structure. Very large organisations, particularly those running into several products, or operating at distant geographical locations that are extremely diverse in terms of environmental factors, can be better managed by creating strategic business units. SBU structure becomes imperative in an organisation with an increase in number, size and diversity.

The attributes of an SBU and the benefits a firm may derive by using the SBU Structure are as follows:

- A scientific method of grouping the businesses of a multi – business corporation which helps the firm in strategic planning.
- An improvement over the territorial grouping of businesses and strategic planning based on territorial units.
- Strategic planning for SBU is distinct from rest of businesses. Products/ businesses within an SBU receive same strategic planning treatment and priorities.
- Each SBU will have its own distinct set of competitors and its own distinct strategy.
- The CEO of SBU will be responsible for strategic planning for SBU and its profit performance.
- Products/businesses that are related from the standpoint of function are assembled together as a distinct SBU.
- Unrelated products/ businesses in any group are separated into separate SBUs.
- Grouping the businesses on SBU lines helps in strategic planning by removing the vagueness and confusion.

- Each SBU is a separate business and will be distinct from one another on the basis of mission, objectives etc.

Aarav Textiles Pvt. Ltd., a global apparel company, faced a revenue decline due to a pandemic. To sustain operations, it outsourced key functions like production, logistics and customer support. Now, it functions with a lean head office digitally connected to dispersed units. What organisational structure is this? Discuss its features and disadvantages.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Aarav Textiles Pvt. Ltd. is transitioning into a network structure, a modern and flexible organisational design. This structure is particularly suitable in times of uncertainty and disruption, such as during a global pandemic. Its essential features include:

1. It is sometimes called a "non-structure" as it eliminates many in-house functions and extensively outsources them.

2. Organisations adopting this model are often referred to as "virtual organisations", comprising a set of project teams or external collaborations connected through non-hierarchical, web-like structures.

3. This structure is highly effective in unstable environments where rapid innovation and quick responses are needed.

4. Instead of maintaining a large permanent workforce, the company may contract individuals or agencies for specific projects or time periods.

5. Long-term contracts with suppliers, manufacturers, and logistics partners replace traditional in-house operations.

Disadvantages

Aarav Textiles may face in the future under this structure include:

1. Managing a wide array of potential partners can become complex and may result in quality or consistency issues.

2. Ensuring effective coordination among diverse, independent business units spread globally is a significant managerial challenge.

3. Employees may feel less connected to the organisation, leading to reduced motivation or reluctance to engage in learning and development initiatives.

How the 'Strategic Business Unit' (SBU), structure becomes imperative in an organization with increase in number, size and diversity of divisions?

ICAI'S ANSWER

SBU is a part of a large business organization that is treated separately for strategic management purposes. The concept of SBU is helpful in creating an SBU organizational structure. It is a separate part of large business serving product markets with readily identifiable competitors. It is created by adding another level of management in a divisional structure after the divisions have been grouped under a divisional top management authority based on the common strategic interests.

Very large organisations, particularly those running into several products, or operating at distant geographical locations that are extremely diverse in terms of environmental factors, can be better managed by creating strategic business units. SBU structure becomes imperative in an organisation with increase in number, size and diversity.

SBUs helps such organisations by:

- Establishing coordination between divisions having common strategic interest.
- Facilitate strategic management and control.
- Determine accountability at the level of distinct business units.
- Allow strategic planning to be done at the most relevant level within the total enterprise.
- Make the task of strategic review by top executives more objective and more effective.

- Help to allocate resources to areas with better opportunities.

Bunch Pvt Ltd. is dealing in multiproduct like electronics and FMCG and are having outlets in different cities and markets across India. Due to scale of operation, it is having technical difficulty in dealing with distinct product line and markets especially in coordination and control related problems. Identify and suggest an ideal organizational structure for Bunch Pvt Ltd in resolving the problem?

ICAI'S ANSWER

To deal with the problems facing by the Bunch Pvt Ltd., we suggest Multi divisional structure for the organisation. Multidivisional (M-form) structure is composed of operating divisions where each for day-to-day operations and business unit strategy to division managers. By such delegation, the corporate office is responsible for formulating and implementing overall corporate strategy and manages divisions through strategic and financial controls.

Multidivisional or M-form structure was developed in the 1920s, in response to coordination-and control-related problems in large firms. Functional departments often had difficulty dealing with distinct product lines and markets, especially in coordinating conflicting priorities among the products. Costs were not allocated to individual products, so it was not possible to assess an individual product's profit contribution. Loss of control meant that optimal allocation of firm resources between products was difficult (if not impossible). Top managers became over-involved in solving short-run problems (such as coordination, communications, conflict resolution) and neglected long-term strategic issues.

CASE SCENARIO

SKS, a Bollywood actor, was so affected by the chaos in the country due to the Pandemic that he and his team took upon themselves to cater to the poorest section of the society and formed SKS Foundation.

They had to plan in accordance with the policies of the government, arrange for quality medical care especially the internationally acclaimed medicine, which was available in extreme scarcity, transportation of people to and from their hometowns, and on time delivery of basic necessities. The task was humongous given the number of people to be cared for and the restrictions in place for goods/people movement. To execute the plan, they distributed the work amongst themselves as follows;

- Two people worked on the communication flow - WhatsApp, Facebook and IVR systems, were setup to reach out people, and for arrangements

- Three people setup logistics - finding medicine suppliers around India, negotiating prices, fixing transportation agents, making basic necessities available at the very doorstep (last mile delivery)
- Three other people were given the responsibility of food distribution - they took help from temples, gurdwaras and NGOs for making food available to the most needy first, aim was to provide at least two meals a day.
- Finally, one person worked on fund management - major sources being crowdfunding, NGO support, further support was carried through high net worth individuals networking, and celebrity support.

The major challenges were getting the medicines and hospital beds as the demand was sky high and the availability was skewed. But the team was passionate and as they gathered support from the general public, it became easier to operate and arrange necessities.

Management is tougher when the motive is not making profit, because all essential elements of strategy are to be considered, while the only way to measure success is people's safety, satisfaction and happiness. The numeric metrics fail to give a direction and the only measurement is psychological.

What do you understand by functional structure?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Functional structure is widely used because of its simplicity and low cost. A functional structure groups tasks and activities by business function.

The functional structure consists of a chief executive officer or a managing director and limited corporate staff with functional line managers in dominant functions such as production, accounting, marketing, R&D, engineering, and human resources. Disadvantages of a functional structure are that it forces accountability to the top, minimizes career development opportunities, etc.

Maadhyam, a hearing aid manufacturer recently introduced an AI based management tool in its organization which are having the qualities and capabilities of managing teams across functions. This technological tool in addition to saving organisational costs by replacing many tasks of the middle management has also served as a link between top and bottom levels in the organisation and assists in quick decision making. The skewed middle level managers now perform cross-functional duties. What could be their new organizational structure post implementation of AI based management tool? How can this structure benefit the organization?

ICAI'S ANSWER

In the recent years information technology and communications have significantly altered the functioning of organizations. The role played by middle management is diminishing as the tasks performed by them are increasingly being replaced by the technological tools. Hourglass organization structure consists of three layers in an organisation structure with constricted middle layer. The structure has a short and narrow middle management level.

Information technology links the top and bottom levels in the organization taking away many tasks that are performed by the middle level managers. A shrunken middle layer coordinates diverse lower level activities.

Hourglass Organization Structure

Hourglass structure has obvious benefit of reduced costs. It also helps in enhancing responsiveness by simplifying decision making. Decision making authority is shifted close to the source of information so that it is faster. However, with the reduced size of middle management, the promotion opportunities for the lower levels diminish significantly.

How can management communicate that it is committed to creating a new culture assuming that the old culture was problematic and not aligned with the company strategy?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Corporate culture refers to company's values, beliefs, business principles, traditions, ways of operating and internal work environment. Changing problem cultures is very difficult because of deeply held values and habits. It takes concerted management action over a period of time to replace an unhealthy culture with a healthy culture or to root out certain unwanted cultural obstacles and instil ones that are more strategy-supportive.

- The first step is to diagnose which facets of the present culture are str ategy supportive and which are not.
- Then, managers have to talk openly and forthrightly to all concerned about those aspects of the culture that have to be changed.
- The talk has to be followed swiftly by visible, aggressive actions to modify the culture-actions that everyone will understand are intended to establish a new culture more in tune with the strategy.

Management through communication has to create a shared vision to manage changes. The menu of culture-changing actions includes revising policies and procedures, altering incentive compensation, shifting budgetary allocations for substantial resources to new strategy projects, recruiting and hiring new managers and employees, replacing key executives, communication on need and benefit to employees and so on.

Delta Co. is an organization specializing in Information Technology enabled Services (ITeS) and Communications business. Last year, the organization had successfully integrated an Artificial Intelligence (AI) tool named 'Zeus' into the existing ERP system. The AI tool, using Deep Learning technique provided a digital leap transformation in various business processe s and operations. It has significantly diminished the role played by specialist managers of the middle management. This technological tool in addition to saving organizational costs by replacing many tasks of the middle management has also served as a link between top and bottom levels in the organization and assists in quick decision making. The skewed middle level managers now perform cross-functional duties. Which type of organizational structure is the company transitioning into?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The Delta company is transitioning into the hourglass organization structure because it has used technological tools to transform various business processes and operations and has significantly diminished the role played by specialist managers of the middle management. The technological tool in addition to saving organizational costs by replacing many tasks of the middle management has also served as a link between top and bottom levels in the organization and assists in faster decision making. What is corporate culture? How is it both strength and weakness of an organisation?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Corporate culture distinguishes one organisation from another. It refers to a company's values, beliefs, business principles, traditions, and ways of operating and internal work environment. Every corporation has a culture that exerts powerful influences on the behaviour of managers. Culture affects not only the way managers behave within an organization but also the decisions they make about the organization's relationships with its environment and its strategy.

A culture grounded in values, practices, and behavioural norms that match what is needed for good strategy execution helps energize people throughout the company to do their jobs in a strategy-supportive manner, adding significantly to the power and effectiveness of strategy execution

Culture is both a strength and a weakness as follows:

Culture as a strength: As a strength, culture can facilitate communication, decision-making & control and create cooperation & commitment. An organization's culture could be strong and cohesive when it conducts its business according to a clear and explicit set of principles and values, which the management devotes considerable time to communicating to employees and which values are shared widely across the organization.

Culture as a weakness: As a weakness, culture may obstruct the smooth implementation of strategy by creating resistance to change. An organization's culture could be characterized as weak when many subcultures exist, few values and behavioral norms are shared and traditions are rare. In such organizations, employees do not have a sense of commitment and loyalty with the organisation.

Ramesh and Suresh own software development firms ACS Ltd. and BDS Ltd. Ramesh and Suresh pitch their business in international markets and win international contracts. Ramesh has fifty software engineers in his team. Suresh, on the other hand, leads a team of forty software engineers. Every project has a specific and fixed timeline. Individual projects are assigned to project heads by Ramesh and Suresh. Ramesh adheres to strict rules and procedures. He met with the project heads to get an update but exchanged ideas occasionally. He set a weekly target of forty hours to complete the assigned goal or task. The group that met the deadline and completed the task received a 10% bonus. The group that was unable to meet the deadline was penalized. The group that did not meet the deadline was penalized with unpaid extra working hours to complete the task. Suresh, unlike Ramesh, did not priorities a structured approach to work. Suresh inspired the project managers by making them feel like leaders rather than just participants. Suresh's empowering attitude helped to align individual goals with group goals. Ramesh established routines to maximize his team efficiency. Suresh, on the other hand, used positive reinforcement to maximize his team efficiency.

(a) Identify the leadership style employed by Ramesh and Suresh.

(b) What are the conditions/situations that make such leadership styles more appropriate?

(c) Discuss the characteristics of the leadership styles.

ICAI'S ANSWER

(i) Ramesh adopted transactional leadership style, while Suresh adopted transformational leadership style.

(ii) Transactional leadership style can be appropriate in settled and static environment, in growing or mature industries and in organizations that are performing well.

Transformational leadership style may be appropriate in turbulent environment, in industries at the very start or end of their life cycles, in poorly performing organizations when there is a need to inspire a company to embrace major changes.

(iii) Transactional leadership style uses the authority of its office to exchange rewards such as pay, status symbols etc. Transactional leaders prefer a more formalized approach to motivation, setting clear goals with explicit rewards or penalties for achievement and non-achievement. Transactional leaders focus mainly to build on existing culture and enhance current practices.

Transformational leadership style uses charisma and enthusiasm to inspire people to exert them for the good of organization. Transformational leaders inspire employees by offering excitement, vision, intellectual stimulation and personal satisfaction.

Cura-Stents India Ltd., a manufacturer of high-precision cardiac stents, follows stringent international quality and sterilisation standards. The Plant Director sets fixed production targets, strict quality benchmarks and standard operating procedures. Employees achieving targets receive monetary rewards, while those failing to meet standards face salary deductions and mandatory retraining. The Director mainly monitors performance and takes corrective action for deviations. Identify the style of Strategic Leadership illustrated and distinguish it from Transformational Leadership based on organisational change and employee motivation.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The style of Strategic Leadership illustrated in the case is Transactional Leadership. Transactional Leadership focuses on designing systems, controlling organisational activities and improving the current situation. It uses the authority of the leader's office to exchange rewards such as pay and status, for desired performance. It follows a formal approach to motivation by setting clear goals with explicit rewards for achievement and penalties for non-achievement. This style is appropriate in static environments, mature industries and organisations where efficient operations and smooth functioning are essential. In the given case, the Plant Director sets clear production targets, quality benchmarks and standard operating procedures. Employees achieving the targets receive monetary rewards, whereas those failing to meet standards are penalised through salary deductions and mandatory retraining. The Director mainly monitors performance and takes corrective action, which are the key characteristics of Transactional Leadership. Difference between Transactional and Transformational Leadership

Basis	Transactional Leadership	Transformational Leadership
Organisational Change	Focuses on improving the current situation, building on the existing culture and enhancing current practices. It is suitable for stable environments and efficient operations.	Focuses on creating strategic change by inspiring employees with a vision. It is suitable in turbulent environments and when major organisational change is required.

Basis	Transactional Leadership	Transformational Leadership
Employee Motivation	Motivates employees through explicit rewards and penalties linked to performance.	Motivates employees through charisma, enthusiasm, vision and intellectual stimulation, encouraging them to exceed expectations and embrace innovation.

Thus, the Plant Director demonstrates Transactional Leadership, as the emphasis is on achieving operational efficiency, ensuring compliance with standards and motivating employees through a structured system of rewards and penalties.

"A manager as a strategic leader has to play many leadership roles", while explaining the statement in brief, delineate the leadership roles which a manager has to play in pushing for a good strategy execution.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic leadership refers to the manager's ability to anticipate, envision, maintain flexibility and empower others to create strategic change as necessitated by external conditions. A manager as a strategic leader is responsible for setting the firm's direction, formulating and implementing strategies and ensuring that the organization moves towards achieving its strategic goals. To achieve this, the manager must play multiple leadership roles such as visionary, strategist, administrator, culture builder and motivator.

Managers have five leadership roles to play in pushing for good strategy execution:

1. Staying on top of the execution process: Monitoring progress, resolving emerging issues and understanding obstacles in the way of effective execution.

2. Promoting a culture of esprit de corps: Nurturing unity, teamwork and high morale to mobilize and energize employees for effective strategy implementation.

3. Keeping the organization responsive and innovative: Ensuring the firm remains adaptive to changes, alert to new opportunities and ahead of rivals in developing competencies.

4. Exercising ethical leadership: Insisting that the company behaves ethically and acts as a model corporate citizen.

5. Pushing corrective actions: Taking necessary corrective measures to overcome execution problems and improve overall strategic performance.

These roles help managers drive strategy execution effectively while maintaining integrity, adaptability and performance.

Suraj Prakash and Chander Prakash are two brothers engaged in the business of spices. Both have different approaches to management. Suraj Prakash prefers the conventional and formal approach in which authority is used for explicit rewards and punishment. While, on the other hand, Chander Prakash believes in democratic participative management approach, involving employees to give their best.

Analyse the leadership style followed by Suraj Prakash and Chander Prakash.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Suraj Prakesh is a follower of transactional leadership style that focuses on designing systems and controlling the organization's activities. Such a leader believes in using the authority of his office to exchange rewards, such as pay and status. They prefer a more formalized approach to motivation, setting clear goals with explicit rewards or penalties for achievement or non-achievement. Transactional leaders try to build on the existing culture and enhance current practices. The style is better suited in persuading people to work efficiently and run operations smoothly.

On the other hand, Chander Prakash is a follower of transformational leadership style. The style uses charisma and enthusiasm to inspire people to exert them for the good of the organization. Transformational leaders offer excitement, vision, intellectual stimulation and personal satisfaction. They inspire involvement in a mission, giving followers a 'dream' or 'vision' of a higher calling so as to elicit more dramatic changes in organizational performance. CASE SCENARIO

ABC Ltd. and CHEETA Ltd. are two companies that are in the business of manufacturing electric scooters. Sales of ABC Ltd. are rising while sales of CHEETA Ltd. have been falling. During the last five years, the market share of CHEETA Ltd. reduced from second to fifth position. Mr. Ramesh was appointed as the CEO of CHEETA Ltd., last year, when the company was unable to make a mark for itself in the industry. As an immediate corrective measure Mr. Ramesh decided to emulate the successful standards of ABC Ltd. and set them as their own yardsticks. With the help of standards, he intended to compare, measure and judge the performance. Further, he introduced a company-wide competition for the best innovation. He has been influential in bringing about a culture of oneness and inspiration amongst the employees. Under his direction one of the employees came up with the idea of inbuilt GPS system in the electric scooter. Another employee gave the idea of mobile charging point in the scooter with a pocket to hold the mobile hand set. CHEETA Ltd., adopted the innovations suggested by its employees in their new model. The new modified model 'RAFTAR' loaded with new features was launched with a slogan "Reach right place in right time and stay connected". Mr Ramesh's leadership turned around the company to be a leader in innovation. CHEETA Ltd., envisaged to innovate mobility solutions with passion to enhance quality of life. The shape of scooter was made attractive. It was available in many colours. The price of new model was higher than the other electric scooters in the market. 'RAFTAR' was widely accepted by the young population.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Difference between transformational and transactional leadership

1. Transformational leadership style uses charisma and enthusiasm to inspire people to exert them for the good of organization. Transactional leadership style uses the authority of its offices to exchange rewards such as pay, status, etc.

2. Transformational leadership style may be appropriate in turbulent environment, in industries at the very start or end of their cycles, poorly performing organisations, when there is a need to inspire a company to embrace major changes. Transactional leadership style can be appropriate in settled environment, in growing or mature industries and in organisations that are performing well.

3. Transformational leaders inspire employees by offering the excitement, vision, intellectual stimulation and personal satisfaction. Transactional leaders prefer a more formalized approach to motivation, setting clear goals with explicit rewards or penalties for achievement and non-achievement. An organization should select the right strategic performance measures that are aligned with its goals and objectives and provide relevant and actionable information. Explain all the factors and importance of these factors that needs to be considered.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic performance measures should be carefully selected so that they are aligned with organisational goals and provide relevant, reliable and actionable information. In selecting the right measures, organizations should consider the following factors:

- Relevance: The measure should be relevant to the organization's goals and objectives and provide information that is actionable and meaningful.
- Data Availability: The measure should be based on data that is readily available and can be collected and analyzed in a timely manner.
- Data Quality: The measure should be based on high-quality data that is accurate and reliable.
- Data Timeliness: The measure should be based on data that is current and up to date, enabling organizations to make informed decisions in a timely manner.

These factors are important because they provide a way for organizations to assess the success of their strategies, identify areas for improvement, and make informed decisions about how to allocate resources and adjust their strategies to achieve their desired outcomes. Effective strategic performance measures should be relevant, meaningful, and easy to understand and should be regularly reviewed and updated to ensure their continued alignment with the organization's goals and objectives.

XYZ Ltd. recently formulated an international expansion strategy and implemented the new market expansion strategy with the aim of increasing its presence in international markets. However, six months into the implementation, sales figures are not meeting projections. Improper use of resources, undesirable tendencies of the workers, non-conformance to norms and standards and unforeseen regulatory challenges have emerged. Additionally, competitor activity has intensified, affecting market share. As a strategic decision-maker, which function of strategic management process would you perform? What specific elements of that function would you implement to overcome these issues and ensure that planned actions translate into successful achievement of goals and results?

ICAI'S ANSWER

In the given case, XYZ Ltd. should perform the Strategic Control function of the strategic management process. Strategic control ensures that what is planned is translated into results by regulating behaviour, placing curbs on undesirable tendencies, ensuring conformance to norms and standards, monitoring proper use of resources, and coping with changes in the environment. The process of control involves the following elements:

1. Objectives of the business system operationalized into measurable and controllable standards.

2. Monitoring and measuring performance of the system.

3. Comparison of results with standards, detecting deviations and gaining insights on standards themselves.

4. Feedback and corrective action to make desired changes and keep the system on course.

By applying strategic control and its elements XYZ Ltd. can overcome deviations and ensure successful achievement of its international expansion goals.

What do you mean by strategic performance measures? State the reasons for the importance of strategic performance measures for an organization.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic Performance Measures (SPM) are metrics used by organizations to evaluate and track the effectiveness of their strategies in achieving strategic goals and objectives. SPM provides a framework for measuring the performance of key areas critical to the success of the organization's strategy. These measures help in assessing whether the organization is progressing towards its desired outcomes and allow for adjustments to be made to improve performance. Strategic performance measures are essential for organizations for several reasons:

- Goal Alignment: Strategic performance measures help organizations align their strategies with their goals and objectives, ensuring that they are on track to achieve their desired outcomes.
- Resource Allocation: Strategic performance measures provide organizations with the information they need to make informed decisions about resource allocation, enabling them to prioritize their efforts and allocate resources to the areas that will have the greatest impact on their performance.
- Continuous Improvement: Strategic performance measures provide organizations with a framework for continuous improvement, enabling them to track their progress and make adjustments to improve their performance over time.
- External Accountability: Strategic performance measures help organizations demonstrate accountability to stakeholders, including shareholders, customers, and regulatory bodies, by providing a clear and transparent picture of their performance. In summary, strategic performance measures play a vital role in guiding organizations toward success by ensuring alignment with strategic goals, optimizing resource use, fostering continuous improvement, and maintaining accountability to stakeholders.

Strategic performance measures are key indicators that organizations use to track the effectiveness of their strategies and make informed decisions about resource allocation. In light of the statement, state various types of Strategic performance measures.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic performance measures are key indicators used by organizations to track the effectiveness of their strategies and make informed decisions about resource allocation. These measures provide a snapshot of performance, enabling leaders to assess whether their strategies align with organizational goals and make necessary adjustments for improvement. Types of strategic performance measures include:

1. Financial Measures: These include revenue growth, return on investment (ROI), and profit margins, which help in understanding the financial performance and profitability of the organization.

2. Customer Satisfaction Measures: Metrics like customer satisfaction, retention, and loyalty give insights into how well the organization meets customer needs and the quality of its products and services.

3. Market Measures: Market share, customer acquisition, and referrals indicate the organization's competitiveness and ability to attract and retain customers in the marketplace.

4. Employee Measures: Employee satisfaction, turnover rate, and engagement provide insights into the organization's ability to create a positive work environment and retain talent.

5. Innovation Measures: These include R&D spending, patent applications, and new product launches, reflecting the organization's capacity to innovate and meet evolving customer demands.

6. Environmental Measures: Environmental measures such as energy consumption, waste reduction, and carbon emissions offer insights into the organization's impact on the environment. These measures help track sustainability efforts and ensure that the organization is operating in an eco-friendly and socially responsible manner. These measures help organizations ensure their strategies are effectively executed, aligned with their objectives, and adaptable to changes in both market and environmental contexts.

"Strategic control focuses on implementation and results produced by the strategy". Explain strategic control along with its different types.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic control focuses on implementation and results produced by the strategy. It focuses on the dual questions of whether: (1) the strategy is being implemented as planned; and (2) the results produced by the strategy are those intended.

There are four types of strategic control:

- Premise control: A strategy is formed on the basis of certain assumptions or premises about the environment. Premise control is a tool for systematic and continuous monitoring of the environment to verify the validity and accuracy of the premises on which the strategy has been built.
- Strategic surveillance: Strategic surveillance is unfocussed. It involves general monitoring of various sources of information to uncover unanticipated information having a bearing on the organizational strategy.
- Special alert control: At times unexpected events may force organizations to reconsider their strategy. Sudden changes in government, natural calamities, unexpected merger/acquisition by competitors, industrial disasters and other such events may trigger an immediate and intense review of strategy.

- Implementation control: Managers implement strategy by converting major plans into concrete, sequential actions that form incremental steps. Implementation control is directed towards assessing the need for changes in the overall strategy in light of unfolding events and results.

Sanya Private Limited is an automobile company. For the past few years, it has been observed that the progress of the company has become stagnant.. When scrutinized, it was found that the planning department was performing fairly well but the plans could not be implemented due to improper use of resources, undesirable tendencies of workers and non-conformance to norms and standards. You are hired as a Strategic Manager. Suggest the elements of process of control to overcome the problem.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Sanya Private Limited deteriorating performance due to poor implementation of plans that is improper use of resources, undesirable tendencies of the workers, and non-conformance to norms and standards, all point towards weak controls in the organization. Implementation of plans cannot assure results unless strong and sufficient controls are put in place. The management of the company should focus diligently on developing controls especially in the identified problem areas.

The process of control has the following elements:

(a) Objectives of the business system which could be operationalized into measurable and controllable standards.

(b) A mechanism for monitoring and measuring the performance of the system.

(c) A mechanism (i) for comparing the actual results with reference to the standards (ii) for detecting deviations from standards and (iii) for learning new insights on standards themselves.

(d) A mechanism for feeding back corrective and adaptive information and instructions to the system, for effecting the desired changes to set right the system to keep it on course.

Above elements of control would ensure a proper check on improper use of resources, undesirable tendencies of the workers, and non-conformance to norms and standards and ensure a result oriented implementation of plans.

What is strategic control? Kindly explain the statement that "premise control is a tool for systematic and continuous monitoring of the environment".

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic Control

Strategic control is the process of evaluating formulated and implemented strategy. It is directed towards identifying changes in the internal and external environments of the organization and making necessary adjustments accordingly.

Strategic Control focuses on the dual questions of whether: (1) the strategy is being implemented as planned; and (2) the results produced by the strategy are those intended.

Yes, Premise control is a tool for systematic and continuous monitoring of the environment to verify the validity and accuracy of the premises on which the strategy has been built. It primarily involves monitoring two types of factors:

(i) Environmental factors such as economic (inflation, liquidity, interest rates), technology, social and legal-regulatory.

(ii) Industry factors such as competitors, suppliers, substitutes.

It is neither feasible nor desirable to control all types of premises in the same manner. Different premises may require different amount of control. Thus, managers are required to select those premises that are likely to change and would severely impact the functioning of the organization and its strategy.

929 RTP May 2024 Case scenario · Q1(i) to Q1(v)

CASE SCENARIO

Swasthya, a rising star in India's dynamic healthcare sector, stands out as a prime example of smart strategic management. At Swasthya, the compass guiding their endeavors is a compelling thought: to emerge as the finest healthcare provider renowned for delivering accessible, top-notch healthcare services. This overarching goal is not an isolated vision, but a thread woven into the very fabric of the organization, driving every facet of their operations. The people of the organization play a pivotal role in this journey. They are entrusted with translating this vision into tangible outcomes at the grassroots level, ensuring that local operations are aligned with the grand aspiration of becoming a healthcare leader. Swasthya works meticulously towards optimizing each link of the patient experience. From streamlining appointment scheduling to expediting test result delivery, every facet of the healthcare journey is scrutinized. Swasthya's strategy is not merely about being a player in the market but about strategically positioning themselves as leaders. They proactively recognize the constant innovations that could disrupt their areas of expertise. To counter this, they introduced value-added offerings such as telemedicine and wellness programs. This addition not only mitigates the risk but also fortifies their long-term viability. Beyond competition, ensuring the quality and safety of patient care is paramount at Swasthya. Stringent hygiene protocols, equipment maintenance regimens, and adherence to healthcare regulations form the cornerstone of their business. In parallel, the organization meticulously undertakes regular assessment as a central element of its decision-making apparatus. This forward-looking exercise encompasses identifying and assessing potential risks such as regulatory changes, medical malpractice vulnerabilities, or shifts in market dynamics, all of which could have far-reaching consequences for their long-term objectives. The implementation of Swasthya's strategy is steered by the McKinsey 7S model, which ensures a harmonious alignment of seven critical elements: strategy, structure, systems, shared values, skills, style, and staff. It emphasizes that the success of a long-term objective is contingent on the synchronization of these seven elements, reinforcing the idea that strategic management is not a compartmentalized process but a comprehensive activity. Swasthya's strategic journey through India's healthcare landscape is a testament to the seamless integration of core management concepts, guiding its actions and strategies, while keeping the vision and intent at the core.

Q1(i)

How does Swasthya's approach to premise control, including stringent hygiene protocols and equipment maintenance, contribute to their long-term objectives and which concept does it align with?

- A It reduces immediate costs and aligns with strategic risk assessment.
- B It safeguards quality and aligns with strategic risk assessment.
- C It enhances immediate profitability and aligns with shared values.
- D It streamlines administrative processes and aligns with value chain analysis.

Q1(ii)

How does Swasthya counter the risk posed by constant innovations and disruptions in their areas of expertise?

- A By aggressively acquiring innovative startups.
- B By introducing value-added services like telemedicine and wellness programs.
- C By downsizing their operations.
- D By focusing exclusively on urban healthcare markets.

Q1(iii)

Why is the McKinsey 7S model significant in Swasthya's strategic management approach, and which elements of the model ensure a holistic alignment of their strategy?

- A It facilitates short-term profit maximization, with a focus on structure and style.

B It emphasizes a compartmentalized approach to strategy, focusing on shared values and skills.

C It ensures a comprehensive alignment of strategy, structure, systems, shared values, skills, style, and staff.

D It prioritizes immediate cost reduction by aligning systems and strategy.

Q1(iv)

Why is the focus on local operations essential for Swasthya in the context of their long-term objective, and how does it contribute to their overall strategy?

A It reduces strategic risk by minimizing the need for strategic risk assessment.

B It aligns with their commitment to immediate profitability.

C It translates the organization's vision into tangible outcomes and aligns with their long-term objective.

D It diversifies their portfolio and aligns with competitive landscape analysis.

Q1(v)

The case talks about scrutiny of every facet of the healthcare journey and also emphasizes the fact that people of the organization play a pivotal role in this journey. Based on your reading, which level of management has the most crucial part to play here to ensure the sense of customer-first is imbibed in the organization?

A Top Management (C-Suite) which sets the tone and strategy of the organization

B Middle Management (Divisional Managers) who have the responsibility of translating strategy to real-time objectives

C Functional Managers who actually do the work on the field

D Board of Directors who are responsible for wealth creation of the shareholders

What is strategic control? Briefly explain the different types of strategic control?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic Control focuses on the dual questions of whether: (1) the strategy is being implemented as planned; and (2) the results produced by the strategy are those intended.

There are four types of strategic control:

- Premise control: A strategy is formed on the basis of certain assumptions or premises about the environment. Premise control is a tool for systematic and continuous monitoring of the environment to verify the validity and accuracy of the premises on which the strategy has been built.
- Strategic surveillance: Strategic surveillance is unfocussed. It involves general monitoring of various sources of information to uncover unanticipated information having a bearing on the organizational strategy.
- Special alert control: At times, unexpected events may force organizations to reconsider their strategy. Sudden changes in government, natural calamities, unexpected merger/acquisition by competitors, industrial disasters and other such events may trigger an immediate and intense review of strategy.

- Implementation control: Managers implement strategy by converting major plans into concrete, sequential actions that form incremental steps. Implementation control is directed towards assessing the need for changes in the overall strategy in light of unfolding events and results.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A strategy is formed on the basis of certain assumptions or premises about the complex and turbulent organizational environment. Premise control is a tool for systematic and continuous monitoring of the environment to verify the validity and accuracy of the premises on which the strategy has been built. It primarily involves monitoring two types of factors:

(i) Environmental factors such as economic (inflation, liquidity, interest rates), technology, social and regulatory.

(ii) Industry factors such as competitors, suppliers, substitutes.

An organization should select the right strategic performance measures that are aligned with its goals and objectives and provide relevant and actionable information. Explain all the factors and importance of these factors that need to be considered.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic performance measures should be carefully selected so that they are aligned with organisational goals and provide relevant, reliable and actionable information. In selecting the right measures, organizations should consider the following factors:

- Relevance: The measure should be relevant to the organization's goals and objectives and provide information that is actionable and meaningful.
- Data Availability: The measure should be based on data that is readily available and can be collected and analyzed in a timely manner.
- Data Quality: The measure should be based on high-quality data that is accurate and reliable.
- Data Timeliness: The measure should be based on data that is current and up to date, enabling organizations to make informed decisions in a timely manner.

These factors are important because they provide a way for organizations to assess the success of their strategies, identify areas for improvement, and make informed decisions about how to allocate resources and adjust their strategies to achieve their desired outcomes. Effective strategic performance measures should be relevant, meaningful, and easy to understand and should be regularly reviewed and updated to ensure their continued alignment with the organization's goals and objectives.

SunSip Beverages has introduced a cost-saving strategy across its manufacturing and warehousing operations. The Managing Director seeks continuous monitoring to ensure the strategy is being implemented accurately, with any deviations corrected promptly. He also wants the approach to remain flexible so the company can quickly adjust to market changes or unforeseen developments. What types of strategic controls can the organisation adopt to ensure timely corrections and effective adaptation to changing conditions?

ICAI'S ANSWER

To ensure smooth execution of the cost-saving strategy while enabling timely corrections and flexibility, SunSip Beverages can use the following types of strategic controls:

1. Premise Control: Ensures that the assumptions on which the cost-saving strategy is based—such as raw material prices, demand forecasts or logistics costs—remain valid. If assumptions change, the strategy can be adjusted quickly.

2. Implementation Control: Tracks whether the strategy is being executed as planned in manufacturing and warehousing. Regular progress reviews, milestone checks and pilot testing help detect deviations early and initiate corrective actions.

3. Strategic Surveillance: Provides broad, continuous monitoring of the internal and external environment. It helps identify unexpected threats or opportunities—such as new competitors, technology changes or regulatory shifts—that may require strategy adaptation.

4. Special Alert Control: Activated in response to sudden, unexpected events (e.g., supply chain disruptions or economic shocks). It allows the company to respond quickly and revise the strategy when necessary.

By using premise control, implementation control, strategic surveillance and special alert control, the MD can ensure that the cost-saving plan is properly monitored, deviations are corrected immediately and the strategy remains flexible in a dynamic market.

GreenEdge Solutions, a mid-sized technology company, has implemented a new strategic plan focused on achieving sustainable growth and strengthening its market presence. The leadership team is determined to monitor the effectiveness of their strategies to ensure they align with the organization's overall goals and objectives. They seek a systematic approach to assess key performance areas critical to their success. What are Strategic Performance Measures (SPM), and how can GreenEdge Solutions effectively use them to evaluate and enhance the success of their strategic plan?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic Performance Measures (SPM) are metrics organizations use to evaluate and track the effectiveness of their strategies in achieving their goals and objectives. SPM provides a framework for monitoring key areas critical to the organization's success, ensuring progress toward desired outcomes and enabling timely adjustments to improve performance.

For GreenEdge Solutions, various types of SPM can be utilized:

- Financial Measures: Metrics like revenue growth, return on investment (ROI), and profit margins help evaluate the company's financial health and profitability.
- Customer Satisfaction Measures: Assessments of customer satisfaction, retention, and loyalty indicate how well the company meets customer needs.
- Market Measures: Market share, customer acquisition, and referral rates reflect competitiveness and market position.
- Employee Measures: Employee satisfaction, engagement, and turnover rate help track workplace culture and talent retention.
- Innovation Measures: R&D spending, patent filings, and new product launches gauge the company's innovation capabilities.
- Environmental Measures: Monitoring energy consumption, waste reduction, and carbon emissions ensures the company aligns with sustainability goals.

Using these measures, GreenEdge Solutions can systematically assess its strategy and make informed decisions to drive sustainable growth and success.

What factors should organizations consider when choosing strategic performance measures, and why are these factors important?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Organizations should consider the following factors when choosing strategic performance measures:

1. Relevance: The measure should be relevant to the organization's goals and objectives, providing actionable and meaningful information. This ensures that the performance measures are directly aligned with what the organization aims to achieve, and that the information obtained can drive improvements and strategic decisions.

2. Data Availability: The measure should be based on data that is readily available and can be collected and analyzed in a timely manner. This is important to ensure that the organization can efficiently gather and utilize data without significant delays or obstacles.

3. Data Quality: The measure should be based on high-quality data that is accurate and reliable. Accurate and reliable data are crucial for making informed decisions and assessing the true performance of the organization.

4. Data Timeliness: The measure should be based on data that is current and up-to-date. Timely data allows organizations to make informed decisions quickly, enabling them to respond promptly to changes and emerging challenges.

These factors are important because they provide a framework for organizations to assess the success of their strategies, identify areas for improvement, and make informed decisions about resource allocation and strategic adjustments. Effective strategic performance measures should be relevant, meaningful, easy to understand, and regularly reviewed and updated to ensure their continued alignment with the organization's goals and objectives.

Define Strategic Performance Measures (SPM). Explain various types of strategic performance measures.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic Performance Measures (SPM) are metrics used by organizations to evaluate and track the effectiveness of their strategies in achieving strategic goals and objectives. SPM provides a framework for measuring the performance of key areas critical to the success of the organization's strategy. These measures help in assessing whether the organization is progressing towards its desired outcomes and allow for adjustments to be made to improve performance.

Types of Strategic Performance Measures

There are various types of strategic performance measures, including:

- Financial Measures: Financial measures, such as revenue growth, return on investment (ROI), and profit margins, provide an understanding of the organization's financial performance and its ability to generate profit.
- Customer Satisfaction Measures: Customer measures, such as customer satisfaction, customer retention, and customer loyalty, provide insight into the organization's ability to meet customer needs and provide high-quality products and services.

- Market Measures: Market measures, such as market share, customer acquisition, and customer referrals, provide information about the organization's competitiveness in the marketplace and its ability to attract and retain customers.
- Employee Measures: Employee measures, such as employee satisfaction, turnover rate, and employee engagement, provide insight into the organization's ability to attract and retain talented employees and create a positive work environment.
- Innovation Measures: Innovation measures, such as research and development (R&D) spending, patent applications, and new product launches, provide insight into the organization's ability to innovate and create new products and services that meet customer needs.
- Environmental Measures: Environmental measures, such as energy consumption, waste reduction, and carbon emissions, provide insight into the organization's impact on the environment and its efforts to operate in a sustainable manner.

Sanya Private Limited is an automobile company. For the past few years, it has been observed that the progress of the company has become stagnant. When scrutinized, it was found that the planning department was performing fairly well but the plans could not be imp lemented due to improper use of resources, undesirable tendencies of workers and non-conformance to norms and standards. You are hired as a Strategic Manager. Suggest the elements of process of control to overcome the problem.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Sanya Private Limited deteriorating performance due to poor implementation of plans that is improper use of resources, undesirable tendencies of the workers, and non-conformance to norms and standards, all point towards weak controls in the organization. Implementation of plans cannot assure results unless strong and sufficient controls are put in place. The management of the company should focus diligently on developing controls especially in the identified problem areas.

The process of control has the following elements:

(a) Objectives of the business system which could be operationalized into measurable and controllable standards.

(b) A mechanism for monitoring and measuring the performance of the system.

(c) A mechanism (i) for comparing the actual results with reference to the standards (ii) for detecting deviations from standards and (iii) for learning new insights on standards themselves.

(d) A mechanism for feeding back corrective and adaptive information and instructions to the system, for effecting the desired changes to set right the system to keep it on course.

Above elements of control would ensure a proper check on improper use of resources, undesirable tendencies of the workers, and non-conformance to norms and standards and ensure a result oriented implementation of plans.

Care Ltd. has decided to acquire Trust Ltd. Discuss the major dimensions of strategic decisions.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic decisions, particularly exemplified by Care Ltd.'s decision to acquire Trust Ltd., possess distinctive dimensions that set them apart from routine operational decisions. These dimensions underscore the gravity and complexity of strategic decision-making:

1. Strategic decisions require top-management involvement. Strategic decisions involve thinking about the totality of the organizations and there is also a lot of risk involved in that.

2. Strategic decisions involve the allocation/commitment of large amounts of company resources - financial, technical, human etc.

3. Strategic decisions are likely to have a significant impact on the long-term prosperity of the firm.

4. Strategic decisions are future oriented by predicting future environmental conditions and how to orient for the changed conditions.

5. Strategic decisions usually have major multifunctional or multi-business consequences as they involve organizations in totality.

6. Strategic decisions necessitate consideration of factors in the firm's external environment.

"Strategic Management concepts are useful for educational institutions." Explain with reasons.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Education is considered to be a noble profession. An educational institution often functions as a not-for-profit organization managed by trusts and societies. They include schools, colleges and universities. Being inherently non-commercial in nature, educational organisations do not have cut-throat competition as in case of their commercial counterparts. However, as the number of institutions belonging to both public and private sector are increasing, the competition is gradually rising. Key reasons for use of strategic management techniques in educational institutes are as follows:

- Getting better name and recognition.
- Adopt different strategies for attracting best students.
- Appointing and retaining quality faculty for teaching.
- Deliver education to make graduates more employable.
- Nurturing responsible citizens.

Which of the following statements are 'correct' and which are 'incorrect'? Give reasons, in brief, for your answer:

Non-profit organizations do not require Strategic Management.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Incorrect: Strategic management applies equally to profit as well as non-profit organisations. Similar to commercial organizations, 'not-for-profit' organizations must also have strategies, purpose, vision and mission also. Strategic Management is required to give direction, focus and lead to efficient utilization of resources. In many 'not-for-profit' organizations surpluses are important for their survival and growth.

Health Wellnow is a Delhi based charitable organisation promoting healthy lifestyle amongst the office-goers. It organises free of cost programmes to encourage and guide office-goers on matters related to stress relief, yoga, exercises, healthy diet, weight management, work-life balance and so on. Many business organisations and resident welfare associations are taking services of Health Wellnow in Delhi and adjoining areas and make financial contributions to its cause. The Health Wellnow is able to generate sufficient funds to meet its routine expenses.

How far strategic management is relevant for Health Wellnow? Discuss.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The concepts of strategic management are relevant for Health Wellnow.

Organizations can be classified as commercial and non-commercial on the basis of the interest they have. Health Wellnow falls in the category of a non-commercial organisation. While non-commercial organisations may have objectives that are different from the commercial organisations, they need to employ the strategic management tools to efficiently use their resources, generate sufficient surpluses to meet daily expenses and achieve their objectives. In fact, many non-profit and governmental organizations outperform private firms and corporations on innovativeness, motivation, productivity, and human relations.

The strategic management in Health Wellnow needs to cover aspects such as:

(i) Generate sufficient funds for meeting its objectives.

(ii) Efficiently reach office-goers and help them to have health in life.

(iii) Promote itself to cover more offices, resident welfare associations.

(iv) Have a deep collaboration with health experts, including dieticians, psychologist, fitness trainers, yoga experts.

Do you agree with the statement that "Strategic Management concepts are of no use to Government organizations and Medical organizations"? Explain with reasons.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Organizations can be classified as commercial and non-commercial on the basis of the interest they have. Typically, a government or medical organization may function without any commercial objectives. A commercial organization has profit as its main aim. We can find many organizations around us, which do not have any commercial objective of making profits. Their genesis may be for social, charitable, or educational purposes.

The strategic-management process is being used effectively by countless non-profit governmental organizations. Many non-profit and governmental organizations outperform private firms and corporations on innovativeness, motivation, productivity, and human resource.

Compared to for-profit firms, non-profit and governmental organizations often function as a monopoly, produce a product or service that offers little or no measurability of performance, and are totally dependent on outside financing. Especially for these organizations, strategic management provides an excellent vehicle for developing and justifying requests for needed financial support.

What is Strategic Decision Making? Briefly explain the major dimensions of strategic decisions.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Decision making is a managerial process of selecting the best course of action out of several alternative courses for the purpose of accomplishment of the organizational goals. Decisions may be operational i.e., which relate to general day-to-day operations. They may also be strategic in nature. According to Jahuch and Glueck "Strategic decisions encompass the definition of the business, products to be handled, markets to be served, functions to be performed and major policies needed for the organisation to execute these decisions to achieve the strategic objectives."

The major dimensions of strategic decisions are as follows:

- Strategic decisions require top-management involvement: Strategic decisions involve thinking in totality of the organization. Hence, problems calling for strategic decisions require to be considered by the top management.
- Strategic decisions involve commitment of organisational resources: For example, Strategic decisions to launch a new project by a firm requires allocation of huge funds and assignment of a large number of employees.
- Strategic decisions necessitate consideration of factors in the firm's external environment: Strategic focus in organization involves orienting its internal environment to the changes of external environment.
- Strategic decisions are likely to have a significant impact on the long-term prosperity of the firm: Generally, the results of strategic implementation are seen on a long-term basis and not immediately.
- Strategic decisions are future oriented: Strategic thinking involves predicting the future environmental conditions and how to orient for the changed conditions.
- Strategic decisions usually have major multifunctional or multi-business consequences: As they involve organization in totality they Rohan works in the R & D department of an electronic appliances company and is given complete autonomy to conduct experiments for business expansion. He accepted the challenge and developed a new product for the customers. Identify and explain the role of Rohan in the company.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Rohan, in this case, is working within the R & D department of the electronic appliances company, and he is given the autonomy to conduct experiments for business expansion. This level of autonomy and the initiative to develop a new product showcase intrapreneurial qualities. Intrapreneurs are individuals who take the initiative to innovate, create, and develop new products, services, or processes within the confines of an existing organization.

An intrapreneur is nothing but an entrepreneur who operates within the boundaries of an organisation. He is an employee of a large organisation, who is vested with authority of initiating creativity and innovation in the company's products, services and projects, redesigning the processes, workflows and systems.

The intrapreneurs believe in change and do not fear failure. They discover new ideas, look for such opportunities that can benefit the whole organisation and take risks, promote innovation to improve the performance and profitability of the organisation. The job of an intrapreneur is extremely challenging. They get recognition and reward for the success achieved by them.

It has now become a trend that large corporations appoint intrapreneur within the organisation, to bring operational excellence and gain competitive edge in the market.

Explain the marketing mix in the context of modern marketing.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Marketing mix is a set of controllable marketing variables that the firm blends to produce the response that it wants in the target market. Marketing mix consists of everything that the firm can do to influence the demand for its product. The original framework of marketing mix comprises of product, price, place and promotion.

Modern marketing is highly promotional oriented and include personal selling, advertising, publicity and sales promotion.

Personal selling – involves face to face interaction of sales persons with the prospective customers and provides a high degree of personal attention. It involves working with one customer at a time and hence not cost effective. The intention of oral communication is sale.

Advertising – is a non-personal, flexible and dynamic promotion method. The media for advertising are several and choice of an appropriate one is important for effectiveness of message. Sale of the product and the amount of expenditure cannot be directly measured.

Publicity – is also non-personal but no payments are made to the media. Publicity is communication of a product, brand or business by placing information about it in the media without paying for the time or media space directly. It could be through press releases, press conferences, reports, etc.

Sales promotion – includes all activities that are undertaken to promote the business but are not specifically included under personal selling, advertising or publicity. Activities like discounts, contests, money refunds, exhibitions etc. are included.

What are the objectives that must be kept in mind while designing a pricing strategy of a new product?

ICAI'S ANSWER

For a new product pricing strategies for entering a market needs to be designed. In pricing a really new product at least three objectives must be kept in mind.

i. Making the product acceptable to the customers.

ii. Producing a reasonable margin over cost.

iii. Achieving a market that helps in developing market share.

For a new product an organization may either choose to skim or penetrate the market. In skimming prices are set at a very high level. The product is directed to those buyers who are relatively price insensitive but sensitive to the novelty of the new product. For example call rates of mobile telephony were set very high initially. Even the incoming calls were charged. Since the initial off take of the product is low, high price, in a way, helps in rationing of supply in favour of those who can afford it.

In penetration pricing firm keeps a temptingly low price for a new product which itself is selling point. A very large number of the potential customers may be able to afford and willing to try the product.

Write short note on Publicity and Sales Promotion.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Publicity and Sales promotion are adopted by organizations when they are undertaking promotion in the overall marketing mix.

Publicity is a non-personal form of promotion similar to advertising. However, no payments are made to the media as in case of advertising. Organizations skillfully seek to promote themselves and their product without payment. Publicity is communication of a product, brand or business by placing information about it in the media without paying for the time or media space directly.

Thus, it is way of reaching customers with negligible cost. Basic tools for publicity are press releases, press conferences, reports, stories, and internet releases. These releases must be of interest to the public.

Sales promotion is an omnibus term that includes all activities that are undertaken to promote the business but are not specifically included under personal selling, advertising or publicity. Activities like discounts, contests, money refunds, installments, kiosks, exhibitions and fairs constitute sales promotion. All these are meant to give a boost to the sales. Sales promotion done periodically may help in getting a larger market share to an organization.

Mr. Vicky Verma, a Gwalior based entrepreneur, has entered into an exclusive-retail deal with an Italian company selling ‘Fantasy-3D’, a Hologram LED Fan, which is being used for advertising at public places. Mr. Verma procured a total of 500 units of the product and paid upfront as per the seller’s policy. This resulted in blocking of his working capital significantly and the shipment is expected in a month. Meanwhile his continued efforts of establishing relations with the marketing heads of corporates resulted in a series of meetings, where he demonstrated his specialist product knowledge by changing the hologram images to personalise basis specifications of the customer. The management of a big automative company was impressed with the quality and adaptability of the product, and awarded a contract of 125 units to be displayed in the auto-maker's showrooms. Identify and explain the product promotion strategy adopted by Mr. Verma.

The most dominant forces are called driving forces because they have the biggest influence on what kinds of changes will take place in the industry's structure and competitive environment. Analyzing driving forces has two steps: identifying what the driving forces are and assessing the impact they will have on the industry.

Many events can affect an industry powerfully enough to qualify as driving forces. Some are unique and specific to a particular industry situation, but many drivers of change fall into general category affecting different industries simultaneously. Some of the categories/examples of drivers are:

- The internet and the new e-commerce opportunities and threats it breeds in the industry.
- Increasing globalization.
- Changes in the long-term industry growth rate.
- Product innovation.
- Marketing innovation.
- Entry or exit of major forms.
- Diffusion of technical know-how across more companies and more countries.

- Changes in cost and efficiency.

A web company initially started as an online marketplace for books. From "biggest E - Bookstore," its owners wants to expand into an e commerce platform selling electronic goods. Implementation of this needs additional funds.

What are the different sources of raising funds and their impact on the financial strategy which you as a financial manager will consider?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Successful strategy implementation often requires additional capital. Besides net profit from operations and the sale of assets, two basic sources of capital for an organization are debt and equity. Being a financial manager to determine an appropriate mix of debt and equity in a firm's capital structure can be vital to successful strategy implementation. Fixed debt obligations generally must be met, regardless of circumstances. This does not mean that stock issuances are always better than debt for raising capital. If ordinary stock is issued to finance strategy implementation; ownership and control of the enterprise are diluted. This can be a serious concern in today's business environment of hostile takeovers, mergers, and acquisitions.

The major factors regarding which strategies have to be made by a financial manager are: capital structure; procurement of capital and working capital borrowings; reserves and surplus as sources of funds; and relationship with lenders, banks and financial institutions. Strategies related to the sources of funds are important since they determine how financial resources will be made available for the implementation of strategies. Organizations have a range of alternatives regarding the sources of funds. While one company may rely on external borrowings, another may follow a policy of internal financing.

Ronit Roy has started a new business of manufacturing washing powder. Make a plan for him to promote his product.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Promotion stands for activities that communicate the merits of the product and persuade target consumers to buy it. Strategies are needed to combine individual methods such as advertising, personal selling, and sales promotion into a coordinated campaign. Modern marketing is highly promotional oriented.

Ronit needs to cover four major direct promotional methods or tools – personal selling, advertising, publicity and sales promotion. They are briefly explained as follows:

(i) Personal selling: Personal Selling involves face-to-face interaction of sales force with the prospective customers and provides a high degree of personal attention to them. In personal selling, oral communication is made with potential buyers of a product with the intention of making a sale.

Ronit may engage a sales team to reach potential customers, explain the benefits of the product and make a sale.

While personal selling is highly effective it suffers from very high costs as sales personnel are expensive. Considering the product is a new launch in a competitive environment having a sales team would be essential.

(ii) Advertising: Advertising is a non-personal, highly flexible and dynamic promotional method.

Ronit needs to advertise washing powder through hoardings, display boards particularly near the point of sale. He may also consider having advertisements through handouts, newspapers, magazines and internet. Television and radio are costly alternatives that may be considered according to his budget.

(iii) Publicity: Publicity is also a non-personal form of promotion similar to advertising. He may organize a launch party where journalists are invited. It is way of reaching customers with negligible cost. Basic tools for publicity are press releases, pres s conferences, reports, stories, and internet releases. These releases must be of interest to the public.

(iv) Sales promotion: Sales promotion is an omnibus term that includes all activities that are undertaken to promote the business but are not specifically included under personal selling, advertising or publicity. Ronit may offer free trial packs to generate interest in the product. Activities like discounts, contests, money refunds, instalments, kiosks, exhibitions and fairs constitute sales promotion. All these are meant to give a boost to the sales. Sales promotion done periodically may help in getting a larger market share.

Modern marketing is highly promotion oriented. Discuss citing major direct promotional methods for products.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Modern marketing is highly promotional oriented and includes personal selling, advertising, publicity and sales promotion.

Personal selling – involves face to face interaction of salespersons with prospective customers and provides a high degree of personal attention. It involves working with one customer at a time and hence is not cost effective. The intention of oral communication is sale.

Advertising – is a non-personal, flexible and dynamic promotion method. The media for advertising are several and choice of an appropriate one is important for effectiveness of message. The sales of the product and the amount of expenditure cannot be directly measured.

Publicity – is also non-personal but no payments are made to the media. Publicity is communication of a product, brand or business by placing information about it in the media without paying for the time or media space directly. It could be through press releases, press conferences, reports, etc.

Sales promotion – includes all activities that are undertaken to promote the business but are not specifically included under personal selling, advertising or publicity. Activities like discounts, contests, money refunds, exhibitions etc. are included.

Disha is appointed as Human Resource Manager in a Telecom company. Currently, the company is facing various HR challenges. Disha's role involves implementing effective human resource management strategies to address HR challenges and ensure the success of the company. Enumerate any five prominent areas where Disha can play a strategic role.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Disha, the Human Resource Manager in a Telecom company, plays a pivotal strategic role in addressing HR challenges and fostering the company's success. Key areas where Disha contributes strategically include:

1. Providing purposeful direction: The human resource manager leads people and the organization towards the desired direction involving people. He can ensure harmony between organisational objectives and individual objectives.

2. Creating a competitive advantage: In the present business environment, maintaining a competitive position or gains either by cost leadership or differentiation is an important objective of any business. Having a highly committed and competent workforce is very important for getting a competitively advantageous position.

3. Facilitation of change: The human resource manager will be more concerned about furthering the organization not just maintaining it. He can devote more time to promote acceptance of change rather than maintaining the status quo.

4. Managing workforce diversity: In a modern organization, management of a diverse workforce is a great challenge. Workforce diversity can be observed in terms of male and female, young and old, educated and uneducated, unskilled and professional employee and so on. Motivation, maintaining morale and commitment are some of the key tasks that a HR manager can perform.

5. Empowerment of human resources: Empowerment means authorizing ever member of an organization to take up his/her own destiny realizing his/her full potential. Empowerment involves giving more power to those who, at present, have little control over what they do and little ability to influence the decisions being made around them.

6. Building core competency: The human resource manager has an important role to play in developing the core competency of the firm. A core competence is a unique strength of an organization which may not be shared by others. Organization of business around core competence implies leveraging the limited resources of a firm.

7. Development of works ethics and culture: As changing work ethics requires increasing emphasis on individuals, jobs will have to be redesigned to provide challenge. A vibrant work culture will have to be developed in the organizations to create an atmosphere of trust among people and to encourage creative ideas by the people.

In these strategic roles, Disha contributes to the organizational success by aligning human resource practices with the overall objectives of the telecom company, ensuring resilience and competitiveness in the industry.

"The TOWS Marix is a tool for generating strategic options/choices." Do you agree with this statement? How it can help a strategist in decision making?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yes, TOWS Matrix is a relatively simple tool for generating strategic options. Through TOWS matrix four distinct alternative kinds of strategic choices can be identified.

SO (Maxi-Maxi): Aggressive strategy - SO is a position that any firm would like to achieve. The strengths can be used to capitalize or build upon existing or emerging opportunities.

ST (Maxi-Mini): Conservative strategy - ST is a position in which a firm strives to minimize existing or emerging threats through its strengths.

WO (Mini-Maxi): Competitive strategy - The strategies developed need to overcome organizational weaknesses if existing or emerging opportunities are to be exploited to maximum.

WT (Mini-Mini): Defensive strategy - WT is a position that any firm will try to avoid. An organization facing external threats and internal weaknesses may have to struggle for its survival.

The matrix is outlined below:

Internal External	Opportunities – O List Opportunities
Strengths – S List Strengths	SO Strategies Use strengths to take advantage of opportunities
Weaknesses – W List Weaknesses	WO Strategies Overcoming weaknesses by taking advantage of opportunities

Internal External	Threats – T List Threats
Strengths – S List Strengths	ST Strategies Use strengths to avoid threats
Weaknesses – W List Weaknesses	WT Strategies Minimize weaknesses and avoid threats

By using TOWS Matrix, a strategist can look intelligently at how he can best take advantage of the opportunities open to him, at the same time that he can minimize the impact of weaknesses and protect himself against threats. Used after detailed analysis of threats, opportunities, strength and weaknesses, it helps the strategist to consider how to use the external environment to his strategic advantage, and so he can identify some of the strategic options available to him.

Give the meaning of Strategic Human Resource management. State the key Human Resource Management practices on which strategic focus should be given to achieve competitive advantage.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategic Human Resource Management may be defined as the linking of human resource management with strategic goals and objectives to improve business performance and develop organizational culture that fosters innovation and flexibility. The success of an orga nization depends on its human resources. This means how they are acquired, developed, motivated and retained in the organization – plays an important role in organizational success. This presupposes an integrated approach towards human resource functions and overall business functions of an organization.

The key Human Resource Management practices on which strategic focus should be given to achieve competitive advantage are:

- Pre-selection practices including human resource planning and job analysis.
- Selection practices meant to staff various positions in the organization. Both recruitment and selection policies and procedures should be designed keeping in view the mission and the purpose of the organization.

- Post-selection practices to maintain and improve the workers job performance levels. Human Resources decisions related to training and development, performance appraisal, compensation and motivation should be based on corporate strategy of the organization.

Explain the prominent areas where human resource manager can play a strategic role.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The prominent areas where the human resource manager can play strategic role are as follows:

1. Providing purposeful direction: The human resource manager must be able to lead people and the organization towards the desired direction involving people right from the beg inning. The most important task of a HR manager is to ensure that the objectives of an organization are internalized by each individual working in the organization. Objectives of an organization state the very purpose and justification of its existence.

2. Building core competency: The human resource manager has a great role to play in developing core competency by the firm. A core competence is a unique strength of an organization which may not be shared by others. This may be in the form of human resources, marketing capability, or technological capability. If the business is organized on the basis of core competency, it is likely to generate competitive advantage. Because of this reason, many organizations have restructured their businesses by divesting those businesses which do not match core competence. Organization of business around core competence implies leveraging the limited resources of a firm. It needs creative, courageous and dynamic leadership having faith in organization's human resources.

3. Creating competitive advantage: Creating and maintaining a competitive advantage in the globalized market is the object of any organization. There are two important ways a business can achieve a competitive advantage over the others. The first is cost leadership which means the firm aims to become a low cost leader in the industry. The second competitive strategy is differentiation under which the firm seeks to be unique in the industry in terms of dimensions that are highly valued by the customers. Putting these strategies into effect carries a heavy premium on having a highly committed and competent workforce.

4. Facilitation of change: The human resource manager will be more concerned with substance rather than form, accomplishments rather than activities, and practice rather than theory. The HR function will be responsible for furthering the organization not just maintaining it. Human resource manager will have to devote more time to promote changes than to maintain the status quo.

5. Managing workforce diversity: In modern organizations, management of diverse workforce is a great challenge. Workforce diversity can be observed in terms of male and female workers, young and old workers, educated and uneducated workers, unskilled and professional employee, etc. Moreover, many organizations also have people of different castes, religious and nationalities. The workforce in future will comprise more of educated and self conscious workers. They will ask for higher degree of participation and avenues for fulfilment. Money will no longer be the sole motivating force for majority of the workers. Non - financial incentives will also play an important role in motivating the workforce.

6. Empowerment of human resources: Empowerment means authorizing every member of an organization to take up his/her own destiny realizing his/her full potential. It involves giving more power to those who, at present, have little control what they do and little ability to influence the decisions being made around them.

7. Development of works ethic and culture: Greater efforts will be needed to achieve cohesiveness because employees will have transient commitment to groups. As changing work ethic requires increasing emphasis on individuals, jobs will have to be redesigned to provide challenge. Flexible starting and quitting times for employees may be necessary. Focus will shift from extrinsic to intrinsic motivation. A vibrant work culture will have to be developed in the organizations to create an atmosphere of trust among the employees and to encourage creative ideas by them.

Discuss the various approaches for evaluating the worth of a business.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Various approaches for determining a business's worth can be grouped into three main approaches:

(i) Net worth or stockholders' equity: Net worth is the total assets minus total outside liabilities of an organisation.

(ii) Future benefits to owners through net profits: These benefits are considered to be much greater than the amount of profits. A conservative rule of thumb is to establish a business's worth as five times the firm's current annual profit. A five-year average profit level could also be used.

(iii) Market-determined business worth: This approach involves three methods. First, the firm's worth may be based on the selling price of a similar company. The second approach is called the price-earnings ratio method whereby the market price of the firm's equity shares is divided by the annual earnings per share and multiplied by the firm's average net income for the preceding years. The third approach can be called the outstanding shares method whereby one has to simply multiply the number of shares outstanding by the market price per share and add a premium.

Implementing supply chain management in a business organization has several steps. Discuss.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Successful implementing supply management systems requires a change from managing individual functions to integrating activities into key supply chain processes. It involves collaborative work between buyers and suppliers, joint product development, common systems and shared information. A key requirement for successfully implementing supply chain will be network of information sharing and management.

Implementing and successfully running supply chain management system will involve:

(i) Product development: Customers and suppliers must work together in the product development process. Right from the start the partners will have knowledge of all. Involving all partners will help in shortening the life cycles.

(ii) Procurement: Procurement requires careful resource planning, quality issues, identifying sources, negotiation, order placement, inbound transportation and storage. Organizations have to coordinate with suppliers in scheduling without interruptions.

(iii) Manufacturing: Flexible manufacturing processes must be in place to respond to market changes. They should be adaptive to accommodate customization and changes in the taste and preferences.

(iv) Physical distribution: Delivery of final products to customers is the last position in a marketing channel. Availability of the products at the right place at right time is important for each channel participant.

(v) Outsourcing: Outsourcing is not limited to the procurement of materials and components, but also include outsourcing of services so that the company is able to focus on those activities where it has competency.

(vi) Customer services: Organizations, through interfaces with the company's production and distribution operations, develop customer relationships so as to satisfy them.

(vii) Performance measurement: Supplier capabilities and customer relationships can be correlated with a firm performance. Performance is measured in different parameters such as costs, customer service, productivity and quality.

The company is facing twin problems, one the strategy is not implemented as planned; and two the results produced by the strategy are not in conformity with intended goals.

You being a strategy consultant, advise the tool for audit of management performance. Also explain the need of such tool and its basic activities.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A & B Ltd. reviews its business plans and strategies on regular basis to identify weaknesses and shortcomings to enable a successful development plan. A strategy audit is an examination and evaluation of areas affected by the operation of a strategic management process within an organization. The audit of management performance with regard to its strategies helps an organization identify problem areas and correct the strategic approaches that have not been effective.

Strategy audit is needed under the following conditions:

- When the performance indicators reflect that a strategy is not working properly or is not producing desired outcomes.
- When the goals and objectives of the strategy are not being accomplished.
- When a major change takes place in the external environment of the organization.
- When the top management plans:

(a) To fine-tune the existing strategies and introduce new strategies; and

(b) To ensure that a strategy that has worked in the past continues to be in-tune with subtle internal and external changes that may have occurred since the formulation of strategies.

Adequate and timely feedback is the cornerstone of effective strategy audit. Strategy audit can be no better than the information on which it is based.

Strategy Audit includes three basic activities:

1. Examining the underlying bases of a firm's strategy,

2. Comparing expected results with actual results, and

"A well designed strategic management system can fail if insufficient attention is given to the human resource dimension." ·Elucidate this statement.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A well-designed strategic-management system can fail if insufficient attention is given to the human resource dimension. Human resource problems that arise when a business implements strategies can usually be traced to one of three causes: (1) disruption of social and political structures, (2) failure to match individuals' aptitudes with implementation tasks, and (3) inadequate top management support for implementation activities.

i. Disruption of social and political structures: Strategy implementation poses a threat to many managers and employees in an organization. New power and status relationships are anticipated and realized. New formal and informal groups' values, beliefs, and priorities may be largely unknown. Managers and employees may become engaged in resistance behaviour as their roles, prerogatives, and power in the firm change. Disruption of social and political structures that accompany strategy execution must be anticipated and considered during strategy formulation and managed during strategy implementation.

ii. Failure to match individuals' aptitudes with implementation tasks: A concern in matching managers with strategy is that jobs have specific and relatively static responsibilities, although people are dynamic in their personal development. Commonly used methods that match managers with strategies to be implemented include transferring managers, developing leadership workshops, offering career development activities, promotions, job enlargement, and job enrichment.

It is surprising that so often during strategy formulation; individual values, skills, and abilities needed for successful strategy implementation are not considered. It is rare that a firm selecting new strategies or significantly altering existing strategies possesses the right line and staff personnel in the tight positions for successful strategy implementation. The need to match individual aptitudes with strategy-implementation tasks should be considered in strategy choice.

iii. Inadequate top management support for implementation activities: Inadequate support from strategists for implementation activities often undermines organizational success. Chief executive officers, small business owners, and government agency heads must be personally committed to strategy implementation and express this commitment in highly visible ways. Strategists' formal statements about the importance of strategic management must be consistent with actual support and rewards given for activities completed and objectives reached. Otherwise, stress created by inconsistency can cause uncertainty among managers and employees at all levels.

"There is a need for Strategic Management for government and medical organization too." Comments.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Need for strategic management for government and medical organization

Yes, there is a need of strategic management for government and medical organizations like the commercial organizations because optimum utilization of resources in view of their scarcity, good strategy formulation and its effective implementation & proper monitoring is needed equally in both types of organizations.

Organizations can be classified as commercial and non-commercial on the basis of the interest they have. Typically, a government or medical organization may function without any commercial objectives. A commercial organization has profit as its main aim. We can find many organizations around us, which do not have any commercial objective of making profits. Their genesis may be for social, charitable, or educational purposes.

The strategic-management process is being used effectively by countless non-profit governmental organizations. Many non-profit and governmental organizations outperform private firms and corporations on innovativeness, motivation, productivity, and human resource.

Compared to for-profit firms, non-profit and governmental organizations often function as a monopoly, produce a product or service that offers little or no measurability of performance, and are totally dependent on outside financing. Especially for these organizations, strategic management provides an excellent vehicle for developing and justifying requests for needed financial support.

Government Organizations: Central, state, municipal agencies, public sector units, department are responsible for formulating, implementing and evaluating strategies that use taxpayers' money in the most cost-effective way to provide services and programs. Therefore, strategic management concepts are required for them.

Medical Organizations: Modern hospitals quite often are using strategic management for creating new strategy and implementing properly for diagnosis and treatment of different diseases at lower price. Forward and Backward integration strategies are also required in hospitals for providing better services at lower cost.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A strategy audit is an examination and evaluation of areas affected by the operation of a strategic management process within an organization. The audit of management performance with regard to its strategies helps an organization identify problem areas and correct the strategic approaches that have not been effective.

Strategy audit is needed under the following conditions:

The difficulties in strategy audit can be explained in terms of following trends:

- A dramatic increase in the environment's complexity.

- The increasing difficulty of predicting the future with accuracy.
- The increasing number of variables in the environment.
- The rapid rate of obsolescence of even the best plans.
- The increase in the number of both domestic and world events affecting organizations.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Research and Development (R&D) personnel can play an integral part in strategy implementation. These individuals are generally charged with developing new products and improving old products in a way that will allow effective strategy implementation. R&D employees and managers perform tasks that include transferring complex technology, adjusting processes to local raw Strategies such as product development, market penetration, and concentric diversification require that new products be successfully developed and that old products be significantly improved. But the level of management support for R&D is often constrained by resource availability.

He desires to introduce no frills business model by offering extremely low fares and improve margins by cutting down traditional ameni ties such as reclining seats and complimentary meals. At the same time setting the stage for a new air revolution, he wishes to brand itself as on-time airlines having proper systems in place and removing additional and wasteful activities and processes.

What steps will you advise to Mr Dutta?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Mr Dutta should adopt business process reengineering (BPR). It is an approach to unusual improvement in operating effectiveness through the redesigning of critical business processes and supporting business systems. It is revolutionary redesign of key business processes that involves examination of the basic process itself. BPR refers to the analysis and redesign of workflows and processes both within the organization and between the organization and the external entities like suppliers, distributors, and service providers. The orientation of redesigning efforts involves total deconstruction and rethinking of business process BPR involves the following steps:

i. Determining objectives: Objectives are the desired end results of the redesign process. They will provide the required focus, direction, and motivation for the redesign process and help in building a comprehensive foundation for the reengineering process.

ii. Identify customers and determine their needs: The process designers have to understand customers. The purpose is to redesign business process that clearly provides value addition to the customer.

iii. Study the existing processes: The study of existing processes will provide an important base for the process designers. The purpose is to gain an understanding of the 'what', and 'why' of the targeted process.

iv. Formulate a redesign process plan: Formulation of redesign plan is the real crux of the reengineering efforts. Customer focussed redesign concepts are identified and formulated. In this step alternative processes are considered and the best is selected.

v. Implement the redesigned process: It is easier to formulate new process than to implement them. Implementation of the redesigned process and application of other knowledge gained from the previous steps is key to achieve dramatic improvements.

What is Strategy Audit? Explain briefly the criteria for strategy audit given by Richard Rumelt's.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A strategy audit is an examination and evaluation of areas affected by the operation of a strategic management process within an organization.

Richard Rumelt's Criteria for Strategy Audit

(i) Consistency: A strategy should not present inconsistent goals and policies which can lead to organizational problems and conflicts. Inconsistencies in strategy are indicated if

(a) the cause of organizational problems is issue based;

(b) success for one department implies failure for another;

(c) the top management is expected to resolve policy problems and issues every time.

(ii) Consonance: Consonance refers to the need for strategists to examine sets of trends, as well as individual trends, in auditing strategies. The difficulty is that most trends are the result of interactions among other trends. A strategy must represent an adaptive response to the external environment and to the critical changes occurring within it.

(iii) Feasibility: A strategy must neither overtax available resources nor create unsolvable sub-problems. The final broad test of strategy is its feasibility; that is, can the strategy be attempted within the physical, human, and financial resources of the enterprise?

(iv) Advantage: A strategy must provide for the creation and/or maintenance of a competitive advantage in a selected area of activity. The advantage may reflect superiority in any one or combination of: resources, skills and position.

"Projected financial statement analysis is a central strategy-implementation technique." Justify the statement.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Projected financial statement analysis is a central strategy-implementation technique because it allows an organization to examine the expected results of various actions and approaches. This type of analysis can be used to forecast the impact of various implementation decisions. Nearly all financial institutions require a projected financial statement whenever a business seeks capital.

A projected income statement and balance sheet allow an organization to compute projected financial ratios under various strategy-implementation scenarios. When compared to prior years and to industry averages, financial ratios provide valuable insights into the feasibility of various strategy-implementation approaches. A financial budget is also a document that details how funds will be obtained and spent for a specified period of time. Fundamentally, financial budgeting is a method for specifying what must be done to complete strategy implementation successfully. Financial budgeting is a method for obtaining the most productive and profitable use of an organization's resources. Financial budgets can be viewed as the p lanned allocation of a firm's resources based on forecasts of the future.

You are a manager of a firm, and you have to raise funds for a business project. From which sources can you raise the funds for your company?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Strategies related to the source of fund are important since they determine how financial resources will be available for the implementation of the financial strategies. Companies may rely on internal and external sources of financing for their short term and long term requirement of their funds. The funds may be raised from national and international money and capital markets.

Following are some important sources for raising funds:

i. Net profit from the operations: Using retained earnings to reinvest in the business, either in new projects or to scale up existing operations.

ii. Sale of assets: The purpose of an asset sale is generally to increase cash flow, reduce bad debt risk and liquidation of assets.

iii. Debt: Debt is an amount of money borrowed by one party from another. It is used by many corporations as a method of making large purchases that they could not afford under normal circumstances. It could be applied to boost organizations return on investment. During low earning periods, too much debt in the capital structure of an organization can endanger stockholders' return and jeopardize comp any survival. Debt can be in the form of debentures, bonds, loans from financial institutions and deposits from public/fixed deposits.

iv. Issuance of share capital to the public: Equity can be of two type – ordinary Shares and preference shares.

Human resource management has been accepted as a strategic partner in the formulation of organization's strategies and in the implementation of such strategies through human resource planning, employment, training, appraisal and reward systems. The following points should be kept in mind as they can have a strong influence on employee competence:

i. Recruitment and selection: The workforce will be more competent if a firm can successfully identify, attract, and select highly competent applicants.

ii. Training: The workforce will be more competent if employees are well trained to perform their jobs properly.

iii. Appraisal of performance: The performance appraisal is to identify any performance deficiencies experienced by employees due to lack of competence. Such deficiencies, once identified, can often be solved through counselling, coaching or training.

iv. Compensation: A firm can usually increase the competency of its workforce by offering pay, benefits and rewards that are not only attractive than those of their competitors but also recognizes merit.

The Audit Committee of Theta Ltd on observing a sluggish growth has advised a radical internal digital transformation. A strategy audit was proposed to identify problem areas and correct the strategic approaches that have not been effective so far. The strategy auditor while measuring organisational performance has identified gaps in flow between order booking by the sales department and the dispatch of product by the delivery department, which amounts to success of one department means failure for another. With reference to Richard Rumelt's criteria for strategy audit, identify and explain the correct evaluation criteria to be adopted.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Richard Rumelt's criteria for strategy audit proposes four criteria namely, consistency, consonance, feasibility and advantage. In the present scenario, the strategy auditor while measuring organisational performance has identified a gap which amounts to success of one department means failure for another. This can be clearly identified as a consistency criterion as the current organisational strategies are inconsistent.

Three guidelines help determine if organizational problems are due to inconsistencies in strategy:

- If managerial problems continue despite changes in personnel and if they tend to be issue-based rather than people-based, then strategies may be inconsistent.
- If success for one organizational department means, or is interpreted to mean, failure for another department, then strategies may be inconsistent.
- If policy problems and issues continue to be brought to the top for resolution, then strategies may be inconsistent.

What do you mean by financial strategy of an organization? How the worth of a business is evaluated?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The financial strategies of an organization are related to several finance/ accounting concepts considered to be central to strategy implementation. These are: acquiring needed capital/sources of fund, developing projected financial statements/budgets, management/ usage of funds, and evaluating the worth of a business.

Various methods for determining a business's worth can be grouped into three main approaches which are as follows:

(i) Net worth or stockholders' equity: Net worth is the total assets minus total outside liabilities of an organisation.

(ii) Future benefits to owners through net profits: These benefits are considered to be much greater than the amount of profits. A conservative rule of thumb is to establish a business's worth as five times the firm's current annual profit. A five-year average profit level could also be used.

(iii) Market-determined business worth: This, in turn, involves three methods. First, the firm's worth may be based on the selling price of a similar company. The second approach is called the price-earnings ratio method whereby the market price of the firm's equity shares is divided by the annual earnings per share and multiplied by the firm's average net income for the preceding years. The third approach can be called the outstanding shares method whereby one has to simply multiply the number of shares outstanding by the market price per share and add a premium.

Kewal Kapadia is the Managing Director of KK industries located in Kanpur. In a review meeting with the head of finance, Kuldeep Khaitan he said that in the first five years of last decade the company grew between 8-10 percent every year, then the growth rate started falling and in previous year the company managed 1 per cent. Kuldeep replied that the company is facing twin issues, one the strategy is not being implemented as planned; and two the results produced by the strategy are not in conformity with the intended goals. There is mismatch between strategy formulation and implementation. Kewal disagreed and stated that he takes personal care in implementing all strategic plans.

You have been hired as a strategy consultant by the KK Industries. Advise way forward for the company to identify problem areas and correct the strategic approaches that have not been effective.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The company needs to conduct strategy audit.

A strategy audit is needed under the following conditions:

- When the performance indicators reflect that a strategy is not working properly or is not producing desired outcomes.
- When the goals and objectives of the strategy are not being accomplished. ♦ When a major change takes place in the external environment of the organization. ♦ When the top management plans:

- to fine-tune the existing strategies and introduce new strategies and - to ensure that a strategy that has worked in the past continues to be in-tune with subtle internal and external changes that may have occurred since the formulation of strategies.

Adequate and timely feedback is the cornerstone of effective strategy audit. Strategy audit can be no better than the information on which it is based.

Strategy Audit includes three basic activities:

(i) Examining the underlying bases of a firm's strategy,

(ii) Comparing expected results with actual results, and

(iii) Taking corrective actions to ensure that performance conforms to plans.

India's luxurious domestic airline Indijet in an attempt to retain its leadership in aviation sector has hired J S Dutta as its Chief Executive. Mr Dutta wishes to reorient company to make it a domestic discount carrier. He desires to introduce no frills business model by offering extremely low fares and improve margins by cutting down traditional amenities such as reclining seats and complimentary meals. At the same time setting the stage for a new air revolution, he wishes to brand itself as on-time airlines having proper systems in place and removing additional and wasteful activities and processes.

What steps will you advise to Mr Dutta?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Mr Dutta should adopt business process reengineering (BPR). It is an approach to unusual improvement in operating effectiveness through the redesigning of critical business processes and supporting business systems. It is revolutionary redesign of key business processes that involves examination of the basic process itself. BPR refers to the analysis and redesign of workflows and processes both within the organization and between the organization and the external entities like suppliers, distributors, and service providers. The orientation of redesigning efforts involves total deconstruction and rethinking of business process BPR involves the following steps:

i. Determining objectives: Objectives are the desired end results of the redesign process. They will provide the required focus, direction, and motivation for the redesign process and help in building a comprehensive foundation for the reengineering process.

ii. Identify customers and determine their needs: The process designers have to understand customers. The purpose is to redesign business process that clearly provides value addition to the customer.

iii. Study the existing processes: The study of existing processes will provide an important base for the process designers. The purpose is to gain an understanding of the 'what', and 'why' of the targeted process.

iv. Formulate a redesign process plan: Formulation of redesign plan is the real crux of the reengineering efforts. Customer focussed redesign concepts are identified and formulated. In this step alternative processes are considered and the best is selected.

v. Implement the redesigned process: It is easier to formulate new process than to implement them. Implementation of the redesigned process and application of other knowledge gained from the previous steps is key to achieve dramatic improvements.

What is Strategy Audit? Explain briefly the criteria for strategy audit given by Richard Rumelt's.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A strategy audit is an examination and evaluation of areas affected by the operation of a strategic management process within an organization.

Richard Rumelt's Criteria for Strategy Audit

a. Consistency: A strategy should not present inconsistent goals and policies. Organizational conflict and interdepartmental bickering are often symptoms of managerial disorder, but these problems may also be a sign of strategic inconsistency. Three guidelines help determine if organizational problems are due to inconsistencies in strategy:

- If managerial problems continue despite changes in personnel and if they tend to be issue-based rather than people-based, then strategies may be inconsistent.
- If success for one organizational department means, or is interpreted to mean, failure for another department, then strategies may be inconsistent.
- If policy problems and issues continue to be brought to the top for resolution, then strategies may be inconsistent.

b. Consonance: Consonance refers to the need for strategists to examine sets of trends, as well as individual trends, in auditing strategies. A strategy must represent an adaptive response to the external environment and to the critical changes occurring within it. One difficulty in matching a firm's key internal and external factors in the formulation of strategy is that most trends are the result of interactions among other trends. For example, the day-care school/centre came about as a combined result of many trends that included a rise in the average level of education, need for different education pedagogy, increase in income, inflation, and an increase in women in the workforce. Although single economic or demographic trends might appear steady for many years, there are waves of change going on at the interaction level.

c. Feasibility: A strategy must neither overtax available resources nor create unsolvable sub-problems. The final broad test of strategy is its feasibility; that is, can the strategy be attempted within the physical, human, and financial resources of the e nterprise? The financial resources of a business are the easiest to quantify and are normally the first limitation against which strategy is audited. It is sometimes forgotten, however, that innovative approaches to financing are often possible. Devices, s uch as captive subsidiaries, sale-leaseback arrangements, and tying plant mortgages to long-term contracts, have all been used effectively to help win key positions in suddenly expanding industries. A less quantifiable, but actually more rigid, limitation on strategic choice is that imposed by individual and organizational capabilities. In auditing a strategy, it is important to examine whether an organization has demonstrated in the past that it possesses the abilities, competencies, skills, and talents needed to carry out a given strategy.

d. Advantage: A strategy must provide for the creation and/or maintenance of a competitive advantage in a selected area of activity. Competitive advantages normally are the result of superiority in one of three areas:

(1) resources, (2) skills, or (3) position.

The idea that the positioning of firm's resources that enhance their combined effectiveness is familiar to military theorists and chess players. Position can also play a crucial role in an organization's strategy. Once gained, a good position is defensible-meaning that it is so costly to capture that rivals are deterred from full-scale attacks. Positional advantage tends to be self-sustaining as long as the key internal and environmental factors that underlie it remain stable. This is why entrenched firms can be almost impossible to unseat, even if their skill levels are only average. Although not all positional advantages are associated with size, it is true that larger organizations tend to operate in markets and use procedures that turn their size into advantage, while smaller firms seek product/market positions that exploit other types of advantage. The principal characteristic of good position is that it permits the firm to obtain advantage from policies that would not similarly benefit rivals without the same position. Therefore, in auditing strategy, organizations should examine the nature of positional advantages associated with a given strategy.

State the factors of human resource that have influence on employee's competence.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Human resource management has been accepted as a strategic partner in the formulation of organization's strategies and in the implementation of such strategies through human resource planning, employment, training, appraisal and reward systems. The following points should be kept in mind as they can have a strong influence on employee competence:

i. Recruitment and selection: The workforce will be more competent if a firm can successfully identify, attract, and select highly competent applicants.

ii. Training: The workforce will be more competent if employees are well trained to perform their jobs properly.

iii. Appraisal of performance: The performance appraisal is to identify any performance deficiencies experienced by employees due to lack of competence. Such deficiencies, once identified, can often be solved through counselling, coaching or training.

iv. Compensation: A firm can usually increase the competency of its workforce by offering pay, benefits and rewards that are not only attractive than those of their competitors but also recognizes merit.

"A well designed strategic management system can fail if insufficient attention is given to the human resource dimension." ·Elucidate this statement.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A well-designed strategic-management system can fail if insufficient attention is given to the human resource dimension. Human resource problems that arise when a business implements strategies can usually be traced to one of three causes: (1) disruption of social and political structures, (2) failure to match individuals' aptitudes with implementation tasks, and (3) inadequate top management support for implementation activities.

i. Disruption of social and political structures: Strategy implementation poses a threat to many managers and employees in an organization. New power and status relationships are anticipated and realized. New formal and informal groups' values, beliefs, and priorities may be largely unknown.

Managers and employees may become engaged in resistance behaviour as their roles, prerogatives, and power in the firm change. Disruption of social and political structures that accompany strategy execution must be anticipated and considered during strategy formulation and managed during strategy implementation.

ii. Failure to match individuals' aptitudes with implementation tasks: A concern in matching managers with strategy is that jobs have specific and relatively static responsibilities, although people are dynamic in their personal development. Commonly used methods that match managers with strategies to be implemented include transferring managers, developing leadership workshops, offering career development activities, promotions, job enlargement, and job enrichment.

It is surprising that so often during strategy formulation; individual values , skills, and abilities needed for successful strategy implementation are not considered. It is rare that a firm selecting new strategies or significantly altering existing strategies possesses the right line and staff personnel in tight positions for successful strategy implementation. The need to match individual aptitudes with strategy-implementation tasks should be considered in strategy choice.

iii. Inadequate top management support for implementation activities: Inadequate support from strategists for implementation activities often undermines organizational success. Chief executive officers, small business owners, and government agency heads must be personally committed to strategy implementation and express this commitment in highly visible ways. Strategists' formal statements about the importance of strategic management must be consistent with actual support and rewards given for activities completed and objectives reached. Otherwise, stress created by inconsistency can cause uncertainty among manag ers and employees at all levels.

ICAI'S ANSWER

There are at least three major R&D approaches for implementing strategies.

i. Be the leader: The first strategy is to be the first firm to market new technological products. This is a glamorous and exciting strategy but also a dangerous one. Firms such as 3M and General Electric have been successful with this approach, but many other pioneering firms have fallen, with rival firms seizing the initiative.

This approach e ntails allowing a pioneer firm to develop the first version of the new product and to demonstrate that a market exists. Then, laggard firms develop a similar product. This strategy requires excellent R&D personnel and an excellent marketing department.

iii. Be a low-cost producer: A third R&D strategy is to be a low-cost producer by mass-producing products similar to but less expensive than products recently introduced. As a new product accepted by customers, price becomes increasingly important in the buying decision. Also, mass marketing replaces personal selling as the dominant selling strategy. ICAI'S ANSWER

Research and Development (R&D) personnel can play an integral part in strategy implementation. These individuals are generally be charged with developing new products and improving old products in a way that will allow effective strategy implementation. R&D employees and managers perform tasks that include transferring complex technology, adjusting processes to local raw materials, adapting processes to local markets, and altering products to particular tastes and specifications.

Strategies such as product development, market penetration, and concentric diversification require that new products be successfully developed and that old products be significantly improved. But the level of management support for R&D is often constrained by resource availability.

Helpbuddy is a not-for-profit organisation providing medical facilities to poor and needy at highly affordable costs. The organisation is dependent on Government grants and donations to manage its affairs. Rohit who is running the organization, believes in taking things as they come and will change the level of activities based on the funds available.

Do you think Rohit is right in taking things as they come? What will you advise him?

ICAI'S ANSWER

It is not advisable for any organisation to take things as they come. Organisations whether commercial or non-commercial need proper planning. In fact, the strategic management process is being used effectively by countless non-profit governmental organizations. Many non-profit and governmental organizations outperform private firms and corporations on innovativeness, motivation, productivity, and human relations.

Compared to for-profit firms, non-profit and governmental organizations often function as a monopoly, produce a product or service that offers little or no measurability of performance, and are totally dependent on outside financing. Especially for these organizations, strategic management provides an excellent vehicle for developing and justifying requests for needed financial support.

Rohit needs to understand the importance of strategic management in his organisation. His organisation is also depended on funds from government and donations. On one side, he needs to maintain steady inflow of funds and on the other side he needs to ensure proper utilisation of funds.

He can plan to use funds in a manner to maintain similar level of continuous services. With proper planning, resources can be better utilised, more funds can be generated and the quality of services maintained.

"Evaluating the worth of a business is central to strategy implementation." In the light of this statement, explain the methods that can be used for determining the worth of a business.

ICAI'S ANSWER

It is true that evaluating the worth of a business is central to strategy implementation. There are circumstances where it is important to evaluate the actual worth of the business. These circumstances can be wide and varied. At a higher level they may include acquisition, merges or diversification. They may also include other situations such as fixing of share price in an issue. Acquisition, merger, retrenchment may require establishing the financial worth or cash value of a business to successfully implement such strategies.

Various methods for determining a business's worth can be grouped into three main approaches.

Ratu has been as CEO of PRO Ltd. He is given the responsibility of developing new products and improving old products. He is facing a conflict whether the firm should develop research and development expertise internally or outsource it to external agency. What guidelines will help Ratu to make this decision?

ICAI'S ANSWER

A critical question is whether PRO Ltd. should develop research and development expertise internally or outside to external agencies. The answer to this critical question mainly depends on rate of technology progress and rate of market growth. The following guidelines can be used by Ratu, the CEO of PRO Ltd. to help make this decision:

- If the rate of technical progress is slow, the rate of market growth is moderate, and there are significant barriers to possible new entrants, then in-house R&D is the preferred solution. The reason is that R&D, if successful, will result in a temporary product or process monopoly that the company can exploit.

- If technology is changing rapidly and the market is growing slowly, then a major effort in R&D may be very risky, because it may lead to the development of an ultimately obsolete technology or one for which there is no market.
- If technology is changing slowly but the market is growing quickly, there generally is not enough time for in-house development. The prescribed approach is to obtain R&D expertise on an exclusive or non-exclusive basis from an outside firm.
- If both technical progress and market growth are fast, R&D expertise should be obtained through acquisition of a well-established firm in the industry.

Richard Rumelt's Criteria for Strategy Audit

(i) Consistency: A strategy should not present inconsistent goals and policies which can lead to organizational problems and conflicts. Inconsistencies in strategy are indicated if

(a) the cause of organizational problems is issue based;

(b) success for one department implies failure for another;

(c) the top management is expected to resolve policy problems and issues every time.

(ii) Consonance: Consonance refers to the need for strategists to examine sets of trends, as well as individual trends, in auditing strategies. The difficulty is that most trends are the result of interactions among other trends. A strategy must represent an adaptive response to the external

(iii) Feasibility: A strategy must neither overtax available resources nor create unsolvable sub-problems. The final broad test of strategy is its feasibility; that is, can the strategy be attempted within the physical, human, and financial resources of the enterprise?

(iv) Advantage: A strategy must provide for the creation and/or maintenance of a competitive advantage in a selected area of activity. The advantage may reflect superiority in any one or combination of: resources, skills and position.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Human resource management has been accepted as a strategic partner in the formulation of organization's strategies and in the implementation of such strategies through human resource planning, employment, training, appraisal and reward systems. The following points should be kept in mind as they can have a strong influence on employee competence:

1. Recruitment and selection: The workforce will be more competent if a firm can successfully identify, attract, and select highly competent applicants.

2. Training: The workforce will be more competent if employees are well trained to perform their jobs properly.

3. Appraisal of performance: The performance appraisal is to identify any performance deficiencies experienced by employees due to lack of competence. Such deficiencies, once identified, can often be solved through counseling, coaching or training.

4. Compensation: A firm can usually increase the competency of its workforce by offering pay, benefits and rewards that are not only attractive than those of their competitors but also recognizes merit.

Explain the prominent areas where the Human Resource Manager can play a strategic role.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Prominent areas where the Human Resource Manager can play strategic role are as follows:

1. Providing purposeful direction: The human resource manager leads people and the organization towards the desired direction involving people. He can ensure harmony between organisational objectives and individual objectives.

2. Creating competitive atmosphere: In the present business environment, maintaining competitive position or gains is an important objective of any business. Having a highly committed and competent workforce is very important for getting a competitively advantageous position.

3. Facilitation of change: The human resource manager will be more concerned about furthering the organization not just maintaining it. He can devote more time to promote acceptance of change rather than maintaining the status quo.

4. Managing workforce diversity: In a modern organization, management of diverse workforce is a great challenge. Workforce diversity can be observed in terms of male and female, young and old, educated and uneducated, unskilled and professional employee and so on. Motivation, maintaining morale and commitment are some of the key tasks that a HR manager can perform.

5. Empowerment of human resources: Empowerment involves giving more power to those who, at present, have little control on what they do and little ability to influence the decisions being made around them.

6. Building core competency: The human resource manager has an important role to play in developing core competency of the firm. A core competence is a unique strength of an organization which may not be shared by others. Organization of business around core competence implies leveraging the limited resources of a firm.

7. Development of works ethics and culture: A vibrant work culture will have to be developed in the organizations to create an atmosphere of trust among people and to encourage creative ideas by the people.

Which of the following statements are correct and which are incorrect? Give reasons in brief for your answer.

There is no distinction between Benchmarking and Business Process Reengineering.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Incorrect: Benchmarking relates to setting goals and measuring productivity based on best industry practices. The idea is to learn from the practices of competitors and others to improve the firm's performance. On the other hand, business process reengineering relates to analysis and redesign of workflows and processes both within and between the organisations.

What steps are to be considered for implementing the supply chain management in a business organization? Explain.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A key requirement for successfully implementing supply chain management system in a business organisation are:

(i) Product development – Customers and suppliers must work together in the product development process. Products are developed and launched in shorter time and help organisations to remain competitive.

(ii) Procurement – requires careful resource planning, quality issues, identifying sources, negotiation, order placement, inbound transportation and storage. Organisations coordinate with suppliers in scheduling without interruption.

(iii) Manufacturing – Flexible manufacturing process is required to respond to market changes like accommodate customisation and changes in tastes and preferences. Manufacturing is done on the basis of just in time and minimum lot sizes.

(iv) Physical Distribution – Delivery of final product to customers is the last position in a marketing channel. To ensure right place at right time is important for each channel participant. So supply chain management links a marketing channel with customers.

(v) Outsourcing – is not limited to the procurement of materials and components but also includes outsourcing of services that traditionally have been provided within an organisation. The company will focus on the core competency areas alone and outsource rest.

(vi) Customer Service – Organisations work with customers to determine mutually satisfying goals, establish and maintain relationships. This produces positive feelings in the organisation and among customers.

(vii) Performance Measurement – Supplier capabilities and customer relationships can be corrected with a firm's performance. Performance is measured in different parameters such as costs, customer services, productivity and quality.

PassBook's note: The import's tag (Ansoff's matrix, from the words 'product development') is dropped: supply chain management is out of the syllabus.

You are the Human Resource Manager of a Company. What are the prominent areas where you can play strategic role?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Prominent areas where the Human Resource Manager can play strategic role are as follows:

1. Providing purposeful direction: The human resource manager leads people and the organization towards the desired direction involving people. He can ensure harmony between organisational objectives and individual objectives.

2. Creating competitive atmosphere: In the present business environment, maintaining competitive position or gains is an important objective of any business. Having a highly committed and competent workforce is very important for getting a competitively advantageous position.

3. Facilitation of change: The human resource manager will be more concerned about furthering the organization not just maintaining it. He can devote more time to promote acceptance of change rather than maintaining the status quo.

4. Managing diversity of workforce: In a modern organization, management of diverse workforce is a great challenge. Workforce diversity can be observed in terms of male and female, young and old, educated and uneducated, unskilled and professional employee and so on. Motivation, maintaining morale and commitment are some of the key tasks that a HR manager can perform.

5. Empowerment of human resources: Empowerment involves giving more power to those who, at present, have little control on what they do and little ability to influence the decisions being made around them.

6. Building core competency: The human resource manager has an important role to play in developing core competency of the firm. A core competence is a unique strength of an organization which may not be shared by others. Organization of business around core competence implies leveraging the limited resources of a firm.

Swift Ltd and Quick Ltd are two companies that are in the business of light industrial machines. While Swift is the market leader the sales of Quick has been falling. In the year 2017-18 the market share of the two companies was forty per cent and five per cent respectively. During the last five years the market share of quick reduced from third to sixth position. As an immediate corrective measure top management of Quick decided to emulate the successful standards of Swift Ltd and set them as their own yardsticks. With the help of standards they intended to compare, measure and judge their performance. What is the strategic tool Quick Ltd is adopting? How is it implemented?

ICAI'S ANSWER

The top management of Quick Ltd is doing benchmarking. The benchmarking helps an organization to get ahead of competition. A benchmark may be defined as a standard or a point of reference against which things may be compared and by which something can be measured and judged. In simple words, benchmarking is an approach of setting goals and measuring productivity based on best industry practices. In recent years, different commercial and non-commercial organizations are discovering the value of benchmarking and are applying it to improve their processes and systems.

Benchmarking processes used by different organisations lack standardization. However, common elements are as follows:

I. Identifying the need for benchmarking: This step will define the objectives of the benchmarking exercise. It will also involve selecting the type of benchmarking. Organizations identify realistic opportunities for improvements.

II. Clearly understanding existing business processes: This step will involve compiling information and data on performance. This will include mapping processes.

III. Identify best processes: Within the selected framework, best processes are identified. These may be within the same organization or external to it.

IV. Compare own processes and performance with that of others: While comparing gaps in performance between the organization and better performers is identified. Further, gaps in performance are analysed to seek explanations. Feasibility of making the improvements is also examined.

V. Prepare a report and Implement the steps necessary to close the performance gap: A report on the Benchmarking initiatives containing recommendations is prepared. Such a report includes the action plan(s) for implementation.

VI. Evaluation: A business organization must evaluate the results of the benchmarking process in terms of improvements vis-à-vis objectives and other criteria set for the purpose. It should also periodically evaluate and reset the benchmarks in the light of changes in the conditions that impact its performance.

"Projected financial statement analysis is a central strategy-implementation technique." Justify the statement.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Projected financial statement analysis is a central strategy-implementation technique because it allows an organization to examine the expected results of various actions and approaches. This type of analysis can be used to forecast the impact of various implementation decisions. Nearly all financial institutions require a projected financial statement whenever a business seeks capital.

A projected income statement and balance sheet allow an organization to compute proj ected financial ratios under various strategy-implementation scenarios. When compared to prior years and to industry averages, financial ratios provide valuable insights into the feasibility of various strategy-implementation approaches.

A financial budget is also a document that details how funds will be obtained and spent for a specified period of time. Fundamentally, financial budgeting is a method for specifying what must be done to complete strategy implementation successfully.

Financial budgeting is a method for obtaining the most productive and profitable use of an organization's resources. Financial budgets can be viewed as the planned allocation of a firm's resources based on forecasts of the future.

You are Research and Development manager of Sun Ltd. You are assigned the responsibility of technology enhancement. You have to take a decision either to acquire R & D expertise from external firms or develop R & D expertise internally. Do you need guidelines to help you take decision? Validate your answer.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Yes, there is always need of guidelines which help in taking correct and appropriate decision to acquire internal and external R&D expertise.

The following guidelines can be used to help in making this decision:

- If the rate of technical progress is slow, the rate of market growth is moderate, and there are significant barriers to possible new entrants, then in-house R&D is the preferred solution. The reason is that R&D, if successful, will result in a temporary product or process monopoly that the company can exploit.
- If technology is changing rapidly and the market is growing slowly, then a major effort in R&D may be very risky, because it may lead to the development of an ultimately obsolete technology or one for which there is no market.
- If the technology is changing slowly but the market is growing quickly, there generally is not enough time for in-house development. The prescribed approach is to obtain R&D expertise on an exclusive or nonexclusive basis from an outside firm.
- If both technical progress and market growth are fast, R&D expertise should be obtained through acquisition of a well-established firm in the industry.

What is the rationale behind Business Process Reengineering (BPR)? What steps would you recommend to implement BPR in an organization?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Business Process Reengineering (BPR) is an approach to unusual improvement in operating effectiveness through the redesigning of critical business processes and supporting business systems. It is revolutionary redesign of key business processes that involves examination of the basic process itself. It looks at the minute details of the process, such as why the work is done, who does it, where is it done and when it is done. BPR refers to the analysis and redesign of workflows and processes both within the organization and between the organization and the external entities like suppliers, distributors, and service providers.

The orientation of redesigning efforts is basically radical. In other words, it is a total deconstruction and rethinking of business process in its entirety, unconstrained by its existing structure and pattern. Its objective is to obtain quantum jump in process performance in terms of t ime, cost, output, quality, and responsiveness to customers. BPR is a revolutionary redesigning of key business processes. BPR involves the following steps:

1. Determining objectives and framework: Objectives are the desired end results of the redesign process which the management and organization attempts to achieve. This will provide the required focus, direction, and motivation for the redesign process. It helps in building a comprehensive foundation for the reengineering process.

2. Identify customers and determine their needs: The designers have to understand customers – their profile, their steps in acquiring, using and disposing a product. The purpose is to redesign business process that clearly provides added value to the customer.

3. Study the existing process: The existing processes will provide an important base for the redesigners. The purpose is to gain an understanding of the 'what', and 'why' of the targeted process. However, some companies go through the reengineering process with clean perspective without laying emphasis on the past processes.

4. Formulate a redesign process plan: The information gained through the earlier steps is translated into an ideal redesign process. Formulation of redesign plan is the real crux of the reengineering efforts. Customer focused redesign concepts are identified and formulated. In this step alternative processes are considered and the best is selected.

5. Implement the redesign: It is easier to formulate new process than to implement them. Implementation of the redesigned process and application of other knowledge gained from the previous steps is key to achieve dramatic improvements. It is the joint responsibility of the designers and management to operationalise the new process.

Slow Ltd. is a fifty year old organisation engaged in manufacturing of consumer products. Over a time, its processes have lengthened making it very slow in decision making, production, product and service delivery.

As a manager, you have been asked to suggest how the processes of Slow Ltd. can be improved?

ICAI'S ANSWER

Any organisation has a number of processes. Typically, a business process involves a number of steps performed by different people in different departments. Slow Ltd. needs to identify and change the processes improve the speed and quality. The tool that can be employed is Business Process Reengineering. Steps are as follows:

i. Determining objectives: Objectives are the desired end results of the redesign process which the management and organization attempts to realise.

ii. Identify customers and determine their needs: The process designers have to understand customers - their profile, their steps in acquiring, using and disposing a product. The purpose is to redesign business process that clearly provides value addition to the customer.

iii. Study the existing processes: The study of existing processes will provide an important base for the process designers. However, some organisation go through the reengineering process with clean perspective without laying emphasis on the past processes.

iv. Formulate a redesign process plan: Formulation of redesign plan is the real crux of the reengineering efforts. Customer focussed redesign concepts are identified and formulated. In this step alternative processes are considered and the best is selected.

v. Implement the redesigned process: Implementation of the redesigned process and application of other knowledge gained from the previous steps is key to achieve dramatic improvements.

Which of the following statements are 'correct' and which are 'incorrect'? Give reasons, in brief, for your answer:

Marketers alone can deliver superior value to customers.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Incorrect: A marketer alone cannot deliver superior value to the customers. It needs to work in coordination with other departments to accomplish this. It is important to be part of organization chain and marketer needs to work in coordination with other departments in the search for competitive advantages. Organisations need to look at the value chain network along with its own chain of activities and the chain of suppliers, distributors and ultimately customers.

Distinguish between Entrepreneurs and Intrapreneurs.

ICAI'S ANSWER

The terms Entrepreneur and the Intrapreneur might seem the same words to hear, but both the terms have much differences including their spelling and characteristics. The differences between these two terms have been shortly gleaned below:-

Dependency

Entrepreneur

An entrepreneur is independent in his operations.

Intrapreneur

An intraprenuer is dependent on the entrepreneur, i.e. the owner.

Raising of Funds

Entrepreneur

An entrepreneur himself raises funds required for the enterprise.

Intrapreneur

Funds are not raised by the Intrapreneur.

Risk

Entrepreneur

Entrepreneur bears the risk involved in the business.

Intrapreneur

An intraprenuer does not fully bear the risk involved in the enterprise.

Operation

Entrepreneur

An entrepreneur operates from out side.

Intrapreneur

On the contrary, an intraprenuer operates from within the organization itself.

Orientation

Entrepreneur

An entrepreneur begins his business with a newly set up enterprise.

Intrapreneur

An intrapreneur sets up his enterprise after working someone else's organization.

Experience

Entrepreneur

As an entrepreneur establishes new business, so he does not possess any experience over the business.

Intrapreneur

An intrapreneur establishes his business after gathering experiences through working in the other organizations.

According to the above table, anyone can differentiate between the entrepreneur and intrapreneur as both the terms are heterogeneous.

Distinguish between Logistic Management and Supply Chain Management.

ICAI'S ANSWER

Supply chain management is an extension of logistic management. However, there are differences between the two. Logistical activities typically include management of inbound and outbound goods, transportation, warehousing, handling of material, fulfillment of orders, inventory management and supply/demand planning. Although these activities also form part of supply chain management, the latter is much broader. Logistic management can be termed as one of its part that is related to planning, implementing, and controlling the movement and storage of goods, services and related information between the point of origin and the point of consumption.

Supply chain management is an integrating function of all the major business activities and business processes within and across organisations. Supply Chain Management is a systems view of the linkages in the chain consisting of different channel partners – suppliers, intermediaries, third-party service providers and customers. Different elements in the chain work together in a collaborative and coordinated manner. Often it is used as a tool of business transformation and involves delivering the right product at the right time to the right place and at the right price.

What is strategy audit? Explain the criteria for strategy audit as given by Richard Rumelt.

ICAI'S ANSWER

A strategy audit is an examination and evaluation of areas affected by the operation of a strategic management process within an organization. The audit of management performance with regard to external strategies helps an organization identify problem areas and correct the strategic approaches that have not been effective so far. It is a process for taking an objective look at the existing strategies of the organization. It involves assessing the direction of a business and comparing that to the course required to succeed in a changing environment."

Companies review their business plans and strategies on regular basis to identify weaknesses and shortcomings to enable a successful development plan. The strategy audit secures that all necessary information for the development of the company are included in the business plan and that the management supports it.

Richard Rumelt's Criteria for Strategy Audit

a. Consistency: A strategy should not present inconsistent goals and policies which can lead to organizational problems and conflicts. Three guidelines to identify are:

- Strategies may be inconsistent if managerial problems tend to be issue-based rather than people-based.
- If success for one organizational department means, or is interpreted to mean, failure for another department, then strategies may be inconsistent.
- If policy problems and issues continue to be brought to the top for resolution, then strategies may be inconsistent.

b. Consonance: Consonance refers to the need for strategists to examine sets of trends, as well as individual trends, in auditing strategies. A strategy must represent an adaptive response to the external environment and to the critical changes occurring within it. One difficulty in matching a firm's key internal and external factors in the formulation of strategy is that most trends are the result of interactions among other trends.

c. Feasibility: A strategy must neither overtax available resources nor create unsolvable sub-problems. The final broad test of strategy is its feasibility; that is, can the strategy be attempted within the physical, human, and financial resources of the enterprise? In auditing a strategy, it is important to examine whether an organization has demonstrated in the past that it possesses the abilities, competencies, skills, and talents needed to carry out a given strategy.

d. Advantage: A strategy must provide for the creation and/or maintenance of a competitive advantage in a selected area of activity. Competitive advantages normally are the result of superiority in one of three areas:

(1) resources, (2) skills, or (3) position.
